Board, Representing 42 Concerns, Bases Decision on Advice of Root and Guthrie.

TO HAVE 2.75% ALCOHOL

Counsel Finds No Authority Was Named to Pass On Quantity in Beverages.

TOLD TO IGNORE RULING

Manufacturers Advised to Disregard Internal Revenue Commissioner's Interpretation of Issue.

What is an intoxicating beverage, and who is qualified to pass upon the amount of alcohol necessary to intoxicate? Until these questions are answered, not by any departmental order, but by the courts, the brewers of New York and a great part of New Jersey are going to continue the manufacture of, and will place on sale, beer that will contain 2.75 alcohol by weight, and 3.3 per cent. by volume. This action was decided upon yesterday by the Lager Beer Brewers' Board of Trade of New York, representing 42 large brewing concerns. Action was taken upon the strength of a legal opinion given by Elihu Root and William D. Guthrie.

Brewing was stopped last December by order of President Wilson as a measure for the conservation of grain. On Nov. 20 the President lifted the ban so as to allow the manufacture of "near" beer and other non-intoxicating beverages. A regulation of the Internal Revenue Commissioner held beverages that contained less than one-half of one per cent. alcohol to be non-intoxicating. It was also held, in an order of March 13, that under the lifting of the ban on "near" beer brewers might resume the manufacture of cereal beverages.

The brewers are advised to disregard the Internal Revenue Commissioner's interpretation regarding alcohol content. The counsel warns that the Government will challenge their opinion, and summarily attempt to enforce the Commissioner's interpretation. Their opinion follows:

44 Wall Street, New York.

Dear Sir: In compliance with your request, we have considered the question of the legal right of brewers to manufacture and cause to be removed for sale and consumption malt liquors containing not to exceed 2.75 per cent. of alcohol by weight, or 3.3 per cent. by volume, under the acts of Congress of August 10, 1917, and November 21, 1918, and in view of the Proclamations of the President dated January 30 and March 4, 1919, respectively, and the Internal Revenue Regulations issued as of February 6 and March 15, respectively.

You instruct us that we may assume, as a matter of fact, that malt liquors which contain not to exceed 2.75 per cent. of alcohol by weight, or 3.3 per cent. by volume, are not intoxicating, and that this can be established by the evidence of experts and other competent witnesses.

There is no provision in the act of Congress of Nov. 21, 1918, or in the act of Aug. 10, 1917, which authorizes any executive officer of the Government to determine what malt liquors are in fact intoxicating, or to prescribe any fixed test or standard for determining when malt beverages shall be deemed intoxicating.

We are of opinion that the proclamations of the President dated Jan. 30 and March 4, 1919, authorize the use of grain and other food products in the production of malt liquors which are not in fact intoxicating, and that the act of Nov. 21, 1918, does not apply to non-intoxicating beers.

In the regulation issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue as of Feb. 6, the following statement is contained:

Within the intent of the Act of Nov. 21, 1918, a beverage containing one-half of 1 per cent. or more of alcohol by volume will be regarded as intoxicating.

And in the regulation issued as of March 13 there is the following:

Notice is hereby given that on the 4th day of March, 1919, the President of the United States approved an order of the Secretary of the Treasury pertaining to the use of materials other than corn of a grade inferior to Federal Grade 6 in the manufacture of nonbeverage distilled spirits and signed a proclamation relative to materials to be used in the manufacture of malt or cereal beverages containing less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume * * *

The effect of the proclamation referred to above is to restore immediately to brewers and other manufacturers of cereal beverages containing less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume the right to use materials of any kind and grade, and in any quantity, in their manufacturing processes, whether on brewery premises or at industrial distilleries or at vinegar factories. Duly qualified brewers may immediately resume the manufacture of cereal beverages of the alcoholic strength herein stated, and this applies to manufacturers who are not brewers under whose process fermentation is at all times kept below the limit of one-half o. 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume. This privilege to brewers will continue only until May 1, 1919, after which the brewer cannot under the Act of Nov. 21, 1918, use any materials named in said act in manufacturing.

Reports Germans Aim to Take Paris by 1925

PARIS, March 17.—The German Empire will be resurrected more rapidly than most people think, Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, former German Foreign Minister, declares in a letter quoted by L'Echo de Paris.

According to the letter, von Kühlmann says that the former ruling classes of Germany are still hopeful of retaining power. He asserts that events are moving as he anticipated earlier in the year, when he wrote that Marshal Foch had sheathed his sword, and it would not be necessary for Germany to fear France longer.

Under favorable conditions, von Kühlmann is quoted as saying, the Germans will be in Paris before 1925.

DR. WILKINS MISSING; WARRANT IS ISSUED

Whereabouts of Murdered Woman's Husband Unknown Since Sunday Morning.

NEW EVIDENCE DISCOVERED

Second Will Appears—Jewelry and Cash Found in Drawer That Had Been Empty.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, L. I., March 17.—Acting on evidence obtained today by District Attorney Weeks in the search for the murderer of Mrs. Julia Wilkins, who was killed outside her home here on Feb. 27, Justice of the Peace Cassius Coleman issued a warrant today for the arrest of a person who is charged in the application with murder in the first degree. County Detective Carman Plant, who made the application for the warrant, said that a general alarm would be sent out immediately for the apprehension of the accused person.

While officials in charge of the investigation were reticent on the developments which led to District Attorney Weeks's action, it was said that the arrest would create surprise.

"You may say that we are making excellent progress in solving the murder," was the District Attorney's only comment today.

There was an unconfirmed rumor here today that the authorities were investigating the movements of three soldiers, said to have been on leave on the night of the murder and to have been at the home of a man and woman who formerly were employed by Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, husband of the murdered woman.

It was learned today that the whereabouts of Dr. Wilkins has been unknown to Lewis K. Friess, his counsel, or to District Attorney Weeks since 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Dr. Wilkins, who was present when his wife met her death, reported to the police at the time that he and she had been attacked by thieves whom they discovered robbing their home. He himself had been knocked unconscious, he said, and by the time he had regained his senses the murderers had fled.

According to the District Attorney, Mr. Friess called him on the telephone yesterday and said he had an important statement which he desired to make in the presence of his client. Mr. Friess said that Dr. Wilkins had telephoned to him at 11 o'clock from the Long Island Railroad Station at Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues, Brooklyn, saying he would take a train in a few minutes for Lynbrook. Since that time the efforts of the authorities to find him have been unavailing. Mr. Friess disavowed any knowledge of Dr. Wilkins' whereabouts when questioned tonight.

Coroner Edward Neu of Lynbrook told District Attorney Weeks that Dr. Wilkins had visited him early yesterday morning. The physician spoke to him of the care he had been taking of Mrs. Wilkins's pet monkeys, parrots, and dogs. Dr. Wilkins left the house, Coroner Neu said, shortly after 9 o'clock, saying he intended to take the 9:38 train back to New York.

District Attorney Weeks made public the fact that a document purporting to be a second will, in which Dr. Wilkins was one of the chief beneficiaries, had been turned over to him yesterday by Mr. Friess. The supposed will was made in 1915, and was not witnessed. Mr. Friess held a conference with the District Attorney after his client had failed to arrive from New York, and produced the new will.

County officials also disclosed that a number of valuable pieces of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Wilkins had been discovered in the drawer of a china closet in the Wilkins home. Detectives working on the case declared that they had looked into this drawer several times in their searches for evidence in the house and that it was empty. In addition to the jewels, $71 was found in the same drawer.

MONARCHIST PLEA IN DIET

Member of Prussian House Demands Hohenzollerns' Recall.

NEW ASSEMBLY OPENED

Move to Provide for the Election of a Prussian President Opposed.

FEARS OF A NEW REVOLT

225 Casualties at Halle and Loot Estimated at $4,500,000.

BERLIN, March 15, (Associated Press.)—When the new Prussian Diet met today a cordon of steel-helmeted troops was thrown around the Diet Buildings to protect the session.

Only holders of credentials, which had been minutely examined, were permitted to pass after having been carefully searched for weapons. This applied even to the women delegates. What was once the defiant citadel of Prussian Reactionaries had apparently been converted into a democratic parliament.

There was a keen discussion in the House over civil war in Germany. The Socialists proposed a parliamentary investigation, but this was negatived by the Minister of Justice, who later announced that the damage done to the Berlin Police Headquarters amounted to 20,000,000 marks.

The Assembly postponed a vote on a demand by the Independent Socialists that the state of siege in Berlin be raised. The vote will be taken on Monday.

One of the delegates made a speech in favor of the Hohenzollerns, and proposed that Prussia should restore the monarchy. The Socialists protested, but the greater part of the civil parties applauded the speech.

The Independent Socialists demanded the confiscation of the private fortunes of the former Emperor and his family.

Oppose Naming a President.

In a debate over the question of a provisional constitution for Prussia a Conservative speaker argued in favor of providing for the office of President of Prussia in the new document. This was objected to by Paul Hirsch, the head of the present Cabinet, on the ground that to create a State executive would set an unfortunate example to the other federated States and likewise would be interpreted as an attempt to create a substitute for a monarch.

The party lineup in the new Diet has not yet been determined. The present indications point to a working bloc of the Majority Socialists and Democrats, who jointly have a majority of nineteen in the body. Herr Hirsch, the Minister of the Interior and temporary head of the Government, and Albert Suedekum, the Minister of Finance, are mentioned as candidates for the Premiership of the new Cabinet.

More than a score of members of the Diet were unable to reach Berlin in time for the opening sessions because of transportation difficulties.

The Prussian Government has begun a general housecleaning among the higher bureaucrats left over from the former régime, who are charged with indulging in a policy of obstruction and even outspoken hostility to the measures of the present Government.

A start was made this week with Herr Lobell, former Prussian Minister of the Interior, and George Michaelis, former Chancellor. The official axe is hanging over the political necks of scores of privy councillors and department directors who fancied themselves indispensable in the bureaucratic régime.

French Airman Starts Flight Across Atlantic

LONDON, March 17.—It is reported among airmen that a flight across the Atlantic Ocean is now being attempted by a French Lieutenant named Fontan.

Lieutenant Fontan is reported to have started from the French African port of Dakar for Pernambuco, Brazil, by way of the Cape Verde Islands and the St. Paul Rocks.

Fontan arrived at Dakar from France by air a few days ago. He is using a Caudron machine. A supply of petrol is said to be awaiting him at St. Paul's Rocks.

The aviator is reported to have escort ships with him. The weather is reported to be unfavorable.

The foregoing story was related tonight by British airmen, who say that they have been reliably informed.

Dakar is the native name for Cape Verde, the westernmost point of the African continent. The port is just to the south of the cape, in the French colony of Senegal. The distance to Brazil is about 1,700 miles.

The distance to Cape Verde Islands is 400 miles, to St. Paul Rocks 900 more, and from there to Pernambuco about 450 miles.

BRITISH RAILWAYS RUN AT BIG LOSS

PLANS SPECIAL MINISTRY

Geddes Predicts Central Control by Boards Having State and Labor Representation.

LONDON, March 17.—Sir Eric Geddes, Minister Without Portfolio, in introducing in the House of Commons today a bill to establish a Ministry of Transportation, said that with the exception of the street railways the transportation system of the country financially was in a semi-paralyzed state.

Only the municipal street railways were prosperous. Before the war railway capital returned 4.2 per cent; today there was a loss of from 2 to 3 per cent. Before the war canals were earning 1½ per cent., while today they were worked at a loss and were heavily subsidized.

Roads which cost the country £20,000,000 a year were earning practically no income, while harbors and docks were earning 3 per cent.

The transportation systems were physically ill equipped to meet the strain of the demands made upon them partly owing to lack of men and capital during the war. The country had to face the fact today that with the railways there would be a loss of over a quarter of a million pounds daily, while the Government was pledged to continue its guarantees for two years.

If transportation was not to continue to run at the cost of the taxpayer, there must be a real transportation policy, and the Government had come to the conclusion that some measure of unified control was necessary. There must be some body which should be responsible for the transportation policy. It was only the Government, the Minister declared, which could take over the position.

In the present conditions, said the Minister, it would be criminal to permit the old system of competition. One block of capital must do the work, and not two in competition. This would be bad news for some interests, but it was a cold bath which the country must take.

The Government must in some form or other have a say in the conditions under which labor worked and with regard to the discipline to be expected in trade unions. The State must step in at once and make possible an economic balance, which was impossible in the present condition of things.

In order to get rid of empty haulage, continued Sir Eric, the Government would take over the power to acquire privately owned cars on the railways, which constituted nearly half the cars employed. During the next two years the same organization would be continued that existed during the war, but thereafter there was certain to be some central control—commissions on which the Government and labor would be represented. It would also be necessary to have a central control over docks and canals.

Nationalization of railways might care for the present conditions—he did not know. He looked upon nationalization as a means to an end, which might have to be adopted finally.

James H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, is authority for the statement that the men are ten to one in favor of a strike to enforce demands for nationalization, an eight-hour day, two weeks' holiday yearly, all war bonuses made permanent, and participation in the management. Similar concessions are made by the Transport Workers' Union, while the miners want nationalization, 30 per cent. increase in wages, a six-hour day, and participation in the management. All three national organizations threaten to combine in a great strike that will paralyze the country's life unless their demands are acceded to this week. This, Premier Lloyd George has said, would mean civil war.

WAR RISK BUREAU CRIPPLED

BLAME PUT ON CONGRESS

REQUEST FOR $3,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Failure of Congress to pass the General Deficiency and Sundry Civil Appropriation bills has created such a grave situation for the Bureau of War Risk Insurance of the Treasury Department that Secretary Glass has been compelled by the situation to communicate the facts to President Wilson at Paris.

He has asked the President to set aside more than $3,000,000 from his War Emergency Fund to cover the cost of continuing the operations of the Bureau for the next few months.

The work of this bureau, one of the most important established in the Government under the exigency of war, is threatened with paralysis through impending lack of funds. It has enough on hand to pay its payroll for the balance of the month of March. There are approximately 17,000 employes in the bureau, a force built up and specially trained for the work of attending to the payment of soldiers' insurance, compensation and allowances for their families, as well as for families of marines and sailors. Failure of the General Deficiency bill cuts off the current expenses of the bureau even for the ordinary payroll.

But even greater importance than this is the fact that the failure of the Sundry Civil bill threatens a stoppage of allowances of the families and other dependents of soldiers, sailors, and marines, because Congress, after the Government had urged the men of its armed forces into contracts and had entered into a solemn contract with each soldier, sailor, and marine to make good the allowances of their families, adjourned without fulfilling its contract to the extent of making appropriations. The General Deficiency bill carried an item of $4,500,000 to meet current expenses of the bureau between now and July 1. The Sundry Civil bill carried an item of $22,000,000 to pay allowances to families of soldiers, sailors, and marines and make these payments good until July 1.

After this situation became known tonight reports were current in Washington that the situation was one which would make it imperative for the President to call an extra session of Congress to meet earlier than May 1 to remedy the situation and keep faith with the soldiers, sailors and marines. It was even rumored that Secretary Glass had in his message to the President said something about calling an extra session earlier. This latter statement is without any foundation in fact. When the report was brought to the attention of Mr. Glass he made it very plain to the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES tonight that he had not only made no recommendation to the President regarding an extra session, but had not even mentioned the subject to the President.

What Secretary Glass did do was to cause a most thorough investigation to be made into the situation staring the War Risk Insurance Bureau in the face, as a result of the failure of Congress to grant the appropriations of $26,500,000 carried by the two marooned appropriation bills and, after ascertaining the facts, to communicate them to the President for his consideration. The facts as sent to the President are sufficient to show him that a grave situation has been created and inform him that this bureau is threatened with paralysis.

Besides communicating the facts to the President, the Secretary is trying to devise some expedient to tide over the situation.

Funds Will Be Out by April 1.

The facts communicated to the President show that the bureau will have funds enough to meet its current pay rolls until the end of the present month only. They also show that, while the bureau will be able to make the family allowance payments payable in March and April, it is without funds to meet the allowances payable after that time. The allowances payable in March are those which fell due in February. The allowances payable in April are those which fell due this month. There are no funds available for paying family allowances due in April and payable in

War Council Holds Session of 4½ Hours and Adopts Most Military, Naval, and Aerial Terms

PARIS, March 17, (Associated Press.)—The Supreme War Council resumed its sessions today with President Wilson in attendance for the first time since he returned from the United States. Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Haig, General Diaz, and British, French, and American Admirals, as well as Premiers and Foreign Ministers of the five great powers with experts, bringing war maps and a draft of the military, naval, and aerial articles of the peace treaty, were present.

It was this draft which the council considered and adopted in the main, though several details remain open. President Wilson agreed to all features of the terms which Secretary Lansing and Colonel House had accepted at previous sessions. These include the plan for reducing Germany's army to 100,000 men, recruited by the volunteer system, and a limitation on arms, munitions, and other war stores.

Some reserved points, involving questions of principle, were the main subjects of discussion during the prolonged session.

The official bulletin, issued afterward, says:

The Supreme War Council met today from 3 to 7:30 P. M. and discussed the military, naval, and aerial terms to be imposed on Germany.

At the end of the meeting an exchange of views took place on the situation in Poland, as described by the Interallied Commission.

The next meeting will take place on Wednesday at 3 P. M.

The Supreme Council today appointed a commission on aeronautics, of which American members will be Rear Admiral Harry S. Knapp and Brig. Gen. Mason M. Patrick. The council named Belgium, Greece, Portugal, Brazil, Cuba, and Rumania to represent the small nations.

SAYS PRESIDENT IS DELAYING PEACE

OPPOSES BURDEN OF LEAGUE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—After reading a Paris dispatch today stating that the American Peace Commissoners were "astounded" and "piqued" by the declaration of the French Foreign Minister, M. Pichon, that the League of Nations should not be included in the Peace Treaties, Senator Poindexter of Washington, one of the opponents of the League, reiterated his views. He issued a statement urging that peace first be made, and that the troops be returned.

"That the American delegation should be piqued at the French is nothing new," said Mr. Poindexter. "They have consistently tended to oppose the French and to favor the Germans as to boundaries, punitive indemnities, internationalization of the Kiel Canal, feeding the Germans, punishment of the Kaiser, since the very beginning of the conference. The American people, however, are for France.

"The President says that France and Great Britain need the League even more than America. This is certainly true. It would be a tremendous advantage to them for the United States to share with them the burdens of Europe. That is exactly what our wise statesmen have always refused to do. We have no right to commit the American people to such responsibilities, burdens, and "supreme sacrifices" as the President describes the result of such a policy, without submitting it for their approval in the usual way in which great issues are always submitted to them.

"The dispatch says an early peace is desired by the President. That may be so, but the President has been the chief cause of the long delay in making peace. The greatest progress toward peace was made during the President's brief visit to America. If he had stayed away a week longer, peace would have been consummated. Immediately on his rearrival in France the peace treaty is again delayed. The President has no power whatever to say what shall or what shall not be in the peace treaty, except with the advice and consent of the Senate, two-thirds of the Senators present concurring, and if the Constitution of the League of Nations presented by the President is embodied in the peace treaty there will be no peace treaty, because the Senate will not consent to it. A sufficient number of Senators have already advised against it.

"The peace treaty is to be a treaty between Germany and the Allies, and as Germany is not to be a member of the proposed League it is difficult to see how that can be embodied in a treaty with Germany. Let peace be made and our troops be brought home. Why is not the Entente able to guarantee peace in Europe? If the American delegation refuses to make peace with Germany let the Entente make peace with Germany and let Congress assemble and declare peace and pass a law to bring the American Army home. Congress has the same power to declare peace that it has to declare war and has full control over all movements of the army and navy, including the Commander in Chief.

"The dispatch quotes the President as saying that the League is vital to America. On the contrary, in his speech in New York, his last public utterance in this country, he himself said it would be a supreme sacrifice."

WANT PEACE FIRST, LEAGUE AFTERWARD

British Newspapers Opposed to Further Delay in Settling with Germany.

THINK WILSON SHOULD WAIT

One Writer Says He Is Not Entitled to Entire Mastery of the Situation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 17.—The Daily Telegraph, commenting editorially on Paris reports that President Wilson will insist that the establishment of the League of Nations shall form an integral part of the peace treaty, says:

"The line taken by the allied Governments, in which they are always understood to have had the concurrence of the American delegates, has been, broadly speaking, that all questions not essential to the conclusion of preliminary peace with Germany should be postponed.

Whether the League of Nations should be among the matters left over for settlement in the final and general peace which must admittedly follow in good time, or whether, as many in America have argued, it should be taken up separately and subsequently—this may have been an open question in the conference. The generally agreed necessity of revising "existing proposals for the League—which, moreover, have not yet been discussed at all by the plenary conference—by no means favors the contention that preliminary peace must wait for its inclusion. What all the world expects of the conference is the conclusion of peace with Germany without one hour's unnecessary delay."

The Times says:

"Let the broad outlines of the League of Nations be embodied by all means in the preliminary treaty, but let the detailed provisions of this most momentous and most comprehensive of all international covenants be reserved for the full consideration so great a work demands."

The Daily Express remarks:

"The one essential is a fixed, firm, unassailable peace compact which will form the starting ground for the rehabilitation of Europe. It is impossible to have this at once if Mr. Wilson's top-heavy program is to be threshed out section by section. This strong-willed, obstinate man is used to having his own way, but—we say it with all respect to our American cousins to whom every consideration is due—he is not entitled to entire mastery of a situation which if concluded in Wilsonian fashion might enhance his personal reputation without advancing the cause of immediate peace in Europe.

"The President appears to have got hold of the wrong end of the stick. Peace imposed on Germany must come first; the League of Nations must follow. To mix the League up with the peace terms is to build a top-heavy structure on an insecure foundation."

BONAR LAW DENIES HITCH.

Tells Commons He Has Heard Nothing of Split Over League.

LONDON, March 17.—Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House of Commons, told that body today that to the best of his belief there was no foundation for the report that a hitch had occurred in the presentation to Germany of the draft of the peace terms because of divergencies of opinion on the subject of the League of Nations.

Mr. Bonar Law was replying to a question by H. W. Bottomley, member for South Hackney, who wanted an assurance "that the terms agreed upon by all the representatives at the conference prior to President Wilson's return" would be communicated at once to the enemy.

PRESIDENT GETS HIS WAY

League Covenant to Be Made an Appendix to the Treaty.

REVISE LEAGUE WORDING

Verbal Changes Suggested by Friendly Critics May Be Embodied in Protocol.

LLOYD GEORGE TO REMAIN

This Will Enable the War Council to Make Greater Speed in Final Decisions.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 17.—A diplomatic mountain was reduced to the proportion of a very flat molehill today when it became apparent that there was nothing really substantial in the objections raised to President Wilson's proposal that the League of Nations covenant should be included in the preliminary peace treaty with Germany which the allied plenipotentiaries are now perfecting.

According to information obtained this evening in authoritative quarters, the British attitude has not been one of opposition, as represented, while the French now say that their disposition to have action on the covenant postponed until after the treaty is concluded with the Germans has been greatly exaggerated. So everything indicates that the President will have his way.

The probability is that the covenant will not be an integral part of the preliminary treaty, but will be attached to it as an appendix.

Premier Lloyd George has decided not to return to England this week, and as a result greater progress toward peace is expected.

Some clarifications of the covenant, to which President Wilson is said not to object because they are made by those friendly to the League scheme, will probably be embodied in a protocol attached to the covenant, so as to leave the language of the covenant intact except in some minor and purely verbal particulars.

It was indicated tonight that the preliminary treaty and the League covenant would be perfected by March 29, ready for approval by the entire Peace Conference prior to presentation to the Germans.

Doubt If Japan Makes an Issue.

There is much comment in official circles here over Ambassador Ishii's speech, which is being interpreted by some as a notice that Japan would not join the League unless racial equality was recognized in the covenant. Japan's position in this connection is well known to the allied peace plenipotentiaries, who did not understand, however, that it would go to the extreme possibly indicated by Ishii.

When the League covenant was completed by the commission presided over by Wilson, it contained a provision against religious discrimination suggested by the President, and intended to benefit the Jews. The Japanese proposed an amendment guaranteeing racial equality, but this led to such spirited discussion that it was decided to eliminate the entire clause.

When the covenant was laid before the plenary session on Feb. 14, the Japanese entered a reservation against the omission of a racial provision. This gives them the right to discuss the subject when the covenant comes up for final consideration. The belief appears to prevail in important quarters that the Japanese will not refuse to join the League on account of this omission.

President Wilson conferred today with Bernard Baruch, Vance McCormick, Herbert C. Hoover, and others who are serving as economic experts with the American mission and approved their proposals of no trade discrimination against enemy countries after the war.

Last night he went over the military and naval terms of the German treaty with General Bliss and Admiral Benson. The chances are that he will adopt Admiral Benson's recommendations for the destruction of the German fleet and the codifying of the rules relating to freedom of the seas.

The President is endeavoring to carry out his speed-up policy and has apparently convinced the doubters that the League covenant, which he regards as an indispensable part of the preliminary treaty, can be incorporated in the treaty without causing

Aviators Talk In Flight By Wireless Phone; Exchange Made Possible By British Invention

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 16.—Conversation between two airmen traveling in machines several miles apart has been rendered possible by a wireless telephoning discovery announced in the House of Commons by General Seely.

"In a short time it should be practicable for a business man, journeying from London to Manchester by air, to issue instructions to his chief clerk or even to dictate letters while flying," said an officer of the Air Ministry in discussing the invention.

"It has been possible for some time for verbal instructions to be given from one plane to another or from the ground to traveling planes," he went on, "but the difficulty has always been that no answer could be sent, so that it remained unknown whether the message had been safely received. The distances covered by these wireless telephones, too, were not great. The new arrangement should revolutionize communication in the air. Of course, wireless telephony has already been carried on over big distances. Mr. Daniels, Secretary of the United States Navy, spoke some time ago to a pilot flying 120 miles away, but no answer was possible.

The officer added that it was not generally known that waves of sound pass through natural obstacles in the line of communication. If a mountain stands between two persons holding a conversation by means of wireless telephony, the waves go right through the mountain, not over the top of it.

A Protocol on Monroe Doctrine?

PARIS, March 17.—Replying to the French charge that incorporating the League of Nations covenant in the preliminary peace treaty means a waste and loss of time before the treaty is signed, the American Peace Commission practically guarantees to have the covenant ready for adoption by next Saturday, with all changes and amendments completed.

Some alterations are under consideration to make the meaning clearer and a protocol may be added, explaining that the Monroe Doctrine remains inviolate and clearly defining whether and how the members may quit the league.

Pichon's statement, wherein he said that he did not believe it was practicable to include the League covenant in the preliminary peace treaty was killed by the censors of the Paris press.

The speeding up of revising the League covenant is greatly aided by Lloyd George's decision to remain in France instead of returning to London Thursday.

There is no "big ten" meeting tomorrow; instead the "big three" will meet to discuss the League of Nations. Then on Wednesday it is expected that the naval, military and aerial terms of the peace treaty will be finally adopted by the War Council.

PICHON'S VIEWS ON LEAGUE COVENANT

Sees No Need of Putting It in First Treaty — Suggests Modifications Later.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 16.—The otherwise dull day among the Paris peacemakers was enlivened by an attempt to puzzle out the apparently wide difference of opinion between the French and Americans, or more specifically between Foreign Secretary Pichon and President Wilson, as to the place the League of Nations covenant will have or will not have in the preliminary peace treaty, and also the difference between the preliminary and permanent peace treaties.

The use of the word "preliminary" is frowned upon at the American peace headquarters, on the ground that the conference is now at work formulating a definitive treaty of peace which shall be final. In the same quarters it is taken for granted that the League of Nations covenant will be an integral part of that peace treaty.

Emphasis was brought to bear upon this point yesterday when President Wilson issued a denial of a statement published in Paris yesterday morning to the effect that the League of Nations covenant would not be in the peace treaty, because such inclusion would hold back the signing of peace with Germany till the United States Congress and all neutral States had had an opportunity to adopt the League plan. In his denial President Wilson declared that the action of the plenary Peace Conference on Jan. 25, to the effect that the League should be an integral part of the peace treaty, was still in force and final.

But today, in his regular Sunday morning talk with the correspondents, M. Pichon, the French Minister, made what seems to be a flat contradiction of the Wilson denial of yesterday. Furthermore, M. Pichon, unlike the Americans, makes a sharp distinction between the preliminary and permanent peace treaties.

The only fair way to indicate what M. Pichon said is to reproduce his answers in connection with various isolated questions from various persons, as follows:

"There seems to be a difference of opinion as to whether the League of Nations covenant is to be in the peace treaty. What is the real situation?"

The reply by M. Pichon was:

"That question has not yet been defined by the Council of Ten. The League covenant is something that may be modified by neutral States. It is a thing to modify before putting into the peace treaty."

"Do you mean the preliminary or permanent treaty?"

"I mean the preliminary treaty. Inasmuch as we are all agreed on the principle of a League of Nations, it is not necessary to put it into the preliminary treaty."

"Will the League covenant be embodied in the permanent treaty?"

"Probably, after being modified into final form."

"What is the difference between the preliminary and permanent peace treaties?"

"The preliminary treaty is to put a definite end to the state of war with Germany and to impose upon her military conditions to prevent an outbreak of war. The permanent treaty will contain many other details."

"What's the difference, then, between the armistice and the preliminary treaty?"

"With only the armistice in existence, the state of war still continues, and hostilities may be resumed at any time. The preliminary peace treaty will end that condition and perhaps mitigate the blockade."

M. Pichon also said something which may be taken as further evidence of the determination of France not to allow Germany to annex German Austria with its eight millions of German inhabitants. He declared that a plébiscite of German Austria, under the conditions now existing there, in favor of annexation would not be considered by the Peace Conference as a genuine expression of the wish of the majority of the people. Still more significant was his remark that German Austria might be convinced later that by remaining a separate independent State she would derive certain economic and military advantages vastly more useful to her than annexation to Germany could ever be.

LABOR CLAUSES FOR TREATY.

Special Committee Takes Them Up for Detailed Discussion.

PARIS, March 17.—"Today's session of the Commission on International Labor Legislation of the Peace Conference," says the official communiqué, "discussed the difficulties raised as to the application of labor conventions of certain States with Federal Constitutions, and decided to submit the question to a small sub-committee which would report with the least possible delay.

"The committee," the statement adds, "then proceeded to examine seriatim the labor clauses presented for inclusion in the treaty of peace."

The Commission on International Railway Communications has decided to revise the convention signed at Berne in 1890, which previous to the war governed international railway traffic, according to the Echo de Paris. The commission has rejected a proposal to establish an international administration of main lines of railway under the control of the League of Nations.

The Ports and Waterways Commission, which met today, was addressed by delegates of Switzerland, who explained the legal and technical reasons which led Switzerland to claim participation in any convention in the future governing the Rhine navigation.

The commission examined further clauses regarding railway traffic for insertion in the preliminary peace treaty.

The Commission on Responsibility for the War appointed today as a drafting committee to prepare the final reports M. Rolin-Jacquemyns of the Belgian delegation, Sir Ernest Pollack of the British delegation, and M. Mamilla of the Italian delegation.

OUTLINES POLISH "CORRIDOR."

Paris Paper Sketches Proposed Strip to Danzig.

PARIS, March 17, (French Wireless Service.)—The corridor which the Peace Conference Commission on Polish Claims has agreed shall go to Poland as a means of exit to the Baltic Sea is outlined today by the Journal des Débats. The report of the commission, which is headed by Jules Cambon, will be examined soon by the Supreme Council.

On the west, according to the newspaper, the corridor will begin on the shore of the Baltic west of Danzig and will include a small part of Pomerania, which is inhabited by Poles. Thence it will run east of Lauenburg, and, continuing southward, east of Konitz and Schneidemuhl.

The eastern border of the corridor will run through Frische Nehrung, which it divides, thence through Frische Haff to the west of Elbing and Osterode, which are left to Germany, and thence south to the present Prussian-Poland border.

The western border of Poland from Schneidemuhl southward will give Birnbaum, Lissa, and Krotoschin to Poland. In German Silesia the Poles will get the regions of Oppeln and Kewpen. The Polish and Czech frontiers will meet east of Neustadt, south of Oppeln.

The Polish frontiers on the north, east, and south have not yet been completed by the commission.

WANTS LEAGUE AT BRUSSELS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, March 15.—Speaking to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, Premier Delacroix expressed the ardent desire of Brussels to be the centre for the World League.

"I hope very much," he said, "that Brussels will be chosen, because the League of Nations should have an intellectual as well as a moral centre, and Belgium already had commenced to develop this idea before the war. Thanks to the generous help of Andrew Carnegie, we already had amassed considerable in the way of a library of documents, the real commencement of the necessary material. The town has offered the Egmont Palace, which is much larger than that at The Hague. Moreover, Belgium would consider it as a moral compensation and as proof of the sympathy of other nations. Belgium is a sort of boulevard between the other nations, and this would be a sort of guarantee for her, as people would consider twice before attacking the seat of the League. The situation of Brussels is quite plainly indicated and is within easy reach of all nations."

M. Delacroix anticipates that not more than 10 to 15 per cent. of the machinery stolen by the Germans will be recovered, although a considerable quantity has already been located. Worse destruction has been committed in the interior of the country, he said, giving Termonde as a terrible example and advising THE TIMES correspondent to go and verify the condition.

M. Delacroix expressed great satisfaction that Antwerp had been chosen as the American base of evacuation of the Rhine armies.

"It will occupy a certain number of workmen, and the freight is a considerable factor," he said.

M. Delacroix stated that President Wilson would visit Antwerp and the devastated region and be received by the Senate of the Second Chamber. The Minister spoke of the great difficulties of the industrial question, pointing out that it was impossible to recommence reconstruction immediately.

"Of course we shall have indemnities from the Germans. We hope this will help our industrialists considerably."

WANTS LEAGUE TO END WAR.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 17.—"Let us hope the League of Nations will be capable of saving us from other wars," said Senator Guglielmo Marconi today. "I am sincerely favorable to such a League. I have met President Wilson and discussed his ideas with him. I immediately judged the President to be an able and intelligent man, but the rest of the world must help him if the League is truly to exist.

"If this noble and grand idea should perish any future war would be infinitely more terrible than the last one. Civilization would cut a worse figure. Science would be even more greatly compromised. Cities would be destroyed and swept away in a second. Electricity would presumably be used to provoke explosions at long distances. It could also very well be used for killing collectively, rapidly, and directly. I hope that men will soon abandon even the most distant idea of war.

"I have often thought during the war of the romance of the wireless telegraph, of the messages which were radio-telegraphed from Russia, Germany, and Austria. They were intercepted, radio-telegrams which had crossed the Alps passing unhurt through a hurricane of artillery. Think of all those millions of words which flew with the velocity of light, traveling night and day, carrying the destinies of the human race!

"A message which I sent ten years ago cannot yet have reached the planets. When we shall have succeeded in reaching them, shall we cease our efforts? We can quite well go on, without reaching the end. This is what gives me hope of extraordinary things in the future, that is, to communicate with the planets. This will be possible in some future day. Considering that many planets are older than ours, the beings which live on them ought to have most interesting information to transmit to us. Of course, enormous obstacles exist, but I do not think they are insurmountable."

May, or for subsequent months. The $22,000,000 carried in the Sundry Civil bill was intended to make good the family allowance payments due in April, May, and June, which would be payable in May, June, and July.

The funds needed for the payment of soldiers' compensation are not involved, nor are the funds for the insurance of soldiers, sailors and marines. But the funds for payments of the family allowances are short to the extent of threatening to cut off the family allowance payments to about 1,250,000 persons.

The War Risk Insurance act requires each man to allot a certain amount of his pay to certain classes of dependents, namely, a wife, divorced wife to whom alimony has been decreed, or child. To certain other classes of dependents, namely, parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, and grandchildren, the soldier might, if he wished, allot part of his pay also. To these allotments the Government solemnly pledged itself, by written contract with each soldier, sailor, or marine, to add certain allowances.

Many of the soldiers who have been forced by their contracts to deduct allotments from their pay are in France, and they have been depending on the Government to live up to its side of the contract, and add to the deducted allotments the allowances necessary to fulfill the contract with each soldier.

'NO WORK, NO FOOD,' NOTICE TO GERMANS

18 POUNDS A HEAD MONTHLY

BERLIN, March 16, (Associated Press.)—Indications are that the average German is not enthusiastic over the amount of food he is likely to get under the provisioning agreement with the Allies. After his first feeling of enthusiasm over the signing of the long-desired arrangement he immediately began to figure out his share of the provisions under the terms of the document, an extended summary of which was published officially this morning, and such comment as is made reflects an undeniable feeling of disappointment at the quantity provided.

This was particularly the case because the newspapers, in reducing the totals to figures in pounds per capita, took as the basis of their estimates the population before the war and worked out the result at ten pounds monthly per person, instead of the approximate eighteen pounds which results from a computation upon the basis of the present population of 45,000,000, excluding the self-providers on the farms, as the Food Ministry contemplates doing. This means that the allotment will be a half-pound of flour and a tenth of a pound of fats per day to supplement the waning German food stocks.

In commenting on the agreement, Vorwärts predicts that the Independent Socialists and the Spartacides will make capital out of the fact that there is a proviso in the agreement that no food shall be allotted to those who are unemployed through their own fault. The newspaper says the workmen will be told that the Government induced the Entente to insert this proviso to prevent them from using the strike as a political weapon. The newspaper declares that, in reality, the proviso was contained in the draft agreement submitted by the Inter-Allied delegates to the Brussels Conference, who undoubtedly insisted upon it, Vorwärts thinks, in order to make Germany finance as large a proportion of the supplies as possible by means of exports, so that Germany's gold resources might be reserved for indemnity payments. The newspaper characterizes the agreement as "anything but a success."

Fishing Privileges Valuable.

The provision in the agreement removing the restrictions upon fishing in the Baltic will be only second in value for Germany to that for the importation of grain and fats, particularly if the unofficial reports from Holland are confirmed that the agreement also covers permission to fish in the North Sea and to import fish from Norway.

Vice Minister von Braun told the correspondent before he started from Brussels to take part in the conference that Germany was extremely anxious to obtain the plentiful supplies of fish which would be made available by the granting of the privileges mentioned. He pointed out that fish was rich in albumen and fats, containing just the elements which were lacking in the present German ration. Herring to an extent of 100,000 tons were immediately available if permission were given to ship fish from Norway, the Vice Minister said, and the workingmen who in peace times had been accustomed to make a meal of potatoes and herring would welcome the return of the old conditions.

The Tageszeitung yesterday said that it was informed that Germany had completed the delivery to the Allies of 5,000 locomotives and 150,000 cars, as provided for in the armistice. The value of the rolling stock, it is said, is 3,000,000,000 marks. The Prussian railways furnished three-fourths of the locomotives and cars.

The Food Ministry figures the cost of necessary food imports at 5,000,000,000 marks, as compared with the recent British estimates of £100,000,000, or approximately 4,000,000,000 marks (under the pre-war rate of exchange).

The German delegates at the time of their departure for Brussels could see provision for only about half of this amount. Financial experts estimated the total amount realizable from the charter and hire of the German ships, foreign securities owned in Germany, foreign credits and 100,000,000 marks from the gold reserve—which the Entente would permit to be applied to food purchases—at only 1,500,000,000 marks.

Another billion was coverable by exports of potash, dyes, wood, and other commodities—although, as the Socialist Food Minister, Herr Schmidt, pointed out in the food debate at Weimar recently, the workmen were day by day cutting down the possibility of financing the food imports by constant strikes in the potash and dye works and coal mines.

Credits from the export of porcelain and other minor wares to neutral countries will not offset the reduced possibility of exporting important products due to strikes. To cover the balance of approximately 2,500,000,000 marks the German Commissioners were authorized to take advantage of an intimation thrown out by an American delegate at the January meeting of the Financial Commission at Treves that the property in the hands of the American Alien Property Custodian might perhaps be available to pay for food.

The German delegates were then asked whether Germany was willing that such funds should be used for this purpose. The German interests concerned are said to be willing, but it is understood that the French object to such a disposition of these assets.

Supplies for Austria Assured.

BASLE, March 16.—The Inter-Allied Food Commission, which has been conducting negotiations at Vienna, has concluded its sessions there and has reached an agreement by which German Austria will receive five convoys of grain daily by way of Trieste, according to advices received here from the Austrian capital. A credit of $30,000,000 has been arranged to carry out the agreement. Herbert G. Hoover, Chairman of the Supreme Food Council, will be charged with the administration of the agreement.

SEES GERMAN CABINET'S OVERTHROW IMMINENT

American Agent Predicts New Revolt Soon Unless Food and Industry Improve.

PARIS, March 17.—A dispatch from the American Legation at Copenhagen, dated March 11 and addressed to the American Commission to negotiate peace, was received today. It tells of the situation in Berlin, in part as follows:

"The American military attaché's agent, who departed from Berlin last Thursday, has reported that the strikes which took place recently were primarily due to lack of work and food, but also partly to discontent brought about by delay by the Government in socialistic action.

"The agent said that reports of bloodshed in Berlin were exaggerated. Hope of assistance from the Allies and the United States is dwindling. The result is reaction. Confidence in the Government at present is being undermined rapidly and there is a tendency on the part of the people more and more to drift toward the Left.

"The military attaché's agent made the statement that a further revolution, which would result in the present Government's downfall, would result unless there was betterment of food deficiencies and industrial conditions within six weeks at the latest. Only the immediate shipment of raw materials and food to Germany, with the assurance that more will follow, will save the situation and prevent further revolution and disaster, the extent of which it is impossible to forsee."

Since the military attaché's agent left Berlin, which was on March 6, some dispatches have reported heavy casualties during the troubles there, but others have asserted that the reports of large numbers of persons having been killed or wounded were exaggerated.

DENIES BEFOGGING KAISER.

Bethmann Says Ruler Was Told of Danger of Opposing Entente.

COPENHAGEN, March 17.—Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, former German Imperial Chancellor, in defending himself against the accusation of Herr Schiel-mann, foreign editor of the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung, that he concealed secret documents from Emperor William, declares that his reports and those of the Foreign Secretary always described the situation to the Emperor as it appeared from the entire material at their disposal. The Berlin dispatch which carries this statement from the ex-Chancellor quotes him as adding:

"At no time was the Emperor left in doubt regarding the danger of opposing the Entente, and every year the increasing gravity of the situation was impressed upon him."

ERZBERGER LIMITS GERMAN LIABILITY

HOLDS TO WILSON'S POINTS

Threatens Assembly's Rejection if Treaty Exceeds These and Proposes Referendum.

COPENHAGEN, March 17.—If the Allies should load the peace treaty with conditions going beyond President Wilson's fourteen points the German National Assembly would have to refuse its assent to the treaty, Mathias Erzberger, head of the German Armistice Commission, declared in an address at a Berlin meeting in favoring the formation of a "real League of Nations," according to a dispatch from the German capital today. The matter, Erzberger said, would then be left to a referendum of the German nation.

Erzberger disclaimed any obligation upon Germany to give compensation for acts she committed after her first peace offer in December, 1916.

He said that the only means of calling a halt on Bolshevism was the abandonment of the "mailed fist policy of the Allies."

The German people, said Erzberger, had almost unlimited confidence in President Wilson. He hoped that the League of Nations covenant as promulgated on Feb. 14 would not be finally adopted, as, he asserted, it was a compromise of the ideals of President Wilson with the imperialistic aspirations of some of the Allies. The American President, he insisted, was under obligations to advocate the immediate admission of Germany to the League.

Erzberger asserted that Germany was prepared to accept the vote of Alsace-Lorraine as to its fture, but he referred to the reported aspirations of France respecting the Rhineland and to Poland's claims to Danzig as "crimes," adding:

"What is German will remain German."

There was no moral obligation upon Germany regarding compensation aside from the case of Belgium, the speaker argued. In that case Germany, he said, would act honestly.

MAY SEND LICHNOWSKY HERE.

STOCKHOLM, March 17.—The Berlin correspondent of the Svenska Dagbladet mentions Prince Charles Max Lichnowsky, former German Ambassador to Great Britain, as the probable German Ambassador to the United States after peace has been concluded.

Prince Lichnowsky created a sensation in 1918 when he blamed Germany for having started the world war, and asserted that Great Britain did everything possible to avert hostilities. As a result of this the Prussian House of Lords expelled him from membership.

Recently it was reported that Prince Lichnowsky would head the German delegation to the Peace Conference.

GERMANS SAY POLES HAVE ENDED TRUCE

Paris Hears Germans Are Intrenching to Hold Southern Silesia Against Attacks.

BERLIN, March 16, (Associated Press.)—Dispatches to Berlin newspapers from Graudenz allege that the Poles are preparing for a general advance against the Germans and have notified the German outposts that the armistice is no longer in effect. The dispatches say that the Poles are charged with eighty-four violations of the armistice.

The German authorities at Locken, near Allenstein, it is added, have seized a secret depot of Polish war supplies which was smuggled across the Polish frontier. A non-commissioned officer and five civilians are reported to have been arrested for complicity in the plot.

PARIS, March 17, (French Wireless Service.)—The German military and civil authorities in Upper Silesia, reports from Warsaw say, are making active preparations to resist Polish and Czech claims to that part of Silesia. Military preparations are said to be under General Grosnor and volunteers are coming in from all parts of Germany. They are well armed and are said to receive very good pay.

Reports from Prague say that trenches have been dug and barbed wire entanglements constructed along the Southern frontier of Silesia. The Germans are said to be well supplied with guns and ammunition.

VATICAN ANXIOUS TO CONCILIATE FRANCE

Recent Reciprocal Courtesies May Presage a Resumption of Diplomatic Relations.

ROME, March 16.—Many significant incidents which have occurred in the last few months, such as the Pope's telegram to Premier Clemenceau congratulating him on his escape from death by an assassin's bullet; the audience accorded by the Pontiff to Abbé Lemire, Deputy of the French Parliament, whose conduct was censured by Pius X., and the French Premier's visit to Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, have again brought up the question of the relations between France and the Holy See. It is thought most probable in diplomatic circles here that these relations are on the point of being resumed.

It is quite evident that the Vatican is doing its utmost to bring about this state of affairs, especially as serious problems will have to be discussed between the French Government and the Holy See when Alsace-Lorraine is definitely annexed to France. The inhabitants of those provinces are deeply religious and would welcome a renewal of diplomatic relations.

Another problem that must be settled is that of the Bishops of Metz and Strasbourg. These prelates, who are Germans, occupy an impossible position under the new régime.

A question of interest to France is that of the holy places in Palestine. After the liberation of Jerusalem the Pontiff made no manifestation to France of his views regarding these places. Although the French protectorate over the Christians in the East has not been revoked, the Pope did not mention France in his last allocution, in which he treated of the Palestine question.

BAUER TO QUIT CABINET.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, March 14, (via Geneva, March 15.)—According to reliable information the Austrian Foreign Minister, Bauer, is resigning his office, to be succeeded by Franz Klein, the famous jurist, who was formerly Minister of Justice.

Professor Schulpeter is to be Minister of Finance. Schulpeter is well known in America, where he delivered many lectures.

SPAIN ASKS ASSURANCES.

Wants Certain Concessions Before Joining League of Nations.

MADRID, March 16, (Associated Press.)—A committee appointed by the Government to study the subject of Spanish participation in the League of Nations has submitted a report which will be considered at a special Cabinet meeting. The Government entirely indorsed President Wilson's proposals, but reserves its decision as to reductions of armaments and the fixing of military forces by members of the League.

It is understood that the Government will ask definite assurances as to the Spanish coast line, protectorates in Africa and the suitability of military service as social discipline for Spain. The wish is also expressed that this country may maintain close relations with South American nations of common race, origin and language.

who on Feb. 27 sent a dispatch outlining plans for a monarchist uprising in Germany, has arrived in London, having left Berlin on March 14 after a residence there of three months. He reiterates the statements made in his dispatch that President Ebert, Chancellor Scheidemann, and Minister of War Noske are merely puppets. For the purpose of retaining power, he says, they have allowed members of the military caste to reappear as organizers of the new republican armies.

"These men are the real governors of Germany," he says. "They make the edicts and Chancellor Scheidemann and his colleagues willingly sign them."

Similar testimony is given by other correspondents telegraphing from Berlin, some stating that the capture of the suburb of Lichtenberg has been intentionally prolonged with a view to exterminating the Spartacides, whose treatment at the hands of the Government troops is said to be sharply condemned.

While atrocities are attributed to the Spartacides, details which have been given are doubted or denied. Even the Vorwärts admits them to be much exaggerated. The correspondents concur in the statement that extreme bitterness has been created against the Government troops and that further trouble is inevitable.

According to a dispatch to The Mail, the Spartacide revolt will certainly recur in ever-increasing force unless a miracle happens. It adds that Herr Noske's forces have been recruited by bribes and promises of big rations and that to this may be attributed some of the food shortage in Berlin.

POGROMS THREATENED BY BERLIN AGITATORS

Anti-Semitism Said to be Fostered by Paid Agents of Secret Societies.

By LEONARD SPRAY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, March 14.—Although now the Berlin hostilities have died down into spasmodic rifle firing, the atmosphere of the city is one of unrest, bitterness, and foreboding. Another symptom terribly significant of the capital's state of mind has made its sinister appearance—namely, a threatened pogrom against Jews.

Street orators who, according to the Lokal-Anzeiger, are paid agents of secret societies, are inciting the population against the Jews, while this morning men in sailors' and soldiers' uniforms appeared at several houses in the west end of the city and, when the doors were opened, demanded whether there were any Jews among the inmates.

The correspondent of the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant telegraphs:

"Mention has already been made of the execution of twenty-four sailors who came to headquarters to receive their pay. The full history of the massacre has now been divulged. Secretly Government troops had taken possession of the building, and as each sailor arrived he was seized and thrown into a cellar. Later the twenty-four men were assembled in a corner of the inner courtyard.

"At first a rifle salvo was fired, killing a few and wounding others. The survivors, crouching on their knees, begged for mercy, but in vain. A quick fire was discharged upon the massed group, and those who still showed signs of life were then finished off with revolvers fired at point-blank range. Among the murdered men were two paymasters. No attempt was made to prove that any had taken part in the rebellion."

JUNKER OFFICERS SUPPRESSED REVOLT

Noske Called on Men of Old Regime — Revolutionary Spirit Still Grows.

By Cable and Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 14.—Though the guerrilla housetop war continues today it may be safely asserted that the Spartacide rising has been again suppressed and that Berlin and Germany may once more enjoy some resemblance to normal conditions, at least for a few weeks.

Perhaps 1,000 persons lost their lives in the recent revolt. How many were wounded will never be known. The damage caused is estimated at 50,000,000 marks.

No well-informed person here will believe for one moment that the anarchist spirit has been finally exterminated. On the contrary, it is growing rapidly with starvation and the lack of proper enjoyment.

In suppressing the last rising the Government troops used harsh measures by which occasionally the lives and property of the totally innocent were destroyed. Outsiders profess to see plainly the absolute necessity of these measures, but not those whose families and friends suffered and they belong nearly all to the laboring or what the English call the lower middle classes, who had already drained the bitter cup of misery during the war.

The Spartacide press is doing everything possible to incense the proletariat against the Government by representing its troops as aggressor and the Spartacides as poor, helpless victims, who were first provoked and then slaughtered. Add to this the general moral and economic disintegration pervading all walks of life and the helplessness of the Government, overburdened with gigantic tasks, and there you have the situation.

The chief of the military forces, Herr Noske, has proved himself to be competent, and a man of iron will, who even in opposition to some of his colleagues in the Government never hesitated to do what he thought was demanded, thereby doubtless jeopardizing his own life.

There are resources from which the Spartacides draw arms and munitions in enormous quantities. They certainly come from the State arsenals and factories, the personnel of which is doubtless anarchistic to the core, though they may hide their political convictions under a different name until the time comes and the Spartacides' chances of victory are no longer dubious.

Noske has been playing one extreme against the other. All his army officers, beginning with General von Luttwitz, who was in charge of the Berlin operations, down to Lieuteuant Pilerwitz of Bremen fame, belong to the Junker class without almost any exception. The volunteer companies and battalions which they command are composed almost exclusively of very young country boys uncontaminated by the influence of Berlin life.

Both officers and men have thus far proved themselves absolutely loyal, but today they openly boast that they for the third time have saved the Government's life. There are in Germany about 300,000 army officers of the line and reserve. They now talk of forming a great league among themselves.

55 DEAD, 170 WOUNDED IN UPRISING AT HALLE

$4,500,000 of Property Looted —Independents Arrested After Attempted Overtures.

BERLIN, March 15, (Associated Press.)—Fifty-five persons have been killed and 170 wounded in the riots at Halle.

Two hundred and eighty persons have been arrested for pillaging. The value of the stolen property is estimated at 16,000,000 marks.

As a result of the plundering in the sections of the country outside of Halle a state of siege has been proclaimed over Bitterfield, Delitsch, Muenchein, Merseburg, and Koennern.

Rioting on the part of peasants in Windschlag, near Offenburg, Bavaria, forced the visiting Food Commission to seek the protection of the military authorities. The rural producers refused to make declarations of their food stores and drove off the officials with pitchforks and clubs.

Government troops which are cleaning up the Spartacides in the Berlin suburbs of Rahnsdorf and Friedrichshafen, report that they have arrested two independent Socialist leaders in Rahnsdorf, "who prove to have distributed arms to other Independents and to Communists and to have incited to violence."

The Chairman of the Soldiers' Council in Wilhelmshaven, who is also an Independent Socialist, has been arrested, together with a soldier, because they distributed weapons to soldiers in the hospital there. Two Aldermen of Friedrichshaven, two laborers and one member of the Soviet, all of them Independents, have been taken into custody for causing loyal soldiers, stationed in Friedrichshaven to be disarmed at the beginning of the general strike, according to the report.

This is the first instance of definite mention being made of the arrest of Independent Socialists, and it is believed to be probable that the report was given out owing to a desire by the Government to expose the connection of the Independents with the Spartacides and the uprising, which the Independent leaders have stoutly denied.

It is reported also that the troops found large quantities of arms and ammunition in Lichtenberg, which suburb has now been thoroughly cleared of the Spartacides, even the roof snipers being no longer in evidence.

The Government, so far from relaxing its vigilance, is already taking measures to prevent a repetition of last week's uprising. The Prussian Minister of Education, Herr Haenisch, has issued an eloquent appeal to young collegians to join the volunteer corps "to save the Fatherland, against which Bolshevism threatens in the east, while the hydra of anarchy and civil warfare raises its head at home."

The Minister of Defense, Herr Noske, has issued a decree imposing imprisonment up to one year for interference with street-car employes or traffic, or sabotage of telegraph wires, cars, or other material. This is plainly intended to make it impossible for the minority of the street-car men to prevent the majority from working in case of another strike.

The Spartacide attempts to import arms from points outside of Berlin are being checked by the military forces at various railroad stations.

BERLIN, March 14.—I hear from a reliable source that the Government had recently hoped to induce certain Independent Socialists to become leaders in the Cabinet. Haase and Dittman were mentioned in that connection. Negotiations of the most delicate character were conducted.

The Government had previously made extensive concessions to the Independents in socialization schemes and the embodiment of the Workers' Councils in the Constitution, and it is said to have been willing to make further concessions, hoping thereby to strengthen its position.

COPENHAGEN, March 17.—The order issued by Gustav Noske, the German Minister of Defense, for the execution of persons possessing arms and fighting against the Government, has been withdrawn, according to a Berlin dispatch received here.

HARVEY OPPOSES ANY PEACE LEAGUE

BITTER IN DENUNCIATION

Would Not Want to Live to See World Flag Flaunting Over Stars and Stripes.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 17.—Colonel George Harvey, editor of The North American Review and of Harvey's Weekly, addressed a notable gathering of Hoosier Republicans at the Columbia Club tonight, taking "Washington or Wilson" as his subject. His address, which was received with intense enthusiasm, is regarded as the opening of the campaign in Indiana against the proposed League of Nations as advocated by President Wilson.

More than 350 men attended the banquet. Nearly twice that number crowded into the big dining room at the club to listen to the address. Colonel Harvey was seated at a table with Governor Goodrich, Mayor Jewett, John C. Ruckelshaus, President of the club, and nearly twenty members of the Reception Committee. Chairman Edmund M. Wasmuth of the Republican State Committee and many prominent members of the party from out-State cities were present.

Governor Goodrich acted as toastmaster, introducing Colonel Harvey, who said in part:

Confusion in Public Mind.

"There is much confusion in the minds of our people. They are just beginning to awaken to the fact that they are being led into a quagmire. The makeshift document now existing will be amended no doubt and the time of its adoption may be postponed, but the menace will remain. Mr. Wilson has staked his all upon this single throw and he can and will force the issue through the party which has become his personal possession. His announced plan is to return some time—nobody knows when—and appeal directly to the people.

"That, I say, is good. That is all that those of us who are against the scheme desire. But meanwhile the active propaganda now going on, backed financially no less by Anglo-Americans than by German-Americans who hold millions of foreign bonds which, through the operation of this sinister League they hope to get indorsed by the United States, must be met and resisted squarely from one end of the country to the other. And there must be no holding back, no evasion. I make no complaint of those who consider it wise to postpone the issue. That policy has already proved itself. But for myself I want to say plainly:

"I am opposed to the covenant as it stands. I am opposed to it as it may be amended. I am opposed to it in principle. I am opposed to it in theory. I am opposed to it in practice.

"I regard it as the most un-American proposal ever submitted to the American people by an American President.

"I am opposed to this country entering into any perpetual or permanent alliance with any power for any purpose—for war, for peace, or for anything else.

"I am opposed to yielding so much as a shadow or suggestion of the sovereignty of this Republic.

"I am opposed to any proposal that might by the remotest chance impair the absolute independence of the nation or the complete freedom of the people.

"I would rather fight for the Monroe Doctrine than for the Akoond of Swat.

"I would never take control of our commerce from Congress.

"I am opposed to all men of whatever political faith who counsel or acquiesce in the slightest concession to those who, in the name of humanity, would betray our country and crucify our liberties!

"They enslave their children's children who make compromise with sin.

"I deny that this abortion of a league is essential to the making and preservation of peace.

"I insist that the power for good of America, as has just been proved, is inherent in her self-government and her aloofness from intrigue.

"I abhor the possibility of American individualism being engulfed in the morass of socialism.

"If I were an Englishman, a Frenchman, or an Italian, I should want this league; but I am an American.

"I hope to die before I see any red-blooded American sitting as President and one out of nine in a council controlling the world.

"I hope if the League ever should be formed Woodrow Wilson will be its first President.

"But I see no reason to believe that, as President of the world, he could keep us out of war any more than he did as President of the United States.

"I pronounce it a crime to suggest that a single American boy be taken from his home and assigned to police duty in far-off lands.

"I would never let any foreign power have a say as to the size of our army or our navy.

"I denounce this scheme as the absolute denial of democracy. I defy anybody to disprove the assertion that it is the most complete autocracy the world has ever known.

"I hold that the nation affords the only hope for democracy and that patriotism is the bulwark of the nation. I stand for Woodrow Wilson when, before his head was turned, he said: 'I am one of those who absolutely reject the trustee theory, the guardianship theory. . . . I suspect that the people of the United States understand their own interests better than any group of men in the confines of the country understand them.'

Stands with Roosevelt.

"I stand with Theodore Roosevelt, who in his last message to the American people declared: 'Any man who says he is an American, but something else also, isn't an American at all. We have room for but one flag, the American flag, and this excludes the red flag, which symbolizes all wars against liberty and civilization just as much as it excludes any foreign flag of a nation to which we are hostile. We have room for but one soul loyalty, and that is loyalty to the American people.'

"But one soul loyalty! But one flag! Does that mean anything? It does to some. I asked a crippled soldier from the Argonne Forest if he had visions of ideals in his dreams during the great battle. He looked at me dazed for an instant, then flushed to the roots of his hair and replied evenly: 'I fought for my country and my flag, Sir.'

"But a new banner has appeared. It blows in the breezes off the shores of England. It is the new International flag. It is simple and quite beautiful. I have a photograph of it—a blue stripe between two white stripes. What they symbolize I do not know.

"This flag here over my head was adopted by the Continental Congress in 1777, one hundred and forty-two years ago. The first one was the product of the nimble fingers of that sturdy little patriot, Betsy Ross. Its first public appearance was over Dorchester Heights, and, when it was raised, George Washington stood uncovered at the foot of the pole. It has waved over since in its spotless beauty and untarnished glory. It has symbolized during all these years but one emotion: 'My country, my whole country, and nothing but my country.' Shall it be lowered row—lowered so much as the fraction of an inch?

"Under which flag, gentlemen? Under which flag? Are not you, too, Americans?"

UKRAINIANS FIGHT WAY INTO CITY OF PRZEMYSL

Also Reported to Have Occupied Suburbs of Lemberg, Which Is in Ruins.

LONDON, March 17, (Associated Press.)—Ukrainian troops have entered Przemysl, according to a German wireless dispatch. The Poles are still in the northwestern part of the town.

The Ukrainians are also in the suburbs of Lemberg and along the whole Przemysl-Lemberg line, traffic here being completely stopped.

BERLIN, March 16.—A report from Upper Silesia says that Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, is faced with total destruction because of the Ukrainian bombardment of the city.

Large portions of Lemberg already are in ruins or are burning. Numerous casualties are reported to have occurred.

FRENCH IN FRANKFORT; BRITISH MOVE EAST

Berlin Learns That Allies Have Enlarged Bridgehead Areas of Occupation.

BERLIN, March 15, (Associated Press.)—British and French forces, according to reports received here, have advanced their outposts from the limits of their present bridgeheads at Cologne and Mainz, respectively. The French are reported to have penetrated into the corporate limits of Frankfort.

A special dispatch from Frankfort to the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says that the French, in advancing to Frankfort, have occupied the Ridda bridge across the Main, in the western part of the suburb of Rodelheim. The French are said to have posted notices saying that the passage was closed to all traffic.

Another report says that the authorities of Remscheid, northeast of Cologne, and Kronenburg, northwest of Remscheid, have forwarded a protest to the German Government at Weimar, and also to the German armistice commission against the occupancy of the towns by British forces.

The Daily Mail of London on Saturday printed a dispatch from its correspondent with the British Army to the effect that acute unrest prevailed in the whole Westphalian industrial region. The correspondent said that it probably would be necessary to enlarge the British bridgehead in that direction.

Frankfort is just east of the French bridgehead centred on Mainz. Remscheid and Kronenburg are in the Westphalian industrial district between Elberfeld and Düsseldorf. They are a few miles outside the limits of the British bridgehead.

BEAT VON ARNIM TO DEATH.

Peasants Take Life of Noted General Who Fired at Them.

LONDON, March 16.—General Count Sixt von Arnim, Commander of the German army in Flanders during a large part of the war, has been beaten to death by peasants at Asch, Bohemia, according to a Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

It is said that General von Arnim shot at peasants gathering firewood on his property and that the mob invaded and pillaged his chateau after killing him.

The little town of Asch, where General von Arnim was murdered, is the most western community in Bohemia, and one of the most beautiful, being situated on the uplands in the angle of the frontiers of Saxony and Bavaria, the mountains of the Erz Gebirge and the Bohmer Wald.

All this country has been made known to American readers through the late Count's English kinswoman, the Countess August von Arnim (née Beauchamp,) in her books "Elizabeth and her German Garden," "The Solitary Summer," &c. After her husband's death in 1910 she returned to her London home and, during the war worked for the British Government.

General Sixt von Arnim commanded an army bracketed with the Fourth under the Duke of Württemberg, in the Flanders campaigns of 1915-16-17, as a natural sequel to leading the first German Corps (the Fourth) into Belgium. After the evacuation of Brussels by the Belgian army, Aug. 20, 1914, von Arnim governed the capital until relieved on orders from Berlin on Aug. 30, and sent to the front.

Von Arnim was born in the Rhine Province in 1855, and educated at Coblenz, where the American Third Army now is. He took part in the war of 1870 as an officer of the Fourth Grenadiers and was severely wounded at Metz. His promotion to Corps Commander in 1908 was rapid. From that year until he was put under the Duke of Württemberg in October, 1914, as head of an army, he was shifted from one corps headquarters to another.

KAISER SAWS 1,000TH TREE.

Would Have Earned $30 at the Union Rate of Wages.

AMERONGEN, Holland, March 15, (Associated Press.) — Former Emperor William today completed sawing into logs his thousandth tree since he took refuge at Count von Bentinck's castle here last Fall.

From the thousandth tree a few logs were converted into souvenirs of the achievement, and marked in red ink with the inscription, "W. 2." These were presented to members of the Bentinck family and to those who have assisted the ex-Emperor in his work during the last ten weeks.

As he was completing his task a young Countess took a snap shot of Herr Hohenzollern and his assistants, Dr. Förster and Captain von Iseman, together with the young gardener who adjusts the logs on the bench for the ex-ruler to saw them. The picture included the ex-Empress, who was reading a newspaper nearby.

Expert sawyers of the neighborhood compute the value of the wages which Herr Hohenzollern would have earned if he had been paid at the trade union rate at about $30 for the whole period, or an average of 50 cents per working day, which usually consists of three hours.

FAIL TO PLEASE SOLDIERS.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

COBLENZ, March 16.—There has been a good deal of complaint recently about the character of entertainment furnished for the soldiers of the Army of Occupation. This does not mean complaint about those in charge of the entertainment here, but about the skill of the entertainers now sent over.

I sat the other night in a crowded hut just north of Coblenz on the left bank of the Rhine. There were perhaps 900 boys there when the show started at 8 o'clock. A woman got up and gave those homesick boys a lecture on the blessings they enjoyed. Some left during her talk. Others when she finished. Then a young lady, with perfectly good intentions, informed the boys that she knew they liked ragtime, but that she didn't know any ragtime, and so would give them something else. She did, and the first part of her remarks showed that she had the correct idea of the psychology of her audience. When she had finished, another young lady played a piece on the violin. When the classical selection was poorly and mechanically rendered, the show finished with about 300 in the hall.

The need for entertainment was never greater than now, when the boys haven't overmuch to occupy their minds except thoughts of going home, and as long as they have to stay it would be a relief to have good entertainment to take their thoughts off the subject for a while.

AMERICANS TRAP AND KILL RED FORCE

Turn Machine Guns on Them in North Russian Village Enemy Thought Was Deserted.

BIG VICTORY WON BY LETTS

ARCHANGEL, March 15, (Associated Press.)—The futile attack which the Bolsheviki delivered yesterday on the allied and American forces comprised the first serious attempt to cut the line of communications of the Dvina and Vaga columns. The attempt was not only frustrated, but the Bolshevist forces suffered a severe defeat and heavy losses.

Moving from the Kadish-Tarezvo sector, the 1st Battalion of the 6th Soviet Regiment, 500 strong, attacked at 1:45 o'clock in the afternoon the allied positions in the village of Gorka, which is twenty-five miles north of Beresnik, at the junction of the Vaga and the Dvina. The American-Russian detachment at Gorka was well intrenched and it decisively repulsed the enemy, capturing five prisoners and five machine guns during the fighting. After the attack the bodies of fifty-seven Bolsheviki were found. The allied force suffered only one casualty, a man wounded.

The Vaga sector, in the vicinity of Kitsa, is quiet, as are the other fronts.

American officers who returned today from the Vaga front declared that exceedingly heavy losses were inflicted on the Bolsheviki last week. They related one particular instance of such losses to the correspondent. It occurred after the enemy had razed with artillery fire nearly all the blockhouses in Vistavka. All the defensive troops withdrew, with the exception of a squad of Americans who lay concealed in a partially destroyed blockhouse, with machine guns.

The enemy scouts advanced and were permitted to cut the barbed-wire entanglement. On doing this they shouted back to their comrades that the village had been abandoned. When the first column of the Bolsheviki walked unsuspectingly up to the entanglements the Americans inside the blockhouse turned their machine guns loose and mowed down the entire enemy party. After this the defensive forces went back into Vistavka.

Of the total of thirty-six Americans listed as missing since the beginning of hostilities on this front it has been reported that ten are prisoners in the Bolshevist Hospital at Velsk. This information was given an American Red Cross field worker who questioned Bolshevist deserters on the Vaga front.

COPENHAGEN, March 17. — Lettish troops have advanced toward Mitau and have captured the towns of Kandau and Zabeln, according to an official statement issued by the Lettish headquarters. The advance continues, the statement says, and the Bolsheviki in Northwestern Courland are retiring in panic.

A later official communication says:

"Tukkum, sixty miles from Riga, has been captured. The Bolshevist retreat in the whole of North Courland has been cut off. Lettish troops have reached Blieden in the centre of North Courland."

A dispatch received here from Berlin quotes Libau advices to the effect that the Bolsheviki have been seriously defeated in the district between Kovno and Vilna, and that the important railroad running from Koehedary to Schaulen has been captured.

STOCKHOLM, Sunday, March 16.—The Lettish offensive in the Mitau region is developing successfully, the Letts having captured Shagory, Grenzhof, Weltenfeld, and Alt Autz.

The Lettish War Minister has left the English military mission at Libau and has gone to the front, according to a Libau dispatch received here.

The Siberian Army after strong attacks on the Bolsheviki, occupied the City of Ufa on March 13, according to information received from Omak yesterday by the Russian Information Bureau here.

The dispatch added that the Siberian Army had taken a large amount of booty and that the retreating Bolshevist troops were in danger of being surrounded.

The people of Ufa, which had been in Bolshevist hands since Jan. 20, were found to be in a deplorable condition, according to the dispatch.

WAR VETERANS ORGANIZING.

Americans in France Form Temporary Body—Convention Here.

PARIS, March 17.—The representatives of the American Expeditionary Force who are meeting in Paris to form a society of the veterans of the great war continued their session today, and adopted a tentative constitution, which will be in force for the troops in France until a national convention provides a permanent constitution.

A committee was appointed to confer with the British and French Veterans' Associations with a view to international organization. One of the objects will be to perpetuate peace.

The three days' caucus was concluded after the election of an Executive Committee, the members of which were divided equally between the enlisted men and the officers, with Colonel Milton Foreman of Illinois as Chairman.

This committee, working in co-operation with a similar committee named by the troops in the United States, will arrange for a national convention, to be held Nov. 11. Chicago is favored as the place, but this has not been decided. Delegates will be elected for States and counties.

It was decided to propose as the name of the organization "the American Legion."

The Executive Committee will meet here on April 7 to consider further plans for the convention.

SINN FEINER ESCAPES.

Barton Gets Away — A Dummy Found in His Cell.

DUBLIN, March 17. — Another Sinn Fein member of the House of Commons, Mr. Barton, representing East Wicklow, has escaped from the Mount Joy Prison in Dublin. The wardens found a dummy in his bed and the window bar sawn through.

Mr. Barton is a large land owner. He formerly was an officer in the Dublin Fusiliers but quit the army and joined the Sinn Feiners.

Red Cross Casualty a New York Man

A cable message received yesterday by the American Red Cross established the fact that one of the organization's workers dead of typhus in Athens was not Dr. Samuel J. Walker of Chicago, as reported Saturday, but Lieutenant Edward Walker, whose identity has not been definitely established at headquarters here. The only Lieutenant Edward Walker on the Red Cross personnel list, it was stated, went to France last April, giving a local hotel as his address, and there is no record of his transfer to the Balkans.

Lieut. Gov. Walker Taken Ill.

TROY, N. Y., March 17.—Lieut. Gov. Harry Walker was taken ill while delivering an address at a Friends of St. Patrick dinner in this city this evening.

His illness is not serious. He was attended by Major F. H. Noonan, post surgeon of the Watervliet Arsenal.

James B. Wallace, private secretary to the Lieutenant Governor, who also attended the dinner, announced the official's indisposition was the result of stress of work.

PERSHING ADDRESSES 42D.

COBLENZ, March 16, (Associated Press.)—General Pershing said good-bye to the boys of the 42d Division today. In a farewell address to the troops of the Rainbow unit, who are preparing to start for home the first week in April, the American Commander in Chief wished them all good luck in the peaceful occupations into which they would go on the other side of the Atlantic.

The inspection and review of the division took place in a great field near Remagenon, on the west bank of the Rhine. General Pershing spoke to more than 20,000 after the Rainbow Division had passed the reviewing stand in massed formation. From the heights across the river hundreds of German civilians assembled and watched the review through field glasses. General Pershing spoke from the rear end of a wagon, with the soldiers gathered about him.

Before his address the Commander in Chief presented one Congressional Medal of Honor, two Distinguished Service Medals, and forty-six Distinguished Service Crosses to officers and men of the division. The Medal of Honor was pinned by General Pershing on Corporal Sidney Manning of the 167th Infantry for leading his platoon during an attack on the Ourcq after its commanders had fallen. Despite wounds he had suffered, Manning led the men forward and gained and held an important position in the face of terrific enemy fire. All but seven members of the platoon were killed or wounded. Manning himself was wounded nine times in this attack. When the United States entered the war Manning was a farmer boy near Brewton, Ala.

OSBORNE ASSAILS O'LEARY.

Declares That Defendant's Every Act Was in Interest of Germany.

When the trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary and Adolph M. Stern for alleged violation of the Espionage act was resumed before Federal Judge A. N. Hand yesterday the Court announced that eighteen hours would be allowed for the summing up, nine hours for each, the Government and the defense. James W. Osborne, for the Government, talked the greater part of the day.

Mr. Osborne stated that from the time the war began O'Leary's every act was in the interests of Germany, that there was no Irish question in the case, that O'Leary always had plenty of money, and that just before he ran away he gave his wife more than $13,000. He declared that O'Leary had disregarded the request of George Creel, head of the Bureau of Public Information, not to discuss certain subjects bearing on the war, and that the forbidden subjects were fully discussed in "Bull."

Mr. Osborne insisted that the evidence presented by the Government completely established the guilt of the defendants.

Arthur O'Leary, counsel of the American Truth Society, which Jeremiah founded, and which is also a defendant, followed Mr. Osborne. He told the jury that great efforts had been made by the Government to convict Jeremiah, that the Federal prosecutors had spent perhaps $500,000 of the purpose.

Mr. O'Leary will resume his summing up this morning.

BEGNI TELLS OF FIGHT.

Publisher Says He Was Struck and Defended Himself at the Ritz.

Ernesto Begni, a French publisher, of 12 East Fifty-sixth Street, gave yesterday his version of the circumstances leading to a fist fight between himself and Thomas B. Scott, a retired business man of Miller Place, Long Island City, which took place in the Palm Room of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on the evening of March 6, and on account of which Mr. Scott was summoned to answer a charge of disorderly conduct in the Yorkville Court on March 14.

According to Mr. Begni, he was seated in the Ritz with Count Robert Cahen d'Anvers, a French artillery Captain and a member of the French High Commission here, and Count de Geoffre de Chabrignac, also an officer in the French artillery, when Mr. Scott and Morris McKim Pryor, a banker of 104 East Eighty-fifth Street, entered the room, accompanied by two women. Mr. Pryor came over to speak to the party of Frenchmen, when Mr. Scott intervened, trying to persuade his companion not to talk with Mr. Begni.

Words followed, according to the publisher, in the course of which Mr. Scott threatened to strike him. Mr. Begni told him to go ahead, and when Mr. Scott hit him leaped to his feet and struck back, hitting his assailant in the face. The two men were separated, and the warrant for disorderly conduct was sworn out by the publisher. In court, said Mr. Begni, Magistrate Isaac Ringle persuaded the combatants to shake hands and suspended sentence on Mr. Scott.

FOES OF RUSSIAN REDS ASK FOR RECOGNITION

Urge Peace Conference to Help Start Provisional Regime to Prevent Anarchy.

PARIS, March 17.—The Russian Committee in Paris today submitted to the Peace Conference a communication, signed by Sergius Sazonoff, Foreign Minister of the Omsk Government; Prince Lvoff, former Premier; Nicholas Tschaikovsky, President of the Provisional Government of North Russia, and Basile Maklakoff, Ambassador to France, which asked the Conference to adopt resolutions declaring that all questions concerning the boundaries of Russia, as they existed in 1914, excepting Poland, should not be decided without the consent of the Russian people.

The communication also requested that questions concerning the status of the nationalities included within Russia should not be decided without the approval of the Russian people. The committee asked that the Peace Conference assist these nationalities to organize against anarchy by providing a provisional régime to meet financial, economic, and military needs.

For this purpose recognition was sought for the de facto Governments which, the committee said, had been inspired by democratic principles and supported by their populations.

RENNER AUSTRIAN PREMIER.

New Cabinet Formed at Vienna—Steps Toward Socialization.

COPENHAGEN, March 16.—The new German-Austrian Government, according to a telegram from Vienna, includes Dr. Renner as Chancellor, Herr Jodofink as Vice Chancellor, Herr Schumpeter as Minister of Finance, Dr. Julius as Minister of War, and Otto Bauer as Minister of Socialization. Herr Bauer also continues temporarily as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The National Assembly at Vienna has passed bills relative to Parliament and the State Government, and also approved a measure calling for the socialization of the latter.

Nine everyday Business Errors which might impoverish your family

A man who leaves $50,000 may never have turned over $10,000 of it at any one time.

Now, suppose he wills his property in bulk.

He thrusts on his perhaps inexperienced heirs a far more serious personal investment problem than he himself ever faced.

This man would not have thought of burdening his wife with his last large investment problem. He would not have dreamt of consulting his sophomore son on this or that investment security. Would you rely on your boy or your wife?

More likely you have often cautioned your family against making one or more of the everyday business errors we list below.

We recommend that you look over this list. It suggests some of the dangers ahead, and may prompt your interest in the estate handling services which we offer.

Perhaps there has not been in the present generation a time when sound, careful, business management was more essential to the financial well-being of the family left with money.

9 everyday business errors

1. Neglecting to get receipts when bills are paid in cash.
2. Neglecting to keep receipts where they can be located.
3. Neglecting to check up items in current bills.
4. Inability to keep checkbook balanced.
5. Too easy optimism in starting credit accounts.
6. Careless handling of valuable business papers.
7. Signing documents without knowing their contents.
8. Tendency to establish living expenses which would exceed income and eat into savings.
9. Tendency to invest money on dangerous hearsay — without proper knowledge of facts.

YOU can insure sound, careful business management for your estate by appointing the Mercantile Trust & Deposit Company executor and trustee under your will.

To thoroughly cover this situation our Board of Directors has created a permanent TRUST COMMITTEE, selected from its own personnel. All estate investments are made under the constant direction of this Committee—a most important provision.

The above business arrangement in the interest of your heirs can be made very simply. The fees are fixed by law. We shall be glad to explain any details in person.

of Sales Ability

A tremendous program of expansion, together with the recent unprecedented increase in passenger car sales, makes it necessary for the first time to go out of the organization to fill responsible sales positions.

The Corporation is of first magnitude and will only be interested in considering men of whose sales ability (not necessarily in the automobile line) there can be no doubt, and who will be satisfied, for their permanent advancement, to ally themselves with and be governed by the policies of one of America's most notable selling organizations. Write "The Sales Manager," 13th floor, 171 Madison Avenue, or 'phone Murray Hill 4284 for an appointment. All communications will be considered confidential.

STEEN CHANGES PLAN TO RAISE $1,000,000

Announces Proposed Incorporation Today of a New "Association to Fight Bolshevism."

COBB ISSUES A STATEMENT

Withdraws His Name from Appeal for Funds—Will Resign if Steen Does Not.

The All American Association, which is to be the successor of the All American Anti-Bolsheviki Campaign, which was organized under the auspices of the so-called National Association of City Editors to fight Bolshevism, to finance which the promoters sought to collect a fund of $1,000,000, will be incorporated at Albany today. This announcement was made at the headquarters of the National Association of City Editors, in suite 109 of the Waldorf-Astoria, yesterday afternoon by Clyde P. Steen, President, who said that the new organization would supersede the old one in the "fight to kill Bolshevism in the United States, and keep it killed."

With reference to the $1,000,000 fund, which was the subject of an article in last week's issue of The Editor and Publisher, Mr. Steen said that a grave mistake had been made in the manner in which the appeal for that fund originally was issued. An unauthorized office employe, he said, had sent out the soliciting telegram which purported to be signed by Myron T. Herrick, Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert, William E. Lewis of The Morning Telegraph, Irvin S. Cobb, Roy L. McCardell and Mr. Steen. Mr. Steen said that the use of the names of these men was unauthorized at the time and that he lost no time in apologizing to them as far as it was possible to do so, rectifying the error.

The original All-American Anti-Bolsheviki Campaign organization had the indorsement, Steen asserted, of the Governors of forty-seven States, Cardinal Gibbons, Otto H. Kahn, Charles Evans Hughes, Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle, Senator James W. Wadsworth, Senator Lee S. Overman, Theodore P. Shonts, President Underwood of the Erie Railroad, Senator William E. Borah, Senator Philander C. Knox, Cleveland H. Dodge, Rabbi Rudolph Grossman, Representative Nicholas Longworth, Archbishop Dougherty of Philadelphia, Douglas Fairbanks, and scores of other men of equal prominence in all parts of the Union. All of these men, he said, had been asked to serve in similar capacities in the new all-American association, which would be known as the "Three A's" Association. They were now being notified, and it would be several days before the association would be in a position to announce whether or not they had accepted the appointments.

Steen Discusses the Fund.

At his office in the Waldorf-Astoria Mr. Steen talked yesterday of the $1,000,000 fund and of the new organization to fight the Bolsheviki, which, he said, would officially come into existence today. In answer to a question as to the amount of money collected to date Mr. Steen said that it was "very much minus one million dollars." He said that only two contributions, each for $10, resulted from the telegraphic appeal and added that because of the unauthorized manner in which those gifts were solicited the checks were returned to the donors. He did not tell how much money, if any, had since been collected to finance the campaign "to provide funds to establish a permanent organization to kill Bolshevism in the United States and keep it killed."

"What is the present status of the anti-Bolsheviki organization?" Mr. Steen was asked.

"That work," he replied, "will be immediately taken over by the All-American Association, the papers for the incorporation of which are now on the way to the Secretary of State in Albany. The incorporators are the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, the well known Methodist clergyman; Mark T. McKee of Detroit, who is President of the Patriotic Industrial Conference; Newton W. Gilbert, a former Lieutenant Governor of Indiana; Colonel William H. Walsh of Philadelphia; Grant Whitslar of Cleveland, Ohio, and myself.

"The new organization, which will supersede the old one and will be entirely independent of the National City Editors' Association, will fight Bolshevism in all possible legal ways, that is through advertisements, literature of all kinds, speakers, and so forth. It will also seek to develop a finer spirit of Americanism on the part of all people, native as well as foreign, in this country."

In reply to a question Mr. Steen said that there were no New York City editors in the association.

"None as yet has been asked to join," he said. "This is primarily an organization of city editors from the smaller cities, particularly those of the Middle West. When we get the organization in permanent shape we shall probably ask the New Yorkers to join. The fact that they have not been invited is, however, no reflection upon them. We hope to get them in later on."

"How much of the $1,000,000 fund has been collected to date?"

"It is very much minus so far as the $1,000,000 is concerned," replied Mr. Steen.

"Will the City Editors' Association take part in the fight of the Three As against Bolshevism?"

"Only in a co-operative way. We shall probably be the substitute for press agents. It is our hope to develop what I may term a 'model form of publicity.'"

A list of members of the two committees was given out which it was said were identified with the old anti-Bolsheviki organization. This list, which contained the names of the Governors of most of the States, included also the names of leading men throughout the nation. All of these men have been asked to serve on similar committees in the All-American Association.

Statement by I. S. Cobb.

Irvin S. Cobb, issued the following statement yesterday, with reference to the use of his name in the telegraphic appeal for the $1,000,000.

"On my return to New York several weeks ago after a lecture tour I was handed a letter, which had been acknowledged by my secretary, stating that I had been elected to honorary membership in the National Association of City Editors, which I have reason to believe is a reputable organization. A great many friends of mine, who are city editors belong to it. I wrote a note to Mr. Steen, the President, acknowledging the letter, and thanking him for the honor.

"I find now that my name has appeared on the letter head of a committee having in charge the collection of a million-dollar fund to fight Bolshevism, along with the names of Roy McCardell, Myron T. Herrick, Murray Hulbert, William E. Lewis, and others.

"I understand that some of these gentlemen have resigned from the association. I had no knowledge that my name was to be used in connection with this fund, and it was done without my sanction or authorization, and while I appreciate membership in the National City Editors' Association, I have written a letter asking to have my name withdrawn from the letter head, and stating that I will resign unless the resignation of Mr. Steen is tendered and accepted."

KROH EXPLAINS HIS VIEWS.

Would Eliminate City Editors' Association from Anti-Bolshevism Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, March 17.—Hubert R. Kroh, President of the Pennsylvania Chapter of the National Association of City Editors, at the headquarters in the General Forbes Hotel today discussed the association's effort to raise $1,000,000 to fight Bolshevism in the United States.

"It is hardly correct to say that I have asked for an investigation," he said, "but I am urging the Compaign Committee, in charge of the raising of money to fight Bolshevism, to drop all use of the name of the National Association of City Editors, and also to discontinue attempts to get money in Pennsylvania and West Virginia while the Campaign Fund Committee is in its present state of disorganization.

"Clyde P. Steen, President of the National Association of City Editors, telegraphed me on Feb. 16 that the campaign was authorized by the Directors of the association, and for me to take full charge of Pennsylvania and West Vorginia. Correspondence with the Directors failed to support this view, and Mr. Steen in a letter to the Directors last Monday admitted that he had not taken them into his confidence.

"Senator Warren G. Harding on Feb. 28 suggested, in fact directed, that a strong Finance Committee be appointed to take charge of the funds. When I got to New York on March 4 I found the executive staff of the Campaign Committee unwilling to have such a committee appointed. On my return to Pittsburgh I telegraphed to Mr. Steen that either three Directors of the National Association of City Editors should be appointed temporary custodians of the funds or the name of the association should be dropped entirely. This was predicated upon the fact that the campaign was not authorized by the association."

NEW YORK IRISHMEN HONOR PATRON SAINT

Wounded Veterans of 69th and Sinn Fein Banners Feature St. Patrick's Day Parade.

REVIEWED BY GOVERNOR

New Archbishop Sees March Up Fifth Avenue and Attends Service at Cathedral.

Many thousands of New York Irishmen marched up Fifth Avenue yesterday in honor of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland. It was a perfect day for a parade and the street was lined with sympathetic crowds, who applauded the long lines of societies, the returned and wounded soldiers, and the Sinn Fein banners, urging self-determination for Ireland, which were a feature of this year's parade.

Not a single unpleasant incident marred the celebration. A little more than two hours was required for the parade to pass a given point. It was a parade of men in khaki, in old Gaelic costumes, in the gold and feathers of Irish societies, and in ordinary civilian garb. There were soldiers of the A. E. F. in line, most of them veterans of the 165th Infantry, the New York unit of the Rainbow Division, which as it entered the service was made up of the old 69th Regiment reinforced with drafts from the 7th, 12th, 71st, and 23d Infantry commands of the old National Guard Division of New York. And after the veterans of Château-Thierry and other great battles of the war who survived sound in limb had passed there came six automobiles filled with veterans who had given an arm or a leg or had been otherwise incapacitated as a result of combat with the Germans.

The reviewing stand was erected to the south of the entrance of the Cathedral. The place of honor among the reviewing officers was given to Archbishop Hayes, the new head of the archdiocese of New York, and to Governor Alfred E. Smith. The reviewing party marched to the stand a few minutes before 3 o'clock and shortly before the parade got underway. Archbishop Hayes marched with Police Commissioner Enright, Governor Smith with Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, Mayor Hylan with Edward E. McCall, and William Randolph Hearst with Grover Whalen, the Mayor's Secretary. In the reviewing stand as guests, among others, were Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division; Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall; Borough President Connolly of Queens, John Devoy, Mrs. Smith, the wife of the Governor, and Captain James T. Finn and Lieutenant Thomas J. McCarthy of the 165th Infantry.

It was just 3 o'clock when the parade, which formed with Forty-third Street as the mobilization point, got under way. A plateau of mounted police led the way and were followed by the band of the 69th Regiment. The band was massed full strength, and it played "Killarney" as it swept past the reviewing stand. After the band came the new 69th Regiment, and then the veterans of the 165th Infantry. There were six platoons of them, and great and sincere as was the tribute paid to the veterans, it did not equal that which greeted the maimed heroes who rode in automobiles.

Behind the veterans came the still older veterans of the Fighting Sixty-ninth, including a smattering few who had fought with the colors in the civil war. They were all in civilian garb and they, too, got a warm reception. Next came the blue clad sailors of Fordham University and after them the Catholic Protectory Band, followed by ex-Justice John W. Goff, the Grand Marshal of the parade, who, on the eve of the President's second departure for France, presented to him in the name of the recent Irish convention, held in Philadelphia, the petition asking his influence in behalf of Irish recognition at the Peace Conference.

Judge Goff was in an automobile. No one rode with him. Around him was wrapped the green, yellow, and white colors of the Sinn Fein. It was in the form of a great ribbon that almost covered his shirtfront. The aged jurist was cheered as he passed the grandstand, and Judge Goff, his white hair waving in the breeze, bowed his acknowledgments.

One of the first banners borne by the civilian divisions read, "No people must be forced under a sovereignty under which it has no desire to live," and the name signed to this legend was that of President Woodrow Wilson.

Another banner bore this inscription: "England—Damn your concessions. We want our country."

This banner was borne by two girls wearing the tri-colored sash of the Sinn Fein, while underneath the banner marched a tiny girl who waved aloft an equally tiny American flag.

The Carmelite Friends of Irish Freedom were led by Mgr. Magennis, the former head of the national organization of that society. One of the platoons in this column carried a banner which said that as a result of British rule the population of Ireland has decreased from more than 8,000,000 in 1841 to less than 4,500,000 at the present time.

Another of the organizations displayed a great white banner on which was inscribed:

"If Ireland is left to the mercy of the oppressor while the Poles, Czechs, Finns, Belgians, and Serbs are given their freedom, then the world will not have been made 'safe for democracy.'"

Still another banner read, "There will be no peace while Ireland is ruled by a foreign force," while still another bore the inscription, "If there is right and justice in the world, then Ireland should have its share."

There was one other banner that attracted much attention. It read:

"A true American is a true Sinn Feiner."

Still another banner declared that Ireland is being crushed by a "military despotism" which is keeping "Ireland's cry for freedom from the world."

One of the marching organizations was made up of friends of Jeremiah O'Leary, now on trial in the Federal Court charged with having entered into a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the United States. This column carried many banners, most of them referring to O'Leary. One read "Perjury, Bribery, and Persecution versus Jeremiah O'Leary"; another was, "We demand the release of Jeremiah O'Leary, and all political prisoners;" a third accused the newspapers of suppressing the truth about O'Leary, while a fourth placed the blame for O'Leary's predicament on the British Government.

One of the spectacular features of the parade was the Irish cowboy contingent from Idaho. These men were in the leather and buckskin of the plains and were accompanied by a coach drawn by four mules, which was intended to illustrate the means of travel when the West was a real wild West. In this contingent was a young negro riding a donkey who caused a lot of merriment all along the line.

The last column in line—the Irish Foresters—passed the reviewing stand a few minutes before 5 o'clock. The parade ended at 120th Street, where Grand Marshal Goff and his aid were the reviewing officials. From the point of demobilization many of the marchers proceeded to Sulzer's Harlem River Casino to take part in the St. Patrick's Day festivities of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

The annual St. Patrick's Day solemn high mass was celebrated with impressive military and ecclesiastical ceremonies in St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning. Archbishop Hayes was seated in front of the archiepiscopal throne, which he will not occupy until after his formal installation as Archbishop of New York today. The new Archbishop was attended by the Rev. William Farley, the military Vicar General, and by Father William F. Hughes of St. Gregory's Church.

The mass was celebrated by the Right Rev. Joseph F. Mooney of the Sacred Heart Church, assisted by the Rev. Father Richard O. Hughes of Yonkers as Deacon, and the Rev. Father Frank C. Campbell of Staten Island, as Sub-Deacon.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Father Joseph P. Dineen, Chaplain of the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Among the dinners last evening in honor of the day were those of the St. Patrick Society of Brooklyn, at the Hotel Bossert; Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, at the Elks' Club, and Ireland's Sons and Daughters, at Stauch's, Coney Island.

GOV. SMITH AT CHURCH SHOW.

Sees the Pickaninny Minstrels at St. James's Entertainment.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, paid a visit last night to St. James's Church house, James Street, near New Bowery, where a St. Patrick's Evening entertainment was given by the Pickaninny Minstrels from St. Patrick's Cathedral parish. When the Governor was recognized upon entering, he and his family being members of the parish, he received an ovation. Father Vincent De Paul McGean, the pastor, addressed the gathering of about 1,000 and then called upon the Governor to say something.

The Governor made a brief speech in which he said he had dropped all other engagements in order to be present at the entertainment.

FRIENDLY SONS GIVE OVATION TO O'RYAN

Cheer 27th Division's Commander at Their Greatest St. Patrick's Day Dinner.

WANT IRELAND MADE FREE

Dowling and Conboy Among the Speakers Urging Action by the Peace Conference.

The one hundred and thirty-fifth anniversary dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick brought together in the Hotel Commodore last night the largest gathering of Irishmen and their guests ever present at such a function. The 1,200 who gathered in the Grand Ballroom of the new hotel were bubbling over with enthusiasm that seized every opportunity for expression.

There was a warm demonstration when Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling presented Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division, as "America's best representative of the type of patriotic, fighting Irishman." General O'Ryan acknowledged with a bow and a broad smile the ovation with which the diners, springing to their feet, heralded him, but he made no speech.

A moment later the throng rose again with every evidence of cordial warmth when Justice Dowling presented the "spiritual leader of most of us present," Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, recently elevated to the Archbishopric made vacant by the death of Cardinal Farley.

Once more the crowd arose when Justice Dowling presented as another distinguished Irishman Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, who replaced the late Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell as commander of the Department of the East.

The room in which the dinner was held was decorated with American flags, with here and there a display of either the ancient standards of the Emerald Isle or the modern flag of the Irish republic. The dais was aglitter with tiny lights in red, white, and blue and green, which twinkled among green ferns and cast a glow over clusters of red carnations. Those who sat there, with the organizations they represented, were:

Edward L. Partridge, M. D., Deputy Governor Society of Colonial Wars; Colonel W. W. Ladd., First Vice President Sons of the Revolution; William Dennistown Murphy, President St. Nicholas Society; Alec C. Humphreys, President St. Andrew's Society; Lieut. Col. William L. Hallahan, U. S. A.; the Rev. James F. Houlihan, U. S. A.; Victor Herbert, John Proctor Clarke, Stephen Farrelly, Martin Conboy, the Rev. John J. Brady, Morgan J. O'Brien, Mr. Marcel Knecht, the Most Rev. P. J. Hayes, D. D., Archbishop-elect of New York; Victor J. Dowling, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, U. S. A.; the Rev. Peter E. Hoey, James A. O'Gorman, Irvin S. Cobb, John McCormack, Mgr. John J. Dunn, Edward E. McCall, the Rev. Canon George F. Nelson, the Rev. George E. Waring, Clarence W. Bowen, First Vice President New England Society; Lloyd Roberts, Steward St. David's Society; Seymour Van Santvoord, President Holland Society of New York; William A. Barber, President New York Southern Society; T. N. Jarvis, President Canadian Society.

The speeches divided themselves between praise and thanksgiving for America's share in the allied victory over Germany and argument that the Peace Conference, if it were to be true to the war aims of the nations and notably to the pronunciations of President Wilson, must grant the right of self determination to Ireland.

Justice Dowling devoted himself to this argument, insisting that it was unfair that new claims on the part of new nations for freedom should have the attention of the world, that the conferees should listen to Poland, one of the two ancient nations clamoring for freedom and justice, and should be deaf to the other ancient struggler—Ireland. He said that no cause of freedom ever had triumphed without the participation in its battles of such Irishmen as had opportunity to share them and that no lasting peace would come out of the Paris deliberations if Ireland's woes went unheard and unheeded.

Martin Conboy, who was New York's director of the draft, devoted himself to an analytical argument to the same effect, attempting to show that many of President Wilson's utterances could only be interpreted as entitling Ireland to self-determination.

Irvin S. Cobb spoke in humorous vein and Marcel Knecht of the French High Commission praised the late Cardinal Farley, Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Ireland, and other distinguished Catholic prelates and concluded, speaking of the old 69th, which will parade next month with the Rainbow Division:

"St. Patrick will precede them when they pass in front of the Cathedral; he will be dressed in khaki and will wear on his breast the American medal and the French Croix de Guerre, united once more in eternal alliance."

John McCormack was unable to sing the Star-Spangled Banner, as planned, because of a cold.

NEW MODELS in HELENE CORSETS
Made exclusively for Franklin Simon & Co.

THE correct silhouette for the new season has been definitely decided. The French dressmakers and corsetieres have both agreed that it is to be straight, slender and youthful. And so mi-lady must of necessity choose her corset first if she is to correctly interpret Fashion's mandate in wearing the new modes.

Helene corsets made and designed in Paris expressly for Franklin Simon & Co. typify in the highest degree the art of fine corsetry. They show the most skilful designing which imparts the lithe graceful lines that delineate the youthful figure. And there is a corset to fit every form.

The discerning woman will at once appreciate the wonderful wear-giving fabrics, the painstaking workmanship and the novel trimmings that stamp Helene corsets as distinctly Parisian.

Of satin broche, silk broche, fine toile or coutil.

TO MAKE MILD BEER UNTIL COURTS ACT

is not limited to malt or cereal beverages containing less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume, assuming such beverage not to be in fact intoxicating; and there is nothing in such proclamation or in the proclamation of Jan. 30 to prevent the resumption of the manufacture of malt or cereal beverages which are not in fact intoxicating even though the alcoholic strength be more than one-half of 1 per cent. We know of no legal authority vested in the Commissioner of Internal Revenue or in any other executive officer to fix and determine conclusively what alcoholic content or strength shall constitute a malt beverage intoxicating within the intent of the act of Congress of Nov. 21, 1918, the test of one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol strength in the Revenue acts of 1917 and 1918 is solely for purposes of taxation.

The conclusion we have reached, therefore, is that brewers may lawfully disregard the interpretations placed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue upon the act of Nov. 21, 1918, and upon the President's proclamation above referred to in so far as such interpretation would prohibit the manufacture of malt beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. and not to exceed 2.75 per cent. of alcohol by weight or 3.3 per cent. by volume.

It is proper for you to bear in mind that in view of the said regulations of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue it is probable that the Government will challenge the correctness of our opinion and conclusions, and may summarily attempt or threaten to enforce the Commissioner's interpretation. In such event we advise that a suit in equity be brought to enjoin any wrongful interference with your business or arrest of your employes. The Supreme Court of the United States has clearly decided that a suit may be thus brought against a Federal officer acting, or threatening to act, in excess of his authority or under an authority not validly conferred. It seems to us reasonable to assume that, if such a suit were pending, the Government would not proceed summarily by way of seizure or arrest, but would co-operate to bring about a speedy determination by the courts of the grave question involved. You and your associates are certainly entitled to a day in court to assert your rights, as advised by counsel, and an opportunity to have them determined by the Judges.

Awaiting your further instructions, we are, yours very truly,
(Signed) ELIHU ROOT.

REVENUE BUREAU SILENT.

Officials Await Legal Authority Given by Brewers.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Officials of the Internal Revenue Bureau declined to comment officially tonight on the announced decision of New York and New Jersey brewers to resume manufacture of beer containing 2¾ per cent. alcohol pending examination of the brewers' statement of legal authority for the action.

Beer containing one-half of one per cent. or more of alcohol by volume is considered intoxicating by the Internal Revenue Bureau. Officials explained that this standard was based on a number of laws and court decisions in the past and was not an arbitrary executive ruling.

TO FIGHT DRY ORDER FIRST.

Anti-Prohibition Organization Expects Revocation by Wilson.

James Arthur Seavey, a well-known New York journalist, has been chosen as managing director of the Association Opposed to National Prohibition, according to an announcement made yesterday by the organization, the headquarters of which are at 19 West Forty-fourth Street. Mr. Seavey will lead the association's anti-prohibition campaign.

In announcing his plans yesterday, Mr. Seavey said that it was believed that before July 1 President Wilson would see the wisdom of revoking the executive order making the country bone dry on that date. After that date the organization, he added, will do all in its power to prevent the prohibition amendment from ever becoming effective. He made an appeal for voluntary speakers and organizers, especially from among the returned soldiers.

Before accepting his appointment Mr. Seavey stipulated that nobody officially connected with the association, either at its headquarters or in any of the States, should have either direct or indirect connection with the liquor business and he also made the condition that the association should be incorporated under the laws of the State of New York. These stipulations, it was said, were promptly accepted.

OMIT PROHIBITION JUBILEE.

New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference Ignores Subject.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, March 17.—The twenty-third annual New Jersey Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Ocean Grove came to a close today and not during all the week was the widely advertised jubilee over national prohibition held nor did the clergymen by resolution call upon the Legislature to defeat the Barrett resolution that has for its purpose the rejection of prohibition by New Jersey. The failure of the conference in this respect is attributed to Edward J. Handley, Clerk of the House of Assembly, an aid of James R. Nugent of Newark, the Democratic leader of New Jersey, to whom the anti-saloon forces attribute the failure of the State to ratify prohibition.

Handley began a careful study of prohibition as it existed in Ocean Grove, Asbury Park, Bradley Beach, Avon, and other Monmouth County cities within a mile limit of Bradley, the camp meeting town. As a result of his survey Handley asserted that 87 per cent. of the crime committed in Monmouth County occurred in the area where prohibition has been in force for upward of forty years, and that seven out of every ten murders that have occurred in the county have taken place within the district where prohibition holds.

GIVE BOATS TO ARMY TO COAL TROOPSHIPS

REJECT HUGHES OVERTURES

Employers Offer to Deal Direct with Men on Basis of Whitney Committee Report.

To put an end to delays in coaling British ships which are acting as transports for United States soldiers, the private boat owners made an agreement yesterday to turn over to the Army and Navy Department ten of the harbor boats which are idle because of the strike.

The worst delay which has occurred so far has been in the case of the British steamship Adriatic, which should have sailed last Saturday, but will not get away before tomorrow. This big ship, which is engaged in bringing soldiers home, will lose at least four days on this trip, the lost time being partly due to the difficulties in obtaining coal and partly to the refusal of longshoremen to handle coal which has been delivered by firms against which the strike is being waged.

The private boat owners demurred against chartering the ships to the Government on the "bare boat" basis, which means that they are turned over without a Captain or crew. The boat owners have denied that their attitude has been responsible for any delay in the handling of troopships, but yesterday when the army port officers asserted that soldiers would be delayed in coming home unless more harbor craft were obtained, the boat owners waived their objections.

This concession to the Government, however, occurred simultaneously with a complication, which made the harbor situation temporarily worse than it had been before. The men employed on fourteen boats chartered to the Government by several of the large harbor boat concerns were surprised yesterday, when they were paid, to find that they were paid on the old basis which prevailed before the Railroad Administration's agreement. The men employed on tugs directly operated by the Army, Navy and Railroad Administration were paid the new scale of wages.

The special situation of these men employed on boats operated by private owners under charter to the Government was overlooked by the Government officials and union officials at the time of the settlement by the Army and Navy and Railroad Administration, and no provision was made for paying them the increased scale. Private boat owners said that there was no more reason why they should pay the new scale on boats chartered by the Government than on boats doing any other class of work, and that the concessions made by the various Government departments had no bearing on the case where the private boat owners were still hiring labor and operating craft.

These men went on strike yesterday and will confer with the army and navy officials today, and seek an arrangement whereby the Government will make good the difference in pay between the two scales or take control of the boats.

Pol Bonynge, counsel for the boat owners, received no reply yesterday to the telegrams which he sent to Washington, offering all needed equipment to the Government, but asking an assurance in return that the Government would not take advantage of this to aid the strikers. The boat owners have asserted that, since abandoning the Macy award and granting the unions' demands on behalf of all Government agencies at this port, various kinds of pressure have been exerted from Washington, with the object of bringing the boat owners to terms. While giving up the ten boats yesterday to avoid being put in a false position, as being apparently responsible for the delay in getting American soldiers home, the boat owners yesterday again rejected the overtures of Federal Conciliator James Hughes, contending that, instead of being impartial, the Government has been an ally of the strikers.

Favors Whitney Report.

Joseph H. Moran, Chairman of the New York Towboat Exchange, made the following statement:

"Federal Mediator Hughes has requested us to meet the union leaders again in a round table discussion. This we have declined to do. Innumerable conferences of similar character have already been had with no result beyond a deadlock on the eight-hour issue. We do not propose to discuss that question further. The towboat business is one which cannot be conducted within the same hours that apply in other callings. Our men actually work no more than six or seven hours a day on the average, but owing to tidal conditions they are required to be on duty for a longer period daily than in many other occupations. We are and always have been willing to compensate them for this disadvantage by the payment of a relatively higher wage.

"In private the men admit the truth and justice of our position. In public they allow their views to be misrepresented by leaders who demand the impossible. We can afford to keep our equipment tied up or moving on part time just as long as they can afford to follow incompetent leadership. Of the six union leaders only one is an actual worker.

"We are ready now, as always, to meet our men and to endeavor through conference to reach a basis of common understanding. With their co-operation, we will make an honest effort to put the Port of New York on a higher plane than has been known before. The report of the Whitley Committee is generally believed to present the most enlightened method of settling labor controversies. We are prepared to adopt the principles of that report and to permit our men to elect their own Shop Committees, or we will join with them in the creation of a central body to adjust all present and future differences, with fifty-fifty representation to employer and employe. If we knew a better plan we would, in the public interest, suggest it.

"Until the demand for an eight-hour day is definitely and publicly abandoned there will be no further conferences."

Want Settlement With Men.

The boat owners are anxious to effect a settlement directly with their men. They assert that the various moves of the Government have been apparently dictated by politics, on the principle of avoiding industrial disturbances at any cost. In spite of the fact that the commerce of New York had been hard hit in the last two weeks by the strike, and the fact that many ships have in the last few days been diverted to other harbors where they can obtain coal easily, the Board of Trade and Transportation of New York and the Merchants' Association have both adopted resolutions in support of the stand of the boat owners. At the offices of the New York Towboat Exchange it was said yesterday that many of the shipping and commercial firms which were hurt the most by the paralysis of harbor traffic had sent messages of commendation to the boat owners.

TUG IS SUNK IN FOG.

Two Ferryboats Are Damaged in Collisions—Four Hurt.

The dense fog which hung like a blanket over the harbor for several hours yesterday morning stopped the transports from reaching Hoboken and delayed the departure of the outbound foreign and coastwise steamships.

It was also responsible for the sinking of a tugboat and two accidents to the municipal ferryboats which operate between Staten Island and the Battery at a time when they were filled with workers bound for the shipyards on Shooters Island, who were unable to travel by their usual route on the steamboat Highlander on account of the fog.

The first accident occurred at 7 o'clock off Beekman Street, in the East River, when the steamboat Lexington of the Colonial Line, bound in from Providence, cut down the tug Jameson of the Arbuckle Sugar Refining Company of Brooklyn, which sunk immediately. Her crew were rescued and landed at Houston Street.

A few minutes after seven the municipal ferryboat Queens, on her way through the fog from South Ferry to St. Georges, Staten Island, collided with the freighter Waubosa, anchored south of the Statue of Liberty. The ferryboat carried away one of her boats from the davits and a portion of the overhang on the starboard side and stove in the upper part of the bow on the other vessel. Two persons standing forward on the Queens were injured by the impact. Joseph Stenno, 47 years, 402 East Seventh Street, laborer, who was taken to Staten Island Hospital with a sprained ankle, and Abraham Cohen, of 33 Allen Street, who was attended at home for lacerations of the cheek. There was considerable excitement for a few minutes until it was seen there was no cause for alarm.

Half an hour after the Queens had got to her slip at St. George and landed her crowd of 2,000 workers for the Shooters Island shipyards her sister boat, the Mayor Gaynor, also filled to the rails with ship workers, narrowly escaped hitting the freighter Waubosa, but had an accident as she was going into the slip at St. George, when the gate posts were knocked down by a broken spiling which injured two of the passengers who were standing forward waiting to get off. Samuel Cash, 20 years, a soldier, attached to Base Hospital at Fox Hills, was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, Staten Island, suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, and Samuel Barri, 31 years, a laborer, of 527 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, was removed to the same hospital suffering from injuries to the head with a probable fracture of the skull.

TROLLEY STRIKE OFF.

Company Will Receive Delegates from the Men's Organization.

The operation of trolley cars on all the lines of the Public Service Railroad Company of New Jersey affected by the strike beginning at 4 o'clock this morning, was ordered last night by officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America.

This order was issued after the strikers had voted to accept proposals brought about by the War Labor Board, under which the company agrees to receive delegations from the Amalgamated Association, and both sides refer to the War Labor Board the demand for ten hours pay for eight hours work and other demands for the union. The question of recognition of the union is not exactly settled, but is solved to the satisfaction of both sides by the reasoning of the War Labor Board, of which Ex-President Taft is a member, to the effect that the company, in receiving union delegates, need consider them only in the light as delegations representing employes.

RENEW HYLAN SCHOOL FIGHT

H. M. Cook's Refusal to Let City Examine Accounts Stirs Mayor.

The controversy between Mayor Hylan and officials of the Board of Education over the right of David Hirschfield, the Commissioner of Accounts, to examine the accounts of the department's auditor, Henry M. Cook, flared up again yesterday when Mr. Cook refused to obey a subpoena issued by Mr. Hirschfield. The subpoena, with the $1 fee, was returned to the Commissioner of Accounts by City Superintendent of Schools William L. Ettinger, who contends that only the State has jurisdiction over the financial affairs of the Board of Education. Mr. Hirschfield declared that he would certify the matter to the Supreme Court and try to have Cook punished for contempt of court.

The refusal of Auditor Cook to permit an examination of the books angered Mayor Hylan, who sent a letter to all members of the Board of Education in which he said:

I am informed that several days ago Deputy State Commissioner of Education Finnegan communicated with Mr. Cook by telegraph requesting Mr. Cook to meet him at the Onondaga Hotel, Syracuse, Saturday, March 15. Since Mr. Cook is the financial officer of the Department of Education, it would indicate that Commissioner Finnegan is interesting himself in that branch of the department. Commissioner Finnegan is one of the cleverest educational politicians in the State of New York, and is behind the State-wide bill to increase the salaries of highly paid teachers.

Deputy State Commissioner Finnegan is the political Hohenzollern of the educational system of the State and Cook is his representative in New York City.

Commissioner Finnegan, as State boss of the educational system, has built up a political machine that reaches from Montauk Point to Niagara Falls.

As an example of one of the many methods resorted to by the educational system, Miss Clara C. Calkins, Principal of Public School 6, Warren Street, Brooklyn, stated that school Principals were using browbeating and deceptive methods to procure the indorsement of bills in Albany which would load the State with an additional burden of from $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 for teachers' salaries.

This is only one of the many methods resorted to by the Finnegan-Cook-Ettinger system in our public schools. If the Board of Education has not sufficient power under the law to break up this despicable combination, the board ought to have a bill prepared and ask the Legislature to give them the power to clean out this political, manipulating, money-grabbing crowd.

It is time that the Legislature started an investigation into the activities of browbeating and deceptive methods as charged by Miss Calkins, a Principal of one of the public schools in this city.

FIGHTING IN EGYPT.

Troops Check Rush by a Mob at Tanta and 22 Are Hurt.

LONDON, March 17.—There has been rioting at Tanta, Egypt, in connection with the disorders which have occurred in the country during the past week. On March 12 three thousand persons tried to rush a railroad station at Tanta, but the attack was met by troops and police and was frustrated. There was some fighting and twenty-two casualties are reported in the Cairo dispatch received here.

Tanta is an important town on the Nile seventy-five miles above Alexandria and is the capital of the Province of Gharbiya. Disorders at Cairo have been ascribed to the Nationalist leaders.

12 I.W.W. GO FREE FROM ELLIS ISLAND

Immigration Commissioner Orders That Men Awaiting Deportation Be Released.

REPUDIATE RED TENETS

Counsel for Group Sees No Vindication, However, of Radical Organization Itself.

Twelve members of the I. W. W., who have been detained on Ellis Island since the "Red Special" brought from Western States recently a large group of radicals whom it was the intention of the Government to deport, were released unconditionally yesterday on telegraphic orders from Commissioner General of Immigration Caminetti at Washington. These twelve were the members of the group who recently were offered parole by the Department of Labor after their cases had been argued by their attorneys before Mr. Caminetti.

This offer of parole was made after their lawyers had contended vigorously that the men, while members of the I. W. W., did not subscribe to those tenets of the organization which are in violation of the law and after the men themselves repeatedly had sworn that they were not guilty of the charge of advocating the destruction of property which was laid against them.

While details of the decision had not been received in New York last night, the men's own lawyers interpreted it as meaning that the department had held that mere membership in the organization, or even possession of such of its literature as advocated violation of law, could not be held as showing that the men themselves were subscribers to such tenets in face of their specific denials that they did so.

For this reason, Sidney R. Fleisher of 110 West Fortieth Street, who has been associated with Charles Recht and Caroline A. Lowe in defending the men, said that the action of the department could not be interpreted as any vindication of the I. W. W. itself. It meant, he admitted, that while the accused men had given lip service to the organization, they had repudiated its fundamental and vital principles when confronted with the alternative of doing so or forcibly being forced to leave the country.

Pleas Included All.

It had been expected up to yesterday afternoon that the twelve men released would refuse the parole previously offered to them, as the group of radicals held on the island, which included thirty-three members of the I. W. W., had held closely together, and had insisted upon concerted action in all that was done in their defence. In the several hearings granted in Washington, the men's lawyers have pleaded for all of them except one or two who actually had been convicted of crime.

Their lawyers visited them yesterday to make sure that it was the desire of the men to refuse parole, in which case it was their announced intention to ask writs of habeas corpus in their behalf. It was frankly the hope of the I. W. W. that the men would accept the preffered release in order that the organization might be spared the expense of court proceedings in connection with the writs.

While the matter was under discussion at the island the order releasing the men unconditionally was received. The detained twelve had no choice but to accept, regardless of the fate of their comrades and they came to Manhattan on the 4:30 boat from Ellis Island. Those released, according to Mr. Fleisher, were: John Berg, August Bostran, John Leivo, Edmund Flaguas, Axel A. Hendrikson, James Lund, Joe Martin, McGregor Ross, Chris Johnson, Arthur J. Smith, and Johan Holm.

In company with their lawyers they went to I. W. W. headquarters at 225 East Fourth Street, where an informal reception was held in their honor. Later, arrangements were made to care for the men until they have decided whether to remain here or to return to Washington, Colorado and the other far Western States from which all of them came, after local Federal officials in those places had decided they were subject to deportation. An effort probably will be made to get the Government to furnish transportation back to their homes for those who do not wish to remain here.

Not Able to Read.

In discussing the men's cases last night, Mr. Fleisher said that several of them were not even able to read and that in those cases it had been particularly difficult for the Government to show that the men believed in principles contrary to the laws and the governmental system of the United States. In the cases of others, he said, the men had joined the organization before the incorporation into its official literature of some of the objectionable tenets which led to the Government's action.

In the face of these conditions, he said, the Government found itself faced with the alternative of releasing the men on their own sworn statements that they did not hold to the objectionable features of the I. W. W. creed, or of insisting that the mere fact of membership, reinforced in some instances by possession of, or knowledge of, its literature, constituted prima facie evidence of belief in all the doctrines of the radical organization held to be objectionable.

The men's attorneys were unable to say last night what would be the fate of the remaining members of the organization still held on the Island. The refusal of the Department to offer parole in these cases has been interpreted by their friends as evidence that the Commissioner of Immigration regarded their cases more gravely. If the final decision, which is expected very soon, is against them, their cases will be taken to the Federal Courts on writs of habeas corpus.

Among the New York authorities who have been fighting the spread of I. W. W.ism, Bolshevism and other radical propaganda, the action of the Federal authorities was viewed as a significant development. They recalled that in the raid on the Bolshevist headquarters in 133 East Fifteenth Street in this city on March 12, while 164 prisoners were taken, all but four who admitted that they subscribed to the "Little Red Book" which advocates the destruction of government and the seizure of property, both by force, were released. It had been the intention to rearrest these men in the event that the Federal authorities decided that possession of the Red Book or similar documents constituted sufficient evidence of adherence to the doctrines advocated therein.

The same question is now up for decision in Ohio, where six Bolsheviki arrested in Akron with the "Little Red Book" in their possession were released on writs of habeas corpus granted by the local Federal court after the prisoners had denied that they subscribed to the doctrines of the book. Not only in New York, but in a number of other cities Federal and State officials have been awaiting the outcome of these cases before acting more drastically against adherents of the Bolsheviki. It is recognized that if the courts and the immigration authorities hold that the man or woman's own denial of subscribing to the objectionable tenets is sufficient defense, it is going to be practically impossible to deport any but such radicals as frankly admit that they do subscribe to such tenets.

On Ellis Island last night the release of the dozen men, some of whose cases have been pending a year or more, though they have not been long on the island itself, was hailed as a great triumph. The others confined there unhesitatingly showed their jubilation, congratulated each other, and insisted that all of them soon would be free to return to their homes in various parts of the country and to continue their membership in the various radical groups to which they belong. Some of those held on the island are detained as being liable to become public charges, but the prisoners regard this frankly as a "trumped up" charge and think the Government has no chance to prove it against them.

CALLS RELEASE PAROLE.

Caminetti Says Nineteen Deportation Decisions Were Reaffirmed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Commissioner General of Immigration Authony Caminetti explained tonight that twelve of the I. W. W. adherents gathered in from far western States for deportation had been released on their own recognizance because the cases against them were not as clear as they might be.

The men, he added, would be rearrested and deported if their future conduct warranted such action.

In the cases of nineteen other I. W. W. members on whose behalf protests were entered the decision ordering deportation had been reaffirmed and these men would be sent from the country as soon as shipping conditions permitted.

The Commissioner said that the action of today constituted parole for the men released.

HEAD OF ROBBED BRONX BANK QUITS

Chairman of Directors Asserts Change Had Been Contemplated by New Interests.

HE DENIES FURTHER THEFTS

Four Men Charged with Suspicion of Burglary Are Held in $7,500 Bail.

The theft of more than $26,000 from the Cosmopolitan Bank a week ago and the arrest on Sunday of the paying teller, a former assistant cashier, and two other men, who the police assert have confessed to the crime, brought out that George B. Williams, President of the bank, has resigned. Oscar Stiner, Chairman of the Board of Directors, who is also President of the East River National Bank, said yesterday that Mr. Williams had offered his resignation on Saturday and that it had been accepted, but Mr. Stiner said that it was not contemplated when the new interests had taken control of the affairs of the bank in the latter part of January that Mr. Williams would continue as President of the enlarged institution.

The four men who were arrested—Samuel Smith, the paying teller; Frank D. Reynolds, the discharged assistant cashier; Abraham Levitt, and Samuel Levitt—were taken to police headquarters yesterday and later arraigned in the Morrisania Court before Magistrate Bernard J. Douras on a short affidavit charging suspicion of burglary. They were held in $7,500 bail each and examination postponed until Friday afternoon.

Late yesterday afternoon Chairman Stiner issued a formal statement admitting that Williams was no longer connected with the bank. The statement said:

"The Cosmopolitan Bank was robbed on the morning of March 11 of the sum of $26,000. On the discovery of the theft, under the terms of the insurance policy of Lloyds, the agents of the Lloyds Company were at once notified, as also the American Bankers' Association. Owing to the fact that the theft could only have been done between 7 and 8 in the morning, it was thought by the officials of the bank that a thorough search of the premises should be made with the idea of perhaps finding the money concealed somewhere in the bank, and on that account no immediate information was given to the police at that time.

"All but $3,000 of the money has since been recovered. The detection of the thieves and the recovery of a portion of the money are due to most efficient work rendered by the Police Department in conjunction with the Pinkerton Detective Agency. The rumor concerning any additional theft is not based on facts.

"When the new interests acquired control of the Cosmopolitan Bank it was with a view to increasing the capital to at least $800,000. A new board of seven Directors was elected at that time, and will be shortly increased by the addition of well-known substantial business men. It was not contemplated when the new interest acquired control that Mr. Williams would continue as President of the enlarged institution. Oscar Stiner is now Chairman of the board, and in due course a President will be elected in the place of Mr. Williams."

Mr. Stiner announced that a meeting of the Board of Directors of the bank would be held within the next forty-eight hours, and that he expected to have a final report of the robbery and other important bank business completed by that time.

ADVANCE TUNNEL BILL.

Senate at Albany Votes 24 to 11 for Third Reading.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—By a party vote of 24 to 11 the Senate tonight advanced to third reading the Adler bill appropriating $1,000,000 to begin constructing a vehicular tunnel from Canal Street, Manhattan, to Jersey City, under the Hudson. The Tammany delegation fought the measure.

The bill was amended to meet objections that the tube might be turned over to the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey to enable that company to run its cars into New York City. This the amendment made impossible.

Senator John J. Boylan, acting minority leader, pleaded for delay on the ground that because the project involved many millions the bill should be closely scrutinized for expert opinion. He was seconded by Senator Bernard Downing, who offered an amendment for a referendum on the project. This was opposed by the Republicans.

"We can submit only one referendum bill at an election, under the State Constitution," said Senator Sage. "This Fall, if we want to take advantage of the Federal offer for a $12,000,000 contribution toward good roads on condition that the State appropriate a similar amount, we are bound to submit that proposal to the people."

Tammany men voiced surprise at the eagerness with which up-State Republicans rallied to support a measure affecting New York City, and remarked that there appeared to be remarkable momentum behind the bill.

"What acceleration is there behind this bill?" asked Senator Boylan, in debate. Senator Walters replied jestingly.

Mayor Hylan's Welcome Home Committee, which is arranging for the big demonstration of the 27th Division in New York City on March 25, was requested by unanimous vote of the Assembly tonight to make provision for veterans of the civil war to see the parade from the grand stand. The resolution, which requires favorable action of the Senate also, was introduced by Assemblyman Thomas J. McDonald of the Bronx. It was introduced primarily, according to Mr. McDonald, to forestall the "grabbing tactics of the members of the Board of Aldermen, who have each asked for 100 seats on the grand stand."

The assembly adopted a resolution requesting the Federal Railroad Administration to lower, if possible, freight rates on materials to be used in the construction of public works.

DIE OF 'SLEEPING SICKNESS.'

Two Victims in New England and One in Richmond.

BOSTON, March 17.—Two deaths attributed to lethargic encephalitis were reported by physicians in this city and Brockton today. Mrs. Michaela Russo, who had been asleep for nine days, except for periods when she was aroused to take food, died here last night. The diagnosis that death was due to what is called by laymen sleeping sickness was confirmed by a nerve specialist.

The death of a child four years of age from the same cause was announced in Brockton. In Providence, a street car conductor was reported ill of the disease.

RICHMOND, Va., March 17.—Richmond's first death from the so-called sleeping sickness was reported to the Health Department today. The victim was E. Peter Steuder, of Crewe, Va., who had been a patient at a local hospital since March 2. No additional cases of the disease have been reported to the Health Department.

WILL HELP SOLDIERS GET EMPLOYMENT

Emergency Committee Lays Plans to Co-operate with Federal Agencies to That End.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Colonel Arthur Woods of New York, special assistant to the Secretary of War to handle employment of discharged soldiers, presided over the initial meeting of the Emergency Committee on Employment for Soldiers and Sailors, organized by the Council of National Defense, which met today in the office of Director G. B. Clarkson.

The situation was reviewed in addresses by Director Clarkson and Colonel Woods. Elliott Goodwin, General Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, a member of the Emergency Committee, said that up to the present the Chambers of Commerce throughout the country had never been appealed to as a class to assist in solving the unemployment problem and that in his opinion a large proportion of the responsibility for the placement of soldiers and sailors rested upon employers. One of the best methods for reaching employers, he said, would be through the Chamber of Commerce and manufacturing associations. Mr. Goodwin announced that such an appeal was now being made, and said he felt there would be a 100 per cent. response.

A Committee on Plans was appointed to gather immediately all the available information as to work being done and prepare a comprehensive plan of operation for the committee and submit it, with recommendations, at the next meeting. The Committee on Plans appointed consists of Grosvenor B. Clarkson, Chairman; John W. Hollowell, E. H. Greenwood, and Colonel Arthur Woods, ex officio.

SCHOOLBOY OF 16 INHERITS $20,000,000

HALF A MILLION FOR SISTER

Widow to Decide Upon Gifts for Philanthropy—Servants Generously Remembered.

William H. Yawkey of 12 East 87th Street, owner of valuable oil and timber lands in the West, who inherited a fortune from his father and died of influenza at Augusta, Ga., on March 5 while on an automobile trip, left an estate of more than $40,000,000, half of which goes to his nephew, Thomas Austin, a boy of 16, who was taken in Mr. Yawkey's family in 1910, after the death of both parents, and was adopted on Sept. 20 last, after the will in his favor had been executed. The boy then took the name of Thomas Austin Yawkey.

The youth, whose uncle's will makes him one of the wealthiest boys in the country, is now a student at the Irving School, Tarrytown. His sister, Emma Y. Austin, 25 years of age, who lives at 135 Central Park West, receives only a trust fund of $500,000, the income of which goes to Mr. Yawkey's widow, Mrs. Margaret A. Yawkey, until Miss Austin is 30, when she gets the principal. In addition to half the residuary estate, the boy gets two trust funds of $500,000, the income of one of which is to be paid to him as it accrues, and a third of the principal to be paid at 25 years and the remainder at 30 years of age. The income of the other is to accumulate and the boy gets all at 30.

In addition to the residuary bequest to the widow she receives a $500,000 trust fund and $750,000 in cash "to relieve any possible embarrassment or inconvenience," and is to receive $5,000 a month until this bequest is paid. This bequest takes precedence over all other legacies. Mr. Yawkey, in his will, hoped that no part of the estate would be sacrificed in the payment of legacies and gives the executors five years in which to make payment, if necessary. In explanation of the absence of any charitable or public bequest the will contains this clause:

"It was my desire and intention to provide for the establishment and maintenance of some permanent charity under the Yawkey name but I have not at this time fully formulated plans for same. My wife fully understands and sympathises with my desires in this direction and I have every confidence that she will make provision for such purpose, not exceeding 10 per cent. of the net estate."

Mr. Yawkey directs that such amount as Mrs. Yawkey decides to devote for the purpose stated is to be set apart from the residuary estate, but says that "the foregoing expression of my confidence and desire to establish a charity shall in no manner be obligatory on my wife."

The will gives $25,000 each to Sadie N. Ray, an aunt, of Chester, Vt., and Mary Yawkey White, a cousin, of Hazlehurst, Wis. He says he gave nothing to his sister, Augusta L. Cummings, because she shared equally with him in the estate of their father. The following bequests were made to employés on condition that they were with the decedent at the time of his death: Joseph M. Low, Forest Hill Gardens, L. I., $20,000; Frank R. Poss, $25,000; Fred R. Bernard, Glen Ridge, N. J., $10,000; Mrs. Ada C. Palmer, $10,000; Harold Franklin, Jamaica, L. I., $10,000, and William J. Schultze, Virginia, Minn., $25,000. The will gives $30,000 additional to Mrs. Yawkey to distribute among employees or others as she chooses.

CONFER ON REHABILITATION.

England, France, Italy, and Canada to Give Us Benefit of Experience.

An international conference on the rehabilitation of the disabled will open at the Waldorf-Astoria this morning under the auspices of the Red Cross Institute for Crippled and Disabled Men and the Red Cross Institute for the Blind. Announcing this yesterday at United States Debarkation Hospital 25, at Grand Central Palace, Miss Grace Harper, who has just returned from Paris, where she was Chief of the Bureau of Reconstruction and Re-education for the American Red Cross, asked that as many nurses and workers on duty in military hospitals attend the sessions as could find time.

McCORMACK NOT A CITIZEN.

Irish Tenor Disappointed in Effort to Take Oath on St. Patrick's Day.

John McCormack, the Irish tenor, didn't succeed in becoming a citizen of the United States on St. Patrick's day, as he had hoped. The failure was due to the law which requires ninety days between the time the second papers are issued and the final oath is administered to inquire into the character of the applicant. So the only progress Mr. McCormack could make yesterday was to take out his second papers. He was disappointed but cheered up when he reflected that he could become a citizen before the Fourth of July, which he also regards as an anniversary of importance.

China Settles Monocacy Claims.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, March 16.—American claims arising out of Chinese troops firing on the gunboat Monocacy while she was proceeding up the Yangtse River in January of last year have been settled by the Chinese Government compensating the widow of Yeoman O'Brien, who died of wounds received at the time, with $25,000 in gold. Seamen Donnelly and Ferguson, who were slightly injured, get $500 each.

PAVESICK WAS WITH TIMES.

Injured Aviator Left Advertising Department for the War.

Lieutenant Francis Xavier Pavesick, of the United States Aviation Service, who was reported in press dispatches from Seabreeze, Fla., as having been seriously injured on Sunday at Dayton Field in a fall of an airplane in which he was a passenger, was for nearly a year before his endistment on July 18, 1917, employed in the advertising department of THE NEW YORK TIMES. He acted as night clerk while taking the law course at Columbia University.

Lieutenant Pavesick was born in Omaha, Neb., on Aug. 11, 1891, and was graduated from the University of Georgia with the B. S. degree in 1910. After being engaged for four years in the credit department of the J. K. Orr Shoe Company of Atlanta, he entered the Atlanta Law School, from which he was graduated with the LL.B. degree in 1916. In November of that year he came to THE NEW YORK TIMES. Rejected for service at the first Plattsburgh camp, he enlisted on July 18, 1917, in the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps.

Major David McKelvey Peterson, who was in the airplane with Lieutenant Pavesick, was killed in the accident.

What Baby's Mouth Proves About Your Mouth

A BABY'S toothless mouth is alkaline, not acid—unless the baby is sick. Teeth don't cause acid but merely form a lodging place for things that can.

Therefore—acidity of the mouth can be avoided by keeping the teeth clean and keeping well. Drugs are not necessary, cleanliness is.

That's why the American public is avoiding dentifrices that claim to cure acidity, pyorrhea and other abnormal mouth conditions and choosing the safety of cleanliness represented by Dr. Lyon's. It cleans and polishes without any danger of the misapplication of drugs. It contains none.

PRAISES THE MEN OF 77TH DIVISION

Captain Harrigan Declares It Was the "Civilian Soldiers" That Won the War.

A TRIBUTE TO BRITONS

Tells of British Officers and Privates Alike Giving Up Their Beds to Americans.

With vivid stories of how the average man of New York City had been transformed into the "soldier civilian who plunged through the Argonne Forest and chased the boche to Grand Pré and Sedan," Captain William Harrigan, son of Edward Harrigan of the famous theatrical team of Harrigan and Hart, and an officer in the 77th Division, held an audience tense last night at the Century Theatre as he recounted his experiences from Camp Upton until he was permanently put out of action a few hours before Whittlesey and his "Lost Battalion" were rescued from their isolation in the Argonne.

Captain Harrigan began and ended his lecture with an appeal to all Americans to stop reiterating that "we won the war," but to remember that we only "finished the war," that "it was won along the line during all of four years by every one of the allied nations." He also made a strong appeal for a job for every man who comes back, as "it would be a disgrace if he should have to roam the streets after having fought and bled for his country."

After making his appeal for the adequate appreciation on the part of Americans of the work of the soldiers of other nations, Captain Harrigan cited instances of how the English and the Welsh had showed their mettle. While the Americans were approaching the front, he said, they were met by a band of English musicians who had marched eight miles through a pouring rain to greet them, and this they had done although they had just been relieved from duty in the trenches. Then when the Americans actually reached the British fourth line, all the British soldiers, officers and privates alike, gave up their billets in the village and camped out in the woods and fields under a drenching rain in order that the newcomers might have dry beds in which to sleep.

Many Couldn't Speak English.

Then the Captain told of a Lieutenant in the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, one who was inexperienced, and who was white with fear when he was ordered to lead a squad of men over a stretch of territory in which two other Lieutenants had met their deaths during the previous ten minutes while they were on a similar errand. However, he pulled himself together, gritted his teeth, gripped his gun, and, looking at his men with a smile, called out to them unfalteringly: "Come on, boys. Don't be afraid. We'll make it."

In his own company were thirty-two who did not know the language, and one of the strongest incentives to full attendance at the classes, the Captain said, was the admonition, "When you get into the trenches the order to duck your head will be given in English, and if you don't understanfl it your head will be blown off."

"Some of these men were pretty hard," the speaker continued. One of them came to me one day and said, 'Say, Captain, I've had a little trouble up in New York. I was mixed up in a manslaughter case.' 'Are you a gunman?' I said. 'Naw. I'm a knife worker' was the reply. 'Well, I got him to teach the others the use of the bootknife, and he made a great soldier. On the other hand there were among the men the most highly educated, but in all, we had forty-two races and creeds. It was these men, the privates, the corporals, sergeants, and lieutenants, that won the war. We officers simply directed."

Americans Excelled Germans.

The Captain then demonstrated how the men were taught to use the bayonet, how the important point involved was psychological more than anything else, since it was necessary to instill into a man the feeling that in bayonet fighting, upon which all else depended, it was always, "Kill, or be killed." The speaker said that the skill and intrepidity of the American gave him five chances to one of the Germans in this kind of combat, as "all the boche had was a thrust and a prayer."

Then Captain Harrigan told of the progress of the 77th Division through France until the men finally found themselves before the Forest of Argonne, the forest that had never before been penetrated even by Napoleon. On the way they met another division of Americans one night in the dark. When asked their identity, the others shouted, "This is the old 69th. We're from Tenth Avenue!" to which the 77th responded, "We're from the east side."

Describes Argonne Fight.

In conclusion Captain Harrigan, with the assistance of a huge map thrown upon the screen, took his audience through the Argonne battle. He showed the position of the various units and the exact location of the "Lost Battalion" when communication from the rest of the army was cut off. The speaker emphasized the fact that the battalion was not "lost," for no good officer loses his men, but that it was cut off. Lieut. Col. Whittlesey had simply obeyed General Alexander's order to push on through without regard to maintaining liaison with the others and as a result Whittlesey had been able to break through the Germans while the others had been blocked by machine gun fire.

"A description of the forest it would be impossible for me to give," Harrigan said. "It reminded me of nothing so much as a picture I had seen illustrating a scene from Dante. It was called 'A Forest in Hell.' When we plunged into it we covered two miles on the first day. The defense consisted of none but old whiskered Germans, and the boys said it was like fighting your grandfather. On the second day there was still little resistance, for the Germans certainly never thought that we would make a frontal attack.

"However, by that time they had organized a line of defense that seemed impregnable. We couldn't see the line. We couldn't see anybody. We just knew that machine gun bullets were flying. And we couldn't get to Whittlesey, even when we knew where he was. Finally, one of our men found a map on a dead German officer, showing the exact location of the line of machine guns. Then it was easy. We flanked that line, reached the men that were cut off, and chased the boche all the way to Sedan."

Exceeding the Limit

The New York Times regrets the disappointment to advertisers who do not find their announcements in The Times as ordered. The demand for space is so great in these days of the making of world history that it is frequently impossible to include all the advertising offered for a given day, as The Times is limited to twenty-four pages on weekdays.

Today 24 columns of advertisements are omitted and 110 columns printed.

There is reasonable assurance that all advertising accepted will be published on Saturday, Sunday or Monday, but it is difficult to give promise of publication on other days of the week.

TELL OF JAPANESE CRUELTY TO KOREANS

American Missionaries Say There Is a Reign of Terror Throughout the Country.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, March 17.—American missionaries report barbarous cruelties inflicted on the Koreans, of which they were witnesses. One observer declares that during the last ten days he has seen acts which seem like stories of the Germans in Belgium. Helpless women and children have been beaten, kicked, and stabbed, they say, as well as shot down by soldiers for no other crime than shouting "Hurrah for Korea!"

The missionaries say that the cause of the independence movement lies in ten years of oppression and cruel treatment of the natives. From the beginning strict orders were issued by the leaders that there should be no fighting nor opposition, no matter what the Japanese did and the people have no arms. On occasions where Christians were in the majority, they submitted almost in every instance to arrest and cruel treatment. Where bloodshed occurred the soldiers first fired on the helpless crowd and infuriated non-Christian patriots returned violence for violence.

The Koreans, the missionaries say, hope by peaceful means to enlighten the world to the fact that they are ground under by a military tyranny, have no civil government, and are taxed without representation. Scores of American missionaries, some of whom have been subjected to indignities, testify to the continuance of the reign of terror throughout the entire country.

SAY YI HEUI KILLED HIMSELF.

Emperor of Korea Objected to Heir's Engagement to Japanese Princess.

PEKING, March 4, (Associated Press.)—Advices reaching this city from Korea indicates that the younger generation there has been stirred by Paris dispitches dwelling upon the prominence given at Paris to the principle of self-determination of peoples. Japanese papers received here charge mission school students with participating in disturbances throughout Korea.

Reports are being circulated by the Koreans that the death of former Emporer Yi Heui was due to suicide, which was commited as a protest against the projected marriage of the heir to the Korean throne to a Japanese Princess.

The impression prevails that lack of arms will prevent a serious insurrectionary movement. The Japanese are forbidding the Koreans to own weapons except fowling pieces.

Lets Kansas Sue Burleson.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The authority of Postmaster General Burleson to increase telephone rates throughout the country is to be determined by the Supreme Court, which today granted the State of Kansas permission to institute original proceedings against the Postmaster General, questioning the validity of his order of Dec. 13 last establishing new toll rates. A return is to be made in the case at the next term in October.

SOLDIERS INDORSE TRAINING

Discipline Also Approved by Drafted Men of 12th Division.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Overwhelming indorsement of a universal training system, coupled with equally strong support for the existing disciplinary relationship between officers and men of the army, was expressed by a representative group of the selective service men of the 12th Division, Camp Devens, Mass., just before the organization was demobilized last January. The opinions of the men, numbering 1,330, with an average length of service of 10.7 months, were obtained through a carefully arranged questionnaire system with every safeguard provided to insure absolutely free expression of opinion and with such distribution in the division as to make the answers representative.

The report on the inquiry was made public today at the War Department. It is headed, "Our Military System, as It Appeared to America's Citizen Soldiers."

Although half of the men questioned were rated as dissatisfied with military life, the report shows that 89.5 per cent. of the replies expressed the soldier's belief that he personally had benefited by his army life, 79 per cent. were glad of their training, aside from feelings of patriotism, and 88 per cent. favored universal military training as a national policy. A substantial majority agreed that the existing relationship between officers and men was necessary and disapproved the social mixing of the rank and file.

The largest number of suggestions as to improvements in the service received had to do with better-fitting uniforms or changes in mess arrangements.

"The Dictograph will cut out this confusion and running around"

"With the Dictograph System of Interior Telephones you can translate fully 75% of your employes' lost time and lost motion into actual money," explained the Dictograph man.

"And you can do this without having your employes feel that you are demanding more than full value for every second the clock ticks."

The Dictograph
System of Interior Telephones

Turns wasted time into productive effort

How?

By enabling each department to get instant information from any other department without waiting for a switchboard connection; and at the same time—

By giving the Executive, through the famous loud-speaking Master Station, the "right of way," or executive control; and—

By enabling you, and your other creative executives, to hold conferences, dictate letters, receive reports, give orders, talk to callers—all without effort and without the necessity of any employe or executive leaving his desk for an instant.

Do not confuse the Dictograph with correspondence dictating machines

The Dictograph is the last word in Interior Telephone Systems, and is in daily use by over 50,000 leading executives in every line of business, large and small, throughout the country.

It can be used where only 2 or 3 stations are necessary, and is sufficiently elastic to meet the requirements of larger organizations, using 10-20-30-40-up to 100 or more stations, depending upon the inter-communication requirements.

May we give you an actual working, talking 5-minute demonstration—today?

Let us show you—on your own desk—in your own office, bank, plant or factory—how the Dictograph will simplify and expedite the work of every executive and employe in your organization—how it will enable each to do more work, better work, quicker work; and yet permit each man to remain at his own desk or within his own department. No wasted steps—no misspent energy—no needless errors. The Dictograph brings complete efficiency in inter-communication—why be satisfied with less?

Check the Coupon for 5-Minute Demonstration or Free Booklet

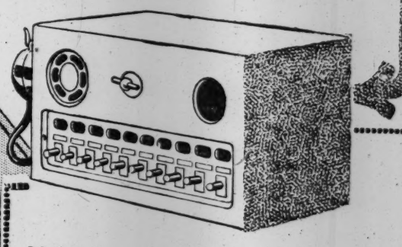
We want to send free to every interested executive with an interior communication problem, whether bank, office, store, factory, plant or Governmental department—

"An Essay on Executive Efficiency"



It will show you how to analyze your inter-communication problems, and how to lighten the burden of routine that tends to smother you and your other creative executives.

MAJOR J. O. ADLER CITED FOR BRAVERY

New Yorker Wins Distinguished Service Cross for Heroism Displayed at St. Juvin.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Commander in Chief, in the name of the President, has awarded the Distinguished Service Cross to the following named officers and soldiers for the acts of extraordinary heroism described after their names:

Major J. O. Adler, 306th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action at St. Juvin, on Oct. 14. Accompanied by another officer, Major Adler was supervising the work of clearing the enemy from St. Juvin when they suddenly came upon a party of the enemy numbering 150. Firing on the enemy with his pistol, Major Adler ran toward the party, calling on them to surrender. His bravery and good marksmanship resulted in the capture of fifty Germans, and the remainder fled. Home address, H. C. Adler, father, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Second Lieut. (Observer) Thomas B. Dodwell, Royal Air Forces, British Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Bruges, Belgium, on Aug. 13, 1918. This officer and his pilot led two other machines on a long photographic mission over the area north of Bruges. Over Thourout they were attacked by six enemy planes. While heavily engaged, Lieutenant Dodwell and his pilot saw one of their machines in difficulty and trying to make our lines with an enemy plane close at his tail. Regardless of their own danger from the remaining planes, they dived to the assistance of the crippled plane. Taking advantage of their preoccupation, several enemy planes attacked from the rear, but, in spite of this rear attack, they drove off the enemy plane and allowed the damaged plane to land within our lines. Half of the tail plane was shot away, but Lieutenant Dodwell climbed along the wing and lay down along the cowling in front of the pilot, enabling the pilot to regain partial control of his machine. When nearing the ground he crawled back into the cockpit to allow the nose to rise, and the pilot made a safe landing. The presence of mind and cool courage of this officer saved the machine from crashing to the ground. Home address, Henry Dodwell, father, The Day House, Wellington, Shropshire, England.

Private (First Class) Esric C. Gumbs, Co. E, 310th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Autheand-Sy, between Nov. 2 and 4. Private Gumbs, while acting as battalion runner, repeatedly crossed areas subjected to heavy shell and machine gun fire, carrying messages to and from flank companies. His work, performed with unhesitating devotion to duty, materially contributed to the successful advance of his battalion. Next of kin, Mrs. Sarah A. Gumbs, 211 Warren Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Private John Brown, deceased, Medical Detachment, 11th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Remeiville, on Nov. 5. While making his way to the side of a wounded comrade Private Brown was seriously wounded, but he refused to permit the litter bearers to take him to a dressing station until those wounded about him were first evacuated. Next of kin, James Brown, uncle, 42 West Seventh Street, West New York, N. J.

Discharges at Upton to Continue.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., March 17.—Brig. Gen. Nicholson, camp commander, today contradicted the report from Boston that Camp Devens was soon to absorb the discharge functions of Camp Upton. A Boston story, purporting to be official, claimed New York State troops would henceforth be mustered out from Devens. The Upton commander said not the slightest indication had come from Washington that this cantonment will not continue its large work of discharge and transfer until the army has been mustered out.

CASUALTIES REPORTED TO DATE TOTAL 277,939

197 Named in Four New Army Lists Include 72 Dead and 5 Wounded

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Four army casualty lists, containing 197 names, were given out today, bringing the total for the army up to 272,084, including 4,504 prisoners released and returned. A machine which Boss, office boy or any clerk can use immediately

Put Yourself in Her Position

Appreciate what it means to have a simpler, faster figuring machine to work with Handling figures all day long or occasionally is tedious, tiresome work. Given a machine which eliminates a large amount of the operative hand and eye motions ordinarily required, more time is saved, there is less fatigue and eye strain and a greater volume of work is easily secured.

The simplicity of the Dalton assists the operator in three different ways.

(1) Only 10-keys, making the process of ordinary operation exceedingly simple.

(2) The elimination of column selection, automatically taken care of by the machine.

(3) A keyboard scientifically arranged for Touch Method operation, saving countless eye and head movements from figures to machine.

Here are three sound reasons for Dalton efficiency, making it the simplest, fastest adding machine built. Plus this, it is a calculating machine, which multiplies as easily as it adds.

Have a Demonstration

Here is economy—a simpler, faster adding-listing-calculating machine—two machines in one at the price of one. No calculating machine multiplies easier or faster. Have a demonstration without obligation and see for yourself.

Changing design means uncertain standards---usually to get an attractive selling price. When quality is secondary, upkeep is high, resale prices low. Ask those who have had experience with both kinds what they found out.

Pierce-Arrow

Delivers more work in a given time;
Loses less time on the job and off the job;
Costs less to operate and less to maintain;
Lasts longer, depreciates less and commands a higher resale price at all times.

When you realize that a Pierce-Arrow truck purchased over seven and one-half years ago is, after this comparatively long service of constant work, just as satisfactory in every way as the 32 other Pierce-Arrow trucks since purchased by the same company, you will know that the reason lies in the built-in qualities characteristic of Pierce-Arrow.

THE NAME BEHIND THE TIRE

WHEN you ride on G & J Tires, you roll on miles of road without delay or mishap.

"The Name Behind the Tire" is the power behind the throne that says G & J Tires give service plus service. And the makers put quality, material and workmanship into the making to deliver that service.

G & J Tires are springy and spunky. They blot out bumps. As you drive along you have confidence in "The Name Behind the Tire," satisfaction in the banishment of tire trouble.

The G & J Cord Tire is a product of the highest development in tire-making skill. Other G & J Tires are the famous "G" Tread and the G & J "Stalwart."

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

The Kiddies and "Le Coq d'Or."

Commendatore Gatti-Casazza played Santa Claus at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon. He gave a special matinée for the "Kiddies" of "Le Coq d'Or," otherwise "The Gilded Rooster," and composer Rimsky-Korsakoff himself if he could have been present would have forgiven Michael Fokine and Adolf Bolm for the liberties taken with score and text, because of the supreme joy expressed by the thousand and more tots in the auditorium.

Rosina Galli, seen through the magic spectacles of childhood, was a fairy of iridescent charm, (oldsters see her that way, too.) Children after the final curtain fell began imitating her woven paces and wreathing arms as they danced through the lobbies. The sourest celibate would have envied this Springtide of innocent emotions. "Oh, but mamma, why was the King so horrid and so sleepy?" Mr. Bolm knows why. Mabel Garrison sang the Rooster music. To the unsympathetic ears of music critics the voices of the principals sounded weary, but the mimes, St. Rosina and the rest, were in good voice. Pierre Monteux conducted. It was the last performance this season of "Coq d'Or" and the eleventh altogether at the Metropolitan since its première last year.

Gounod's "Mireille" was sung for the third time at the Metropolitan last evening, before a social Monday house. Mme. Barrientos reappeared in the title rôle, with Mmes. Howard, Delaunois, and Tiffany; Messrs. Hackett, Whitehill, Rothier, and Ananian, and Mr. Monteux conducted.

Another Rubinstein.

Another Rubinstein gave a piano recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon; though this time with a different surname from Pan Arthur's. A jeweled name, indeed; Beryl Rubinstein, and he, too, plays the piano. If there are any more of the pianistic "mishpogah," let them change the family name to Stubenrein, which also means something. Two of a kind, since the mighty Anton, not to mention his brother Nicolas, and Wagner's tame Bayreuth cat, Josef Rubinstein, who wrote an insulting article on Robert Schumann at the instigation of the vainest, meanest, and among the greatest of men.

The concert giver yesterday is unquestionably a gifted youth. Modest in bearing, absorbed in his task, he just missed the carefree dash and bravura which makes the performance of Arthur Rubinstein so attractive. He was constrained almost to timidity in Schumann's great F sharp minor Sonata. We did not fee, the spontaneous urges and moonlit poetry of the music. Rubinstein is musical. He has abundant technique. His touch sings, but there is a lack of tonal variety in his color scheme. We should say to him, if we were not a mere music-reporter, that the pianoforte is a most monotonous instrument unless played with an infinite number of tonal gradations, nuances. Without nuance there is no hope of salvation. A big sonorous tone he has, no intermediary tintings and a pianissimo smothered by overpedaling. Arthur Rubinstein also overpedals.

The touching romanza in A major of the Schumann Sonata was musically interpreted, but should have had more breathing spaces in the phrase. It was almost airless. The Scherzo went very well, its Trio hammered out in the bass. Ah! the positivism of youth. Schumann in all curve and tenderness, and Rubinstein all angles. The Chopin G minor Ballade proved mellower. Technically it was brilliant. We liked best of all Mendelssoohn's Prelude and Fugue in E minor. Young Rubinstein has great talent. He will we hope artistically mature.

Bobbed Hair Technique.

For ages philosophers have pondered the esoteric correspondence of hair and music. No need here to recall the mighty mane of Anton Rubinstein, the cast-iron coiffure of Franz Liszt, or the snowy locks of Ole Bull. The anti-barber feeling created by the Weimar school of piano playing culminated in such picturesque imitations of Liszt as that of Mme. Zurembska—wife of a Polish composer and pianist, Zarembski—who startled musical New York about 1888, with her hair, her high boots, her cowboy sombrero, and her slathering keyboard technique. Since then Paderewski and his old-gold aureole and old-gold touch reconciled us to hirsute eccentricities; and today, the bobbed hair school of pianissim, of which Ethel Leginska and Winifred Byrd—"Si oiseau j'etais"—are distinguished exponents, no longer shock. They are come to stay.

Therefore, last night at Aeolian Hall, we were not surprised at Bella Hecht, a girl with fiendish finger fluency and an aversion to legati playing. Miss Hecht, who is evidently in her teens, is musically gifted, but as green as a gage—that is, a green gage. She essayed Schumann's Symphonic Studies, but only her bobbed hair saved her from going under. Such courage! Talk about being terribly at ease in Zion! Rhythmic balance was thrown to the panting wolves that pursue every pianist at a recital. Some of the numbers were object lessons in distorted phrasing. Nevertheless, the girl has plenty of talent, and she is occasionally musical, witness the opening measures of Schumann's "Arabeke." But she should not play in public till she is riper. If her friends tell her that she should then they are hurting her future. New York, like a certain hot place, is paved with pianistic intentions.

CONCERT FOR ALLIED BLIND.

Mme. Marguerite Namara and Oliver Denton to Aid Helpless Soldiers.

For the benefit of the Permanent Blind Relief War Fund a concert will be given on Sunday evening next at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre by Mme. Marguerite Namara of the Chicago Opera Company and Oliver Denton, the well-known pianist. The program includes numbers by Puccini, Massenet, Debussy, Alvarez, Beethoven, Chopin, and Liszt.

The most recent advices from the Paris headquarters of the fund state that there are 1,000 blinded men in France alone awaiting training to enable them to earn their own living, and that 500 more are still in the hospitals. The blinded in Italy, Rumania, and Serbia are also awaiting care and a new start in life.

"The Kiss Burglar" Returns.

"The Kiss Burglar," a musical comedy which was seen here at two playhouses in the Spring and Summer, returned to New York last night for a supplementary engagement at still a third theatre, the Broadhurst. The leading rôle, originally Fay Bainter's, is on this occasion taken by Marie Carroll, last seen here in "Oh, Boy!" The supporting company continues largely the same, and includes Denman Maley in the principal comedy rôle.

Blind to Attend 'The Crowded Hour'

A special matinée of "The Crowded Hour" will be given at the Selwyn Theatre today before an audience of blind persons, members of the Ziegler Institute for the Blind. Helen Keller will be present, and will make an address.

H. E. Field Wins Gold Medal.

"Washington's Andirons," a picture showing an old Colonial fireplace and mantelpiece, by Hamilton Easter Field, has been awarded the Macsoud gold medal by the Brooklyn Society of Artists for the most meritorious painting at its second annual exhibition, which is being held at the Pouch Mansion and will continue to March 24. Mr. Field is Corresponding Secretary of the society and Recording Secretary of the Society of Independent Artists.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

Literesque Drama.

Baron	James P. Hagen
La Forest	Alice Gale
Armande Bejart	Estelle Winwood
Moliere	Henry Miller
Colinge	Forrest Robinson
De Luzon	Frederick Roland
The King's Chamberlain	Willard Barton
Louis XIV	Holbrook Blinn
Francoise	Blanche Bates
La Fontaine	Sidney Herbert
Hercules	Frank Longacre
Giovanni Lulli	Paul Doucet
First Lady	Mary Pyne
Second Lady	Margery Card
A Lackey	William Robins
Claude Chapelle	Vincent Chambers
A Doctor	Wallace Roberts

The one unsatisfied ambition of Molière's life was to appear in drama, indeed in tragedy. This ambition has now been fulfilled, though somewhat tardily, with the aid of Philip Moeller. Molière's unhappy marriage with a gay, ambitious, light-headed lass of half his own age was a commonplace of contemporary gossip and scandal; and the truth of the case has been an unsolved mystery to all his biographers.

But few have ever doubted that it gave form and color to several comedies, notably his masterpiece, "Le Misanthrope"—now playing, by the way, at the Vieux Colombier. Out of his great sorrow he made laughter, in which the sympathetic catch the gleam of a tear and the thoughtful divine a deep and ripe philosophy. And there was enough left, it now appears, to furnish forth a romantically tragic drama.

"Molière" is, to be sure, a literesque drama and closely akin to Mr. Moeller's previous play, "Mme. Sand." It is not only that we see leading members of the literary and Court circles to which the great comedian was familiar, from Louis XIV. and Montespan to La Fontaine and the cook to whom Molière read his comedies as he was writing them. It is much more than that. One and all, from the King's mistress to the comedian's cook, talk in elaborate metaphor and pointed epigram, and speak, for the most part, in a musical cadence that would almost (but not quite) scan. What Molière rendered on his scene in terms approximating life, Mr. Moeller renders at the Liberty in terms approximating literature. "Approximating" is the word. Like the blank verse, the literature is a matter of almost, and not quite.

But the main intention is apparently dramatic, and it is as drama that "Molière" will appeal to its public. There are two love stories. The fickle and ambitious Armande has an affair with a courtier, De Lauzun, and the fickle (but momentarily less ambitious) de Montespan is forcing her love upon Molière. Armande fails; but Molière stands firm in virtue as the rock of Gibraltar, though assailed by all the wiles of the leading courtesan of his time, and though also threatened with the utmost disfavor of their royal master. Armande's fall is indicated rather than seen; but Molière's stand comes in the great scene of the penultimate curtain, and he speaks against the King with a fervor and a hatred of autocracy which has gained a little, perhaps, from a subsequent world that has made itself for democracy.

The final act shows Molière's death, as it came upon him during a performance of "Le Malade Imaginaire." Armande has come back to him, repentent, and lays her golden head upon his bosom as he expires. And then the King comes in, to announce that his royal favor is to be restored to the chief ornament of his reign and of France. It is all as romantically pathetic as the previous curtain has been dramatic—but just how pathetic and dramatic that may be will depend much upon the preconceptions of the auditor.

The piece has a powerful ally in an admirable cast and in really beautiful costumes and scenery. Henry Miller and his make-up bear a striking resemblance to the portraits of Molière by Mignard. He plays with great dignity and force, and with genuine romantic tenderness. The King of Holbrook Blinn is a figure of quite remarkable authority and of admirably subtle distinction. The Montespan of Blanche Bates is a marvel of mature beauty; and, in variety of skill and authenticity of mood, it is a whole lift above anything she has hitherto done, remarkable as her work has always been. Alice Gale as the cook and Estelle Winwood as Armande are in every way worthy of the company.

As a whole, "Molière" may lack something alike of the flavor of life and of the spirit of genuine artistic creation. But, though prevailingly literesque, it is intelligently so; and it tells a romantic story in a way that may possibly commend it to the great public.

FRENCH IN "MISANTHROPE."

LE MISANTHROPE, by Molière. At the Theatre du Vieux Colombier.

Alceste	Jacques Copeau
Philante	Henri Dhurtal
Oronte	Robert Bogaert
Celimene	Lucienne Bogaert
Eliante	Suzanne Bing
Arsinoe	Valentine Tessier
Acaste	Jean Sarment
Clitandre	Marcel Millet
Basque	Lucien Weber
Un Garde	Robert Gasa
Du Bois	Romain Bouquet

The repertoire of Jacques Copeau's French Theatre du Vieux Colombier, which is approaching the end of its season, flared up with a renewed burst of brilliance last night in a splendid performance of Molière's masterpiece, "Le Misanthrope," with Director Copeau in the title rôle of Alcèste.

M. Copeau gave a well-studied and sympathetic interpretation of this most difficult part of Molière's misanthrope, one whose love of the human virtues of honest truth and frankness was at the bottom of all his remorseless "hatred of the human race" for its foibles and vices of affectation and tawdry insincerity.

Scarcely once last night—and this is as it should be—was the bitter and pitiless hater and scourge of humankind lost to the pitying favor of the audience, even in his final débâcle, when, after failing miserably in his great love for the pretty coquette who held him enslaved, he offers his heart in anti-climactic amorousness to another and more faded mistress, is in turn refused even by her and betakes himself with his scorn and hatred for mankind at least unconquered, to his desert solitude.

Almost equally excellent was the interpretation of the coquettish butterfly character of Célimène by Mlle. Lucienne Bogaert, pretty, captivating, forever impartial in the bestowal of her visible favors to the crowd of courtly swains around her. As Alcèste has but one fault, his utter incapacity to compromise in the least degree with the affected hyper-civilities and over-amenities of the insincere times in which he lives, so Célimène, too has but one—her incapacity at any time utterly to renounce them and to cleave even for a moment to frankness and truth. The irony of fate which linked the raging and unsparing misanthrope in abject thralldom to this sweetest, most charming and most fickle of chameleon loves, always provides touching comedy of a high order when, as last night it is well acted.

Abundant comedy of a lower order, with louder laughter, was provided by Jean Sarment, Marcel Millet, and Robert Bogaert, as be-ribboned and buffoon courtiers of the foppish period; Mlle. Valentine Tessier, as the selfishly intriguing outward prude; Arsinoe and Romain Bouquet, as Duval Alcèste's long-winded and forgetful valet, Henri Dhurtal as Philinte, and Mlle. Suzanne Bing, as Eliante, carried well the lesser burdens of the two gentle confidantes of Alcèste and Célimène respectively.

SKINNER WINS AN OVATION.

His Revival of "The Honor of the Family" Loudly Applauded.

Colonel Philippe Bridau	Otis Skinner
Jean-Jacques Rouget	Robert Harrison
Commandant Max Gilet	Alexander Onslow
Joseph Bridau	Harry Burkhardt
Borniche	John Rogers
General Carpentier	Walter F. Scott
Captain Potel	Herbert Charles
Captain Renard	George E. Riddell
Commandant Mignonette	Thomas Donnelly
Orsanto	Marshall Birmingham
Kouski	Harry Burkhardt
Flora Brazier	Evelyn Varden
Madame Bridau	Margaret Calvert
La Vadie	Ruth Rose

Otis Skinner was the Napoleon of his audience at the opening of "The Honor of the Family" at the Globe Theatre last night. It was not just a first night, nor was the enthusiasm all for the old play. The house was for Mr. Skinner. His dramatic entrance a moment before the curtain of the first act started the applause, which drowned even the thundering voice of Colonel Philippe Bridau for some time after Mr. Skinner had begun the effort to make himself heard. At the end of the second act the audience refused to be silenced by the turning on of the lights, and they took command of the situation when the third curtain had come down. The performance could not go on until Mr. Skinner had acknowledged the greeting in a short speech.

Fabre's version of Balzac's story has not been seen here for more than a decade, but Mr. Skinner's impersonation of the Colonel, who "burst in like a cannon ball," is still remembered by many. And those who expected to see him again in all of his boisterous power, as well as those who had heard of him and wanted to watch him swagger past all obstructions to triumph, were not disappointed.

The period of "The Honor of the Family" is 1820. Almost all of the persons of the play are Bonapartists still clinging to the name and fame of the vanquished Napoleon. But the principal characters are mostly concerned with the wealth of the doddering old Jean-Jacques Rouget, who is all but in the complete power of Flora Brazier and Commandant Max Gilet, when Colonel Philippe Bridau, his nephew, appears to save the honor of the family—and rehabilitate himself with his uncle's money. He succeeds by force and finesse. He also decides that he would like the fair Flora. In the same way he succeeds again.

Supporting Mr. Skinner to good effect were Robert Harrison as the old uncle, Alexander Onslow as Commandant Max, Evelyn Varden as Flora, and Ruth Rose as La Vedie. All of the cast caught the spirit of the play, and, as they didn't say in 1820, "put it over" with a bang. Those who like a play of the type of "The Honor of the Family" now have their chance.

Will you gamble away your teeth?

The prevalence of "Acid-Mouth" (dental authorities believe that it is the chief cause of all tooth decay) indicates that it is not enough merely to clean the teeth.

Pebeco Tooth Paste does clean exceptionally well and polishes, too. But it does a great deal more. It counteracts "Acid-Mouth"—that remorseless condition which gradually weakens the enamel and paves the way for the ultimate destruction of each tooth.

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

Counteracts "Acid-Mouth"

THE RAILWAY OBJECT LESSON.

There is a curious reversal in the railway situation. Only a little while ago all the talk was about what the Government would do to help the railways. Now the railways are taking off their coats to help the Government. The reason is that both sides see that the situation requires the best efforts of both in the common interest of themselves and the country, conditions being too serious to permit of playing politics with it. That is the explanation of the Director General's readiness to accept the drafts of the railways drawn in payment of bills which he has incurred but cannot pay. For the same reason the strong railways are borrowing money to pay Government bills, one having just borrowed over twenty millions for this altruistic purpose. According to THE TIMES Washington summary of official figures, the railways in the best January ever known failed to earn what the Government had promised to pay them by $35,999,659. The Financial Chronicle has compiled a list of seventy-three leading railways which failed to earn their operating expenses in that month of great business and extraordinarily favorable weather conditions. Fifteen more failed to earn both expenses and taxes. The prospect is that during the current year the railways will show a deficit of $1,280,000,000. The January record is for a month in which operating revenues increased $111,427,193. Under Government operation we are rivaling the conditions of uneconomic competition during the cut-throat rate wars, when the greater the business done the greater the loss, and some railways are alleged to have routed business over competitors' roads.

That ingenious plan is not available to the operator of all railways. Nor is the Director General responsible for results so disappointing to those who expected too much from Government operation. In candor it must be said that many beneficial results have been realized, but that they have been overcome by greater expenses of the sort expected by those favoring the policy of private operation. Thus, in the month so disastrous for the Treasury's finances there was an increase of 10 per cent. in ton miles with the same train miles. That is to say, more tons were put into the cars on the average and more cars into the trains. That efficiency and economy of Government operation would have been a great accomplishment for private management. Similar good results were realized in February in another direction. Thus, at this port daily deliveries for export have risen steadily from 114 cars in November to 431 cars in February, and may be expected to rise even faster as steamships are available. Government operation has much to its credit, but it has come at too high cost. Passenger facilities have been reduced and the rates raised in a manner which would have caused protest against private management.

Treasury and railways are both embarrassed because of increases of wages which have not satisfied those who receive them, and which are so liberal as to threaten troubles in peace comparable to the undue increase of shipbuilders' wages in war. There is no intention to blame anybody for the increases of either railway or shipyard wages. If there was any other way nobody saw it. Neither is there any wish to grudge labor fair rewards. But there is a presumption that rewards of industry are not fair on the part of either labor or capital when they are obtained by force, are disproportionate to other rewards of the same class, and when there is no limit to the increases. There is nothing peculiar to this country in the wage situation. In many if not all countries labor is demanding that war wages shall be continued in peace. In answer to the objection that the work does not produce the wages, and that there is a limit to the ability of taxpayers to pay wages rising without limit, the demand is made that then Government must take over the properties and run them without profit—as though there were something antagonistic to wages in profit. Profits and wages rise together and fall together when economic conditions are normal and wholesome. There is disaster ahead for either public or private management when wages rise and profits fall. The disappearance of profit is a calamity alike in Russia, in Germany, in the United States, or anywhere else. Profits are the proof of management which has produced wages. The disappearance of profits is proof that wages must be paid by taxpayers, or the work must stop. Neither labor nor capital can be trusted to fix its own price in a market controlled by duress or unfair device. The chief port of Argentina was "nationalized" yesterday because labor made demands impossible to grant. England faces a similar crisis as the result of demands by labor which have grown with each concession. Here there is an apparent revulsion of sentiment because of the clear disclosure of the results of Government operation, and the failure of even excessive increases of wages to satisfy those who receive them. Neither the shipbuilders nor the railway workers could earn their wages in other industries. But the shipworkers are striking for war wages, and the railway workers are demanding Government operation as a means of getting still more. How can they fail to see that it will cost them ruin if they increase costs above the worth of the products, even including the profit without which there can be no wages, except at the cost of the taxpayer?

SIXT VON ARNIM.

They have beaten General Count SIXT VON ARNIM to death—a lot of peasants, who were aggrieved by his rushing out among them with a shotgun when they were trying, in accordance with Soviet principles, to gather firewood on an estate of his in Bohemia. It is a strange end for one of the most common-sense Generals of the German Army. VON ARNIM regarded war as NAPOLEON did—as a scientific game. His comments as the war went on were just the comments NAPOLEON might have made. There was never anything to indicate that he regarded himself as a statesman, as FREYTAG did, still less as the creator of a new social order, as VON HOFFMANN did. The high pretensions of MACKENSEN and FALKENHAYN were beyond his reach. He was simply a soldier, who had no concern with the causes of the war or its outcome, no hostility toward HAIG or anybody serving under HAIG; simply a machine, carrying out its orders. The reports of SIXT VON ARNIM are among the most illuminating things published during the war. He never scoffed at his enemies, he never depreciated them; praise of the enemy was among the most characteristic things in VON ARNIM's words, and he dealt that out in the same calm way in which he dealt out praise for his own troops.

He was a royalist, an imperialist. Last December they charged him with being one of the authors of a plot to restore WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN to the throne. It may have been a canard; very likely it was. However, who that knew the record of Count SIXT VON ARNIM could doubt that if there were a royalist conspiracy he would be at the very front of it? He was that sort of man—a sort of Count Fersen.

"The Englishman also has physique and training in his favor." "The "numerical superiority of the British "Army and the fact that their ma"chines are better made is disagree"ably apparent to us." But why go through SIXT VON ARNIM's reports? He was a soldier, fighting to the bitter end, and not in the least disposed to withhold credit from the enemy; and now he has been beaten to death with clubs on a Bohemian farm.

ATTILA OF THE SOUTH.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Mexico City, the Government forces under General GONZALEZ have pretty nearly cleared the State of Morelos of the Zapatist bands that have raided, looted, and possessed it for nearly ten years. EMILIANO ZAPATA, grandiloquently dubbed "the Attila of the South," with General DE LA O and General PALOFAX, his chief captains of banditry, and a few hundred retainers, is said to have been driven into "almost impassable mountains" in the southwest. Their capture "is expected almost every day." It will be prudent not to be too hopeful, since ZAPATA is a hard bird to catch. His submission and the pacification of Morelos have been reported too often.

His forces seem to have been on short rations for some time. Many have had to surrender for want of drinking water. At the rate of fifty a day they are said to be giving up their rifles. In some previous pretenses at surrender, these precious tools, which raise a peon to the dignity of a robber, were mostly withheld. ZAPATA, though some accounts call him a small landholder, is essentially an Indian peon with a gift of leadership, great cunning, and relentless ferocity. MADERO furnished him with arms in 1910. He harried not only Morelos, but Oaxaca and Guerrero. His program was the expulsion of foreigners, land for the Indians. Like Robin Hood, he "robbed the rich." The poor were robbed later. In his native State of Morelos a score or so of great proprietors held most of the land. He plundered, burned, killed. No prisoner was spared. He left a track of ruin in hacienda and village. His work of destruction in the south largely forced the collapse of DIAZ. Playing his own hand, keeping apart from MADERO, from HUERTA, whom he threatened to hang, and from CARRANZA, twice in 1914 master of the capital, this Indian agrarian reformer, despoiling all the time the country he pretended to be so eager to divide among his people, nursed the ambition to be President and lord of Mexico. Ready to treat ambiguously with the Government when too hard pressed, raiding and hiding secure in inaccessible fastnesses and bursting out in rapine so soon as occasion offered, blackmailing the mine owners and foreigners generally, massacring railway passengers and pillaging ammunition and other trains, ZAPATA, with forces varying at different times and probably always overestimated, has been master for years of a region naturally rich. His State of Morelos, only a part of his domain at times, has been a sugar country since the day of CORTEZ; and it produces coffee, rice, and so on liberally. Under the sway of ZAPATA it has suffered losses that long years will hardly make up, even if the Government carries out successfully its plan of breaking up the great landed properties into little farms. It is a sufficient testimonial to the character of ZAPATA's reign that children 16 years old stare in wonder at a civilian. ZAPATA's ragged, cotton-clothed followers or the Government troops in uniform are the men they have been used to see.

ZAPATA seems to belong to some other century. Savage, boastful, fond of loading his person with diamonds and gold, polygamous, a patriarch of banditry, he fulfills the book-and-boy idea of a robber. It is comforting to hear and good to believe that he used to live in a mountain cave "ten miles long and stored with supplies and ammunition."

Let us hope that he will be caught. Trains are beginning to run, though the bridges, favorite Zapatist points of attack, have still to be guarded. Order, the resumption of sugar planting, the sugar industry and agricultural work generally, the revival of communications, education, and peaceful life depend in Morelos upon the utter downfall, the permanent absence, or the extinction of ZAPATA. He will always make trouble if he can, and he is beyond amnesty.

PREFERENCE AND MERIT.

War against civil service reform, campaigns to make a breach in the civil service rules, never cease. For years an inconsiderable number of veterans of the Spanish war have been clamoring to have preference in the civil service given to all the veterans of that war, against the wish of most of them and against the principle of equality. Now the effort is made in the Legislature to amend the Constitution so as to give a preference both to Spanish and world war veterans, the latter subsequent and secondary to the former.

Merit, impartially ascertained, is the basis and the essence of civil service reform. It gives an equal chance to all comers. The man or woman best qualified for the post gets it. Preference is favoritism, not qualification. Our gratitude to our men who have done military service should not lead us into making class distinctions and preferences, to foist upon the civil service men who can't show their qualifications for it in the same way, by the same tests, as civilians.

The civil service of the State and the municipalities doesn't exist to reward military or naval or scientific or any other merit. It exists to carry on civil business of the State or municipality intelligently, efficiently, honestly. In choosing its servants and administrators it chooses them for their demonstrated fitness for the posts they are to hold, not for their titles to the respect and good-will of the community in entirely different spheres of action.

Veterans—those of this war are fortunately mostly young—can either pass the civil service examinations, as civilians have to, or they cannot. If they can, they need no preference. If they can't, they should have no preference.

All these assaults upon the principle of civil service reform and the equality of opportunity according to merit come from a feeble minority of former soldiers, abetted or egged on by politicians.

THE COMMUTER'S REVENGE.

At last the worm is turning, the middle classes are thinking class-consciously; and not only the middle classes, but their meekest and most long-suffering element, the commuters. One of the reasons for the Independent Liberal victory in the latest British by-election, which is disturbing the friends and rejoicing the enemies of LLOYD GEORGE, is the fury of a commuting constituency which had trusted the Government's promise to take off the 50 per cent. increase of railroad fare put into force during the war, and had risen in wrath when it found that the fares were not reduced. The ruler of the world's largest commonwealth of free nations trembles before those who come in on the 8:20 and go home on the 5:15.

For Americans this is perhaps the most immediate interest of the election, its revelation of the fact that even the commuter has some power. But there is a lesson in it for politicians everywhere. LLOYD GEORGE may have won the general election so impressively because of his war record; it was a vote of approval, a substitute for a testimonial dinner and the presentation of a service of silver plate. But he would not trust his war record to win a vote of confidence for peace; he bolstered it up by promises; more promises, perhaps, than any expert politician ever before made at one time. He had an extremely miscellaneous support, and he could view it as a unity only by adopting most of its principles, even when they were contradictory. So he promised the British electorate a number of things which, taken together, suggested the immediate advent of the millennium; and he is already losing seats because no Government on earth could make good on these promises. The specific cause cited by Mr. NEWBOULD, the victorious candidate, ought to be of interest to those politicians who oppose the League of Nations. LLOYD GEORGE had promised disarmament, and the British Government now asks for two billion dollars to keep the army going this year. This may doubtless have been unavoidable, so long as armies of occupation remain in enemy territory; but a people which is told that it has won the war is not enthusiastic about paying more for a military establishment to preserve the fruits of victory than it ever dreamed of paying in peace times before. If the public will consider the very considerable reductions in armaments which the League should make possible, politicians who oppose it are going to find their going hard.

GOTTSCHEE.

"Great fleas have little fleas upon "their backs to bite 'em; and little "fleas have lesser fleas, and so ad "infinitum." This is an adequate summary of any encyclopedic article on the self-determination of nationalities; the only question is the setting of the limit below which it is unprofitable to make concessions to racial differences. Now come the inhabitants of Gottschee, a German settlement established among the Jugoslavs of Carniola some six hundred years ago, with a demand for independence. A proposal was lately made that the United States annex Gottschee as our forty-ninth Commonwealth; but this was not easy. A meeting of former Gottschees or Gottscheers in Brooklyn on Sunday thereupon called upon the President to obtain a hearing for Gottschee's claim to independence at the Peace Conference.

Gottschee has some 35,000 people; it would be larger than San Marino or Andorra; it is a sturdy centre of Germanism, whose national feeling runs high. But Gottschee, too, has its Ulster; in the district and the town itself there are many Slavs—how many one cannot say, for the Slavs put them at a high figure and the Germans ignore them. Nevertheless there are Slavs, and if the Peace Conference makes Gottschee independent it must guarantee cultural autonomy to the Slav minority.

Self-determination is easy to reduce to an absurdity, but it is a living principle just now. How Gottschee could live alone may be a problem; but perhaps another solution can be found. A year ago, while the war was still going on and national hatreds were less bitter, Slovene papers assured Gottschee that there would be no objection to giving its people proper minority rights in such matters as language and schools. Let us hope that even in these times of peace and rancor the Slavs may still be wise enough to permit it and the Gottschees moderate enough to accept it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Another Military Brotherhood.

That there will be an organization of the Americans who participated in the Great War, and that it will be more or less along the lines followed in forming and maintaining the old Grand Army of the Republic—those are certainties beyond the questioning of anybody with even a little knowledge of human nature and of the irresistible tendency of human beings who have been engaged in activities which they know to have been important. With a "folkway" as well established as this one there is no use in finding fault—the only thing to do is to try to get from it the advantages its survival through the ages proves it to possess, and at the same time to eliminate, as far as possible, its incidental disadvantages and dangers.

There are purposes of an entirely legitimate kind which the new G. A. R. can assist in achieving. Its members, for instance, with better reason than the rest of the American population to realize the desirability of having the people of the United States constantly in a state of military preparedness, mental, physical, and material, can accomplish much by advocacy of a reasonable amount of military training for the youth of the nation, in preaching to them that health and efficiency are largely matters of taking thought, and in fighting the miserable doctrines of pacifism and "safety first" in all their forms.

What the new organization should not do is what its predecessor did too often and too much, and that is to inspire in its members the delusion that they are somehow different from the rest of the American people and with interests diverse from, and in some degree antagonistic to, their interests. Only on such false assumptions as those is there any excuse for ex-soldiers to band together for political action. They want, or at any rate should want, nothing that is not for the good of the whole country.

Soldiers Become Civilians.

It is a fundamental principle of Americanism as well as of our form of government that, while all of us are under obligation to render military service in case of need according to capacity, as soon as the service has been rendered the soldier becomes again a civilian like another. That he should be in any respect a being apart is repugnant to all our ideas—all of our avowed intentions. Slight mitigations of this theory are inevitable in practice, and therefore are more than permissible.

If the discharged soldier had a commission he retains his grade by courtesy for life, if he chooses to do so, and for as long as he surpasses his home-staying neighbors in experience and in the fame won by gallant deeds. He becomes a part of the general public. He needs no defense from it, and the impulse to exploit it in any way should never assail him. But organization gives power, and the temptation to misuse power, unfortunately, is very great.

Ordered to Use Discretion.

A reference made in this column last week to the frequency with which returning officers and soldiers ignore some of the minor departmental regulations, especially those with regard to uniforms, conveyed an unintended implication that there had been failure on the part of the Provost Guard to do its full duty in the enforcement of these orders—that it had winked at their treatment more or less as "dead letters." As a matter of fact much work of this kind has been done, but the doing, in almost every instance, has been so tactful as to have attracted no public attention.

Hence, usually, the infractions of regulations have been remedied without causing any humiliation or resentment, and the success has been but partial chiefly because a good many of the violators of rulings as to Sam Browne belts and the like had already been mustered out and were no longer amenable to control.

The difficulties to be encountered in the performance of the duties devolving on the Provost Guard are recognized in the departmental instructions, and these contain also commendable exhortation to "use discretion and judgment to meet the varied and special cases which are encountered." And lest it be thought that an effort has been made harshly to impose iron laws as to the petty details of dress, it seems worth while to quote a few lines from the instructions issued to the Provost Guard by Major P. L. THOMAS:

The general purpose of the Provost Guard is to obtain results in the most efficient manner and in as quiet a manner as possible, without attracting unnecessary attention or interfering with the general public. In correcting minor infractions of regulations consideration will be used, avoiding humiliating scenes in the presence of civilians. Courteous and reasonable corrections considerately given without wasting time will generally accomplish the desired purpose.

Wonderful Record of Service.

Of the papers of the country to be counted among those that think for themselves and have opinions worthy of consideration, even when the opinions do not win agreement, is and long has been The Springfield Republican. The retirement from its service of its managing editor, S. B. GRIFFIN, is therefore a matter of more than ordinary importance in the world of journalism.

Mr. GRIFFIN entered The Republican office as office editor and staff correspondent in 1872, immediately after his graduation from Williams, and there he has remained ever since—the greater part of that time in the responsible position which he has just resigned. Through all these years he has exemplified the highest professional qualities, and consistently has exercised his high abilities in the production of a newspaper fully deserving of the fame it achieved. Carefully and successfully avoiding every form of sensationalism, Mr. GRIFFIN, as all the readers of The Republican know, did not lack vigor either in attacking policies to which he objected or in defending those which had his approval. He has been recognized as a dangerous antagonist and a powerful friend, and all of the innumerable controversies in which he has engaged have been conducted fairly and with the purpose, never doubted even by his antagonists, of advancing the interests of the country.

It is a pleasure to know that the retirement of Mr. GRIFFIN is not because of declining health, but to take up other work of a literary nature.

Rescinding the Declaration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Associated Press dispatch dated Paris, March 14, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of March 15, under the heading "May Leave Us at War With Germany; Queer Possibility of Other Powers Being Able to Conclude Peace Before We Can," is not so alarming as the headlines indicate.

The armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, with Germany was dictated and in terms made by the allied or Entente European powers, Great Britain, France, Italy, and the rest, as one group, and in another by the United States, which never was in that alliance or any other with those powers in their separate war with Germany.

On April 2, 1917, the Congress of the United States, in the exercise of its exclusive constitutional authority to declare war, did so for the following and sole stated reason:

"Whereas, The Imperial German Government has committed repeated acts of war against the Government and the people of the United States of America."

When President Wilson shall return to the seat of Government at Washington, or convene Congress in his absence, the two houses thereof can at any time rescind their joint resolution of April 2, 1917, declaring war with Germany, and thereby end the "condition of war" which Mr. Wilson has been prolonging ever since last November for purposes not disclosed and presumably best known to himself.

STUYVESANT FISH.

SUN OF MARCH.

With fanfare and with tantivy
The chasing winds swept past;
The night was wild as night could be
But fell in hush at last.

Dawn! And the Sun of March began
To pace across the sky;
No longer by the shortened span
Of wintry days gone by.

The journeying orb was clothed upon
With subtile-spun array;
It was, of light, the eidolon
Amid a doubtful day:

Now, like the thinnest wafer shone;
Behind a cloud-film gray;
And now, it seemed the moon, all wan,
In heaven gone astray!

But, swimming up the heightened arch,
It pierced the veiling mist—
Lo, how the Silver Sun of March
With silver all things kissed!

Silver upon the waking streams
And dipping willow-spray;
Old stubble-fields caught silver gleams—
Old farm-roofs far away!

And there was no obscurest spot
But had its magic gleam. . . .
The Silver Sun of March—it shot
A white ray on my dream!

EDITH M. THOMAS.

THE CAMP AT BREST.

Favorable Conditions Found by a British Officer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention was directed in France to the criticisms that had arisen regarding the conditions of the principal embarkation camp at Brest for the homecoming American troops. Being interested in the way this country is running its military affairs, I took the trouble to proceed to Brest from Paris, and without acquainting officials of any kind, I made a tour of inspection. This happened to be on one of the few dry days with which Brest is favored. To my surprise I found a very satisfactory encampment. Wishing to see it under more normal conditions I visited it ten days later in exceedingly wet weather, and stayed two whole days in its vicinity. For the life of me I cannot see what has caused all the adverse criticism.

Ever since war broke out in 1914 I have been connected with military camps in one part of the world or another, and I honestly feel that, whatever may have been the conditions at Brest earlier in the year, by the middle of February the conditions there were very satisfactory. I went from one end of the camp to the other and I could not help feeling with what satisfaction we would have accepted such conditions in England in the first year of the war, or how glad the Canadians, for instance, would have been to have found such comfortable quarters awaiting them when they first arrived on Salisbury Plain.

It is unfortunate of course that a seaport with its wretched conditions of rain should have had to be chosen for an embarkation camp, but the men simply must be within easy reach of the ships, and it is impossible to put them further inland. But granting that it is an inhospitable place, I believe that the unbiased observer will be compelled to conclude that everything possible has been done there for the comfort of the returning troops.

On the other hand, one fact is perfectly clear to any one who questions the officers who have been connected with the camp for some time, and that is that an unfortunate lack of vision was displayed by some one responsible for the management of the camp at the time the armistice was signed, or earlier. It must have been perfectly obvious then that the camp was soon to be used for large numbers of troops, and my conclusion is that insufficient steps were taken in November to make the camp habitable for these greatly increased numbers. One must remember in this connection, however, the difficulty experienced in getting the supplies that were then actually asked for, and the impossibility of providing duckboards and board walks when these were not forthcoming from home.

I do not doubt that the great weight of military opinion today is in favor of pronouncing Pontanezen a splendid camp. Civilians who are not experienced in the difficulties of constructing and maintaining a huge camp in what were farm fields are liable to be more critical, especially when they have the interests of the men at heart and believe that the best is not too good for their boys. Some of them need to be reminded of the fact that most of these boys have been living for months under conditions that make the embarkation camp a Waldorf-Astoria, and that many things that appear as hardships to the civilian appear acceptable to the soldier.

It is not my intention, Sir, to intrude in a discussion that is purely an American concern; I have been prompted to write these lines in the belief that the opinion of an unbiased military observer may be of some slight value.

ART NOTES.

Field Collection of Prints on View—Charles Rosen's Work.

At the Anderson Galleries a collection of modern etchings and lithographs belonging to Hamilton Easter Field is on exhibition until the date of sale, March 21. The collection was formed in Paris years ago, and is especially interesting as reflecting all phases of the evolution of lithography, from the work of Delacroix to that of Redon. Daumier, of course, is present, and the public is given the rare chance to secure five bound volumes of Le Caricature, the complete series. In this publication and Charivari, the two satirical papers founded by Philipon, Daumier made his way to the favor of the public, which long knew him as a wit and close observer of the passing show without realizing the greatness of his art. Fine as the rest of the collection is, it is dwarfed by these outpourings of a genius as mighty as it was simple and intelligible. Daumier's laughter at the foibles of the old, the vain, the sick, the stupid, has its note of tenderness, a pleasant laughter muffled by the beauty of his workmanship. Politics and the law aroused the bitterness of his humor. He is here in all moods, terrible in the sincerity of his comment and variably but always great as an artist.

The Delacroix lithographs include those made in illustration of "Hamlet," ranging over eight or nine years. Manet is represented by the rare lithograph made by the artist as a reproduction of his painting "The Execution of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico." The exhibition of the painting was forbidden by the French Government, and the lithograph was not published until after Manet's death. Among the etchings are four by Meryon, more than twenty by Legros, and ten by Whistler.

Work by Charles Rosen.

At the Ferargil Galleries is a group of canvases by Charles Rosen showing in several examples a new point of view, something of fancy and something of humor. The humor gets into the titles. He calls a little frame house, very small and unimportant, under the trees a "castle and another little house, with pallid clapboards, "The White Castle," and a weather-beaten gray building, with a tree behind it that spreads out a wide sweep of foliage in fan shape and another tree in front of it that cranes up like a neck, "The Peacock House." It is true artist humor and fancy, awakened by the thing seen, and not by any "literary" or other associations; and the painting is good. It is particularly good in a rich little landscape, with blue cliffs reflected in a stream half choked with ice. There is also a waterfall, in which the usual imitative spray effect is happily avoided. A second waterfall subject is even more interesting as a composition—on one side of a bold diagonal are smooth rocks that look as though they had been washed down by floods for thousands of years. Sharp little accents show that they have a mind of their own in the matter of cleavage. On the other side of the diagonal is the tumbling, tangled water and a medley of staccato brush strokes. The sense of textures and direction is conveyed without fumbling or compromise. The exhibition lasts through the month.

British and American Shipping.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the London cable dispatch in today's TIMES on "British Complaint of Our Shipping," it appears that a very great mistake has been made in calculation. The percentage of the British shipping employed in the South American trade is 5.9, and the American is a shade over 8 per cent. Nine per cent. of 10,200,000 tons is 918,000 tons, not 610,000, so that the proportion is just the reverse to what is stated in your dispatch, if your figures are correct as to amounts.

FREDERICK HART.

"ROOSEVELT HOUSE" AIMS.

Memorial to Former President to Teach Living Service.

The Woman's Roosevelt Memorial Association, which announced last Thursday the purchase of Theodore Roosevelt's birthplace at 28 East Twentieth Street, and the adjoining property at 26 East Twentieth Street, issued a statement yesterday outlining the purpose for which the "Roosevelt House" will be used. After the building is restored and the interior reproduced according to the description written by the late President in his autobiography, the house will be "a living thing, a place where the boys and girls of America, and the men and women as well, will come together in citizenship activities in order that their understanding of America may become deeper and keener, and in order that the great ideal of practical service to our country, of indefatigable activity in its behalf, shall stir and move with vivid power all Americans that frequent or visit Roosevelt House.

"That Colonel Roosevelt's vigor of life, robustness of belief, and energy of will may be eternally recalled to the youth of America in the real spirit and background of this memorial," said the announcement issued at its offices at 1 East Fifty-seventh Street. Mrs. Leonard Wood is Honorary President of the association and Mrs. William Curtis Demorest is the President. Other officers are Mrs. Thomas Jox Preston, Jr., Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. William Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Mrs. James T. Leavitt, Mrs. Elihu Root, Miss Louisa Lee Schuyler, Mrs. Robert Winthrop, Mrs. Henry A. Alexander, Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, Mrs. Charles A. Bryan, and Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn.

"We now urge every woman in America who believes that the spirit of Roosevelt is the spirit of a greater America, and of a sounder American youth, to join us," said the President of the association. "We want this memorial to be raised not by a small group of women here and there, but by the women of America in a great body, following a nation-wide impulse thus to memorialize the great living spirit we want to see carried on by our own sons. We believe it is fitting that as the women, and the mothers, of America we should thus in this concrete, symbolic yet practical way, in the place and the house of his birth, 'hand on the torch' of that vigorous flaming, never-dying spirit to the youth of America.

"A few years ago Colonel Roosevelt wrote to a friend protesting against 'meaningless mausoleums and monuments to the dead.' It seemed unthinkable to us to perpetuate his memory in that way. Colonel Roosevelt lives; 'he, being dead, yet speaketh.' We want a place set aside for the objects and ideas that characterized him, pervaded by the influences that developed him, a gathering place for the men and women and boys and girls he loved, where his voice may, year after year, be clearly and strongly heard. In the letter we have just spoken of the Colonel wrote: 'As for the rest of us who with failures and shortcomings, but according to our lights, have striven to lead decent lives—if any friends of ours wish to commemorate us after death, the way to do it is by some expression of good deeds to those who are still living.'"

The names of those who contribute $1 or more will be inscribed in a book of donors to be placed in the memorial and the receipts for all donations will be a small bronze pin bearing the likeness of Mr. Roosevelt. Contributions are to be sent to Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn, New York Trust Company, 1 East Fifty-seventh Street.

REJECTS McFADDEN LETTER.

Secretary Glass Calls It "Impertinent and Mendacious."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Representative L. T. McFadden of Pennsylvania, continuing his fight against Controller of the Currency Williams, today announced that he was considering the advisability of starting quo warranto proceedings to test Secretary Glass's right to reappoint Mr. Williams after the Senate failed to confirm him.

The controversy between Mr. McFadden and Secretary Glass was opened by the former sending a letter last Friday to the latter questioning the validity of the appointment. This letter Mr. Glass declined to answer, and returned it to Mr. McFadden with the statement that the letter was not couched in decorous language and therefore was not answered and would not be placed in the Treasury files.

Secretary Glass's letter to Representative McFadden follows:

"I am returning your letter of March 14, as I do not care to retain it for my files. Furthermore, I take leave to put you on notice that if you desire information concerning any official action of the Secretary of the Treasury while I am the incumbent of the office you may get it promptly and frankly by addressing to me a half-way decent inquiry; but you are given distinctly to understand that I recognize no obligation to respond to an offensively impertinent and deliberately mendacious communication such as I am now sending back to you."

In a statement quoting the above letter, Secretary Glass said he had appointed Mr. Williams upon the advice of the Controller of the Treasury, the law officer of the Treasury, and that the appointment would remain effective as a recess appointment until further action was taken by the President. He added that the Attorney General in 1908 had rendered an opinion which was his authority for making the appointment.

Representative McFadden, discussing the statement given out by Mr. Glass, said:

"I am familiar with the opinion of the Attorney General rendered in 1906, and am of the conviction that it does not apply to the present case. This is also the judgment of learned lawyers who have examined the opinion and its application to the Controller's tenure of office. The opinion pertains specifically to the Assistant Treasurer at San Francisco. The difference between Revised Statutes, Section 303, for the appointment of an Assistant Treasurer, and Sections 325 and 327, for the appointment of the Controller of the Currency, is that in the latter case Section 327 expressly provides that 'during a vacancy' the Deputy Controller shall possess the power and perform the duties attached by law to the office of the Controller.

"There is certainly a vacancy and Congress has provided how it shall be filled. In view of the insistence of the Secretary of the Treasury that he has authority to fill this vacancy in the absence of the President—an authority which reasonably can be questioned, in my opinion, I think there is sufficient ground to test the case by a writ of quo warranto."

Mr. McFadden late tonight sent another long letter to Secretary Glass, in which he reiterated his argument that Mr. Williams was holding office without due sanction of law.

To Observe Cleveland's Birthday.

Today is the eighty-third anniversary of the birth of Grover Cleveland, and the Grover Cleveland Association, of which George F. Parker, who was President Cleveland's secretary, is President, will hold exercises in the New Amsterdam Theatre. The speakers will include ex-Governor Harmon of Ohio, Gen. Leonard Wood, and Chief Magistrate William McAdoo. At noon, in St. Paul's Chapel, there will be memorial services.

ROPER GIVES POLICY ON TARDY TAXPAYER

Can Avoid Penalty by Affidavit Showing Sufficient Cause for Delinquency

OR PAY IN FULL ON DEMAND

Revenue Commissioner Instructs Collectors to Use Their Discretion in Exacting Payments.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Persons who neglected to pay the first installment of income taxes last Saturday have lost the installment payment privilege and must now pay their entire tax upon demand of a revenue collector.

To avoid the penalty of 25 per cent. in addition to the regular tax, persons who failed to file returns Saturday may now submit belated returns with a sworn statement of the reason for delinquency. Without this the penalty will be imposed.

These policies, announced today by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper, are intended to grant a degree of leniency to those who for some legitimate reason failed to file their returns when they were due. By law, however, the installment payment privilege is removed from all failing to make payments on time, and the Internal Revenue Bureau has no authority to change this provision.

"Revenue Collectors will accept all delinquent returns presented after March 15 and deposit any payment made therewith. Under law failure to make first payment by March 15 automatically makes the whole tax payable immediately. Taxpayers filing income returns subsequent to March 15, therefore, must pay in full, but if the taxpayer submits a partial payment he will be notified of the balance due later in the regular procedure of listing and sending notices, referring to the penalty of 25 per cent. additional tax for all delinquents, the policy will be to proceed sympathetically in accordance with the regulations permitting the taxpayer, if he desires, to file an affidavit within ten days explaining the cause of delinquency."

The statement was taken to indicate that persons who pay their taxes later than Saturday may have as much as sixty days in which to pay the remaining three-quarters.

Revenue Collectors have been instructed to use their own discretion in determining what constitutes a reasonable cause for failure to make returns or payments on time.

In some cities, according to reports reaching Commissioner Roper today, collectors' offices were unable to accommodate the last hour rush of applicants, and these returned today to file returns in person and make payments. In some of these cases it is possible that the requirement that they pay all installments on demand may not be enforced.

Indications were that fairly accurate figures on payments would not be available for a week. Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper today discussed with bureau officials the issuance of formal instructions to collectors providing for leniency in the case of belated returns reaching their offices this week.

COLLECTORS STILL BESIEGED.

The problem of how to deal with tardy taxpayers presented itself to local collectors of internal revenue yesterday when the offices opened for business for the first time since the period for filing returns and making first payments expired at midnight Saturday. An exact policy on this question could not be announced yesterday because the ruling from Commissioner of Internal Revenue Roper at Washington had not been received up to closing time. Several cases were referred to him yesterday, and though there unquestionably were similar instances in all parts of the country, an early decision was anticipated. There was no intimation that it was to be made public in Washington yesterday.

A slightly different procedure in these cases was adopted in the Second District, with offices in the Custom House, where most of the city's big business concerns make their returns, from that followed in the Third District, with offices at 1,150 Broadway, which is the centre for most of the smaller concerns and the individual taxpayers, other than those who live in Brooklyn. William H. Edwards, Collector in the Second District, held himself powerless under the law to accept payments and returns tendered yesterday, though a large number were proferred him. As a matter of fact he did not actually refuse to receive the filled-out forms, the checks or the money, but he segregated them and refused to mark them as part of the receipts of his office until a Treasury ruling was at hand.

In the Third District all such returns were accepted but were stamped, "Subject to penalty for delay." In both offices the delinquents were instructed to write letters explaining the delay, and all persons who hereafter may file returns or make payments likewise were requested by the collectors to send such letters. Now that the local authorities have been empowered by the Commissioner to pass upon each individual case and to decide whether there has been more than reasonable and necessary delay, it was said last night that fair consideration would be given in each instance and that the Government's representatives here would impose no und

FIND INTEREST KEEN IN THE WISE FUND

SELECT CAMPAIGN WORKERS

Leaders of the Isaac M. Wise Centenary Fund Campaign expressed themselves yesterday as highly pleased with the result of the first day's work in the campaign which will last all the week and which will endeavor to raise $100,000 among the Jews of New York for the furtherance of the work of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, founded by Dr. Wise. The campaign is nationwide and the sum for the country has been set at $300,000. The Reform Jewish Congregations in New York City are looked to for one-third the total sum and Jews unaffiliated with any congregations are expected to subscribe $25,000 in addition to the city's quota.

Although members of Reform Jewish Congregations are expected to carry most of the burden of the campaign the managers of the undertaking spoke yesterday in the highest terms of the quick response already offered by members of the Orthodox Jewish Synagogue. As an illustration of the sympathy of Orthodox Jews with the purposes of the campaign it was pointed out that a contribution of $1,000 and one of $100 had been received from men who at all times had been associated only with the orthodox Jewish synagogue in this city and who are pillars of their congregations.

Daniel P. Hays, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the campaign, said that the incident bore out his contention that American Judaism embraced both wings, orthodox and reform, and that no difference existed in loyalty to Jewish ideals because of differences of opinion on matters of form and ceremony.

Meetings where the campaign workers may report the results of their canvassing will be held at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the same time on Saturday and next Monday at the Hotel Biltmore.

Campaign Workers Chosen.

Campaign committees were chosen last night at meetings held at some of the temples taking part in the drive for the funds. Rabbi Rudolph Grossman of Temple Rodeph Sholem, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-third Street, and Benjamin Blumenthal, Chairman of the committee for the temple, supervised the appointment of about 100 men and women from the congregation to obtain subscriptions. It was unofficially said that half of the $5,000 quota of the temple was in sight. The present indications are that the quota will be about one-third oversubscribed.

Thirty-five canvassers were appointed last night at a meeting held at Temple Israel of Harlem, of which Dr. Maurice H. Harris is rabbi, and whose campaign committee is led by Daniel P. Hays. The Sisterhood of the temple and the Woman's Auxiliary are assisting in the work. Mrs. Bernard Whitlock is Chairman of the sisterhood and Mrs. Isidore H. Kempner of the auxiliary.

The Women's Committee of One Hundred, directly responsible to the Campaign Committee, is led by Rebecca Kohut, and there is a small advisory committee, which includes Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Chairman; Mrs. William D. Sporborg, Mrs. Morris Loeb, Mrs. Lazarus Kohns, Mrs. Julius Beer, and Mrs. William Einstein. The Women's Committee of One Hundred has selected a list of 3,000 names of men and women of New York City who are not affiliated with reform congregations, some of whom are not affiliated with any congregations, but whose sympathies are with Jewish movements and who in the past have associated themselves with all forms of Jewish charities and civic undertakings. The committee of women will make personal calls on these men and women in order to impress them with the objects of the organizations founded by Dr. Wise and the urgent necessity for their support by all Jews.

The sisterhoods of reform congregations have undertaken to assist the men of their congregations in canvassing for subscriptions from their congregation lists and from other sources. A special meeting of the New Synagogue, of which Dr. Ephraim Frisch is rabbi, will be held this afternoon for the purpose of organizing for the campaign.

There are at present, it is said, about 500 workers in the field, and they are in touch with 8,500 members of the community.

Statement By the Committee.

The slogan of the campaign is "For American Judaism." Another slogan, which was framed by Ben Altheimer, from Dr. Wise's Initials, is "Israel's Mighty Warrior." On Dr. Wise's eightieth birthday Mr. Altheimer, his friend and admirer, sent him the following message:

"The initials I. M. W. stand not only for Isaac Mayer Wise, but for 'Israel's Mighty Warrior.'" About 150,000 announcements bearing the last named slogan have been printed and sent to all parts of the country.

As a result of the outpouring generosity at the meeting held last night, rabbis and officers of their synagogues have been out seeking subscriptions from the members of their congregations. Responses in most cases were gratifying and no subscription of less than $25 was received.

Interest in the raising of the fund is intense, inasmuch as the hundredth anniversary of the founder of American Judaism takes place a week hence. The campaign for funds which is being waged at this time should have been undertaken two years ago but because of the war no campaign was introduced as it was held that the Red Cross and the war work organizations, as well as the Liberty Loan campaigns, should under no conditions be interfered with or hampered through a campaign for support of an institution whose needs were purely local.

With the war gloriously won, Democracy vindicated, a furtherance of religious ideals in this country must be undertaken. The boys of the Jewish faith who had so gloriously aided in the winning of the war have come back with renewed religious zeal. More synagogues of liberal tendencies must be organized throughout the country. The synagogues will require Rabbis who can preach the doctrine of modern Judaism. The many other activities that the Union of American Hebrew Congregations is engaged in must now be expanded, and, unless funds are immediately raised, the usefulness of their activities will be imperiled.

A telegram was received from the Hebrew Union College which stated that at the present time twenty-six of their students are occupying New York pulpits. There are eighteen New York pupils at the Seminary at this time, and scattered throughout the country, fifty graduates who originally were from New York City.

Here is a revised and corrected list of the contributors at the meeting on Sunday night at Temple Emanu-El where the campaign was inaugurated:

KENYON COX DIES; PAINTER AND AUTHOR

PNEUMONIA ENDS CAREER

His Mural Decorations in the Library of Congress and in Many State Capitols.

Kenyon Cox, one of America's most celebrated mural painters, also famous as an art instructor, an author, and a sculptor, died yesterday of pneumonia at his home, 130 East Sixty-seventh Street. With him when he died were his wife, his son, Allyn, and daughter, Miss Caroline Cox. Lieutenant Leonard Cox, his oldest son, who married Miss Frances M. Ward, is now in France attached to the 77th Division.

One of Mr. Cox's last engagements was for a paper on "German Painting" to be read on Thursday afternoon at the Chemists' Club, 50 East Forty-first Street, in the fourth annual course of addresses under the auspices of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. It had been announced that on account of the illness of Mr. Cox the paper would be read by Robert Underwood Johnson, Permanent Secretary of the Academy. The paper deals mainly with the influence upon German art of Durer and Holbein, whom Mr. Cox called the only two artists in the graphic arts approaching the front rank that Germany has produced.

Born in Warren, Ohio, Oct. 27, 1856, the son of General Jacob Dolson and Helen Finney Cox, Mr. Cox studied art in Cincinnati and Philadelphia, and then in Paris from 1877 to 1882, under Carolus Duran and Gerome, following which he came to New York City, where he had since made his home. Mr. Cox's pictures were principally portraits and figure pieces, and among his works are the painting of two decorations in the Library of Congress; one in the Walker Art Gallery, Bowdoin College; one in the Minnesota State Capitol; one in the Citizens' Buildings, Cleveland; eight in the Iowa State Capitol; one in the Essex County Court House, Newark, N. J.; one in Luzerne County Court House, Wilkes-Barre, Penn.; one in the Public Library, Winona, Wis., and a frieze in the courtroom of the Appellate Court of New York, and other decorative pictures.

Mr. Cox also modeled one of the statutes on the Brooklyn Institute Building. In 1910, he received the medal of honor for mural painting by the Architectural League. Mosaics and dome paintings in the Senate Chamber of the Wisconsin State Capitol were done by Mr. Cox.

Mr. Cox had served as President of the Mural Painters, was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, fellow of the A. N. A. and the N. A., and was a member of the Lotos Club. He was author of "Mixed Beasts," "Old Masters and New," "Painters and Sculptors," "The Classic Point of View," "Artist and Public," "Winslow Homer," "Concerning Painting," and was part author of "Modern French Masters" and "The Nineteenth Century." Among his best known paintings are "Old Wrestlers" (with the Angel)," "Vision of Moonrise," and "Flying Shadows."

On June 30, 1892, Mr. Cox married Miss Louise Howland King, who had been an art pupil of his, and who afterward became a famous painter, and has won many prizes and medals for her work.

The funeral will be held at St. George's Chapel, Stuyvesant Square and Sixteenth Street, Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

VANDER POEL GIVES CARHART SURPRISE

Squash Club Player Beats Class B Champion in Hard-Fought Match.

J. W. APPEL DEFEATS KNAPP

Harvard Club Expert Not Yet Pressed—Keeler Wins from E. J. Clapp.

Harold W. Carhart of the Yale Club was put out of the national amateur squash tennis tournament yesterday, when he was defeated by W. H. Vander Poel, the Squash Club player, in the second round of the championship competition on the Squash Club courts. Vander Poel won, 18—15, 15—11, in one of the fastest matches the tourney has produced. Carhart recently won the Class B national title and he was looked upon as one of the strong competitors in the Squash Club event.

Vander Poel mixed his strokes effectively and played a steady game throughout. He was hard pressed in the first game, and after gaining the lead, Carhart rallied and rolled up enough aces to square the game at 13 all. Vander Poel's accurate smashes were too difficult for Carhart to handle and the Squash Club player took the game at 18—15.

Carhart tried to rally in the second game, but his efforts were futile because he became erratic and missed at critical times. Vander Poel's game became stronger toward the end and he smashed the ball around the court with terrific speed.

Fred S. Keeler, the Columbia Club veteran, came through the second round with flying colors and defeated E. J. Clapp of the Yale Club, 15—11, 18—14. Keeler's steady, low strokes fooled his opponent in the opening contest, but in the second game the Yale Club player came along so strong, after Keeler had the score 13—11, that he sent over two drives which Keeler was unable to handle. This squared the game at 13 all. Keeler pulled himself together, however, and came through a winner in a strong finish.

John W. Appel, Jr., of the Harvard Club, came through without any difficulty, defeating W. J. Knapp of the Squash Club in straight games, 15—2, 15—10. Appel, with his variety of strokes, excellent control, and ability to cover court, had the match in hand at all times, and was never called upon to hit up his fastest pace. Knapp put up stiff opposition in the second game, but he was unable to break Appel's command of the situation.

F. H. Davis of the Harvard Club won from N. F. Torrance of the Crescent A.C. at 15—9, 17—18, 15—4. In the first and third games Davis had the situation in hand at all times and won about as he pleased. S. H. Johnson, the Yale Club player, put M. L. Cornell of the Columbia Club out of the tournament at 15—11, 15—2. Cornell's opposition, which was stubborn in the first game, grew much weaker in the second game, and Johnson mixed up his smashes and had Cornell on the run.

In another well-played match H. D. Bulkley of the Columbia Club defeated A. E. Ells, 15—12, 15—4. The Harvard Club player did not have the speed in his smashes which he showed in his match against E. E. Cruse last Saturday, and although he put up a stubborn defense in the first game, Bulkley took the second game as he pleased.

Harold Tobey, the Princeton Club player, advanced to the third round because A. G. Blaisdell of the Yale Club defaulted, and Edward W. Putnam of the Columbia Club advanced to the third round through the default of H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club.

The summaries:

National Amateur Squash Tennis Championship, Second Round.—Upper Half—F. H. Davis, Harvard Club, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent A. C., 15—9, 17—18, 15—4; W. H. Vanderpoel, Squash Club, defeated Harold W. Carhart, Yale Club, 18—15, 15—11; Fred S. Keeler, Columbia Club, defeated Edward J. Clapp, Yale Club, 15—11, 18—14; Harold Tobey, Princeton Club, won from A. G. Blaisdell, Yale Club, by default. Lower Half—Edward W. Putnam, Columbia Club, won from H. R. Mixsell, Princeton Club, by default; John W. Appel, Jr., defeated W. J. Knapp, Squash Club, 15—2, 15—10; S. H. Johnson, Yale Club, defeated M. L. Cornell, Columbia Club, 15—11, 15—2; H. D. Bulkley, Columbia Club, defeated A. E. Ells, Harvard Club, 15—12, 15—4.

PRAISE FOR "DOC" SHARPE.

Cornell Lauds Clean, Honest Tactics of Athletic Coach.

The passing of Dr. A. H. Sharpe as athletic director from Cornell to Yale is received with genuine regret at Ithaca. "Doc." Sharpe had become a fixture at Cornell, and the college daily, The Cornell Sun, prints the following valedictory:

"Old Eli wins this time, not a game, but a man Cornell has learned to admire and respect during the few years of his connection with Alma Mater's athletics—Dr. A. H. Sharpe. 'Doc.' Sharpe has piloted 'Varsity football, baseball, and basket ball through the most trying period of Cornell's athletic history—the war years. And there have been very few casualties during the trip.

"The doctor's most priceless gift to Cornell athletics has been giving them a fine point of view—that clean, honest, manly tactics are the only tactics to use. Dr. Sharpe's teams have been hard fighting teams, teams that played clean. Appreciation, heartfelt regrets, congratulations, and the best of luck in your work at your own Alma Mater go to you, Dr. Sharpe, from Cornellians everywhere."

Fulton Retires from Ring.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 17.—Fred Fulton, heavyweight boxer, today announced his retirement from the ring. He stated his intention was to buy a farm.

MUNOZ BOWS TO MALONEY.

Suffers First Defeat in Amateur Pool Tourney.

Cecil Munoz suffered his first defeat in the amateur championship pocket billiards tournament at the New York A. C. last night, when he bowed to J. J. Maloney of the Bronx in one of the closest games of the tournament. The score was 125 to 119 in twenty frames. Maloney had high runs of 13, 11, and 10. Munoz's high marks were 14, 10 and 9.

Maloney pulled the game out of the fire in a battle of wits that attended the scoring of the closing points. Munoz, playing in unusually bad luck from the start, fought a plucky uphill battle, and pulled even with Maloney when the one-hundredth point was rounded in the fifteenth frame. Maloney then drew away from his rival with a run of thirteen, but at the eighteenth frame Munoz was again dangerously upon the Bronx player, on the short end of a 119 to 113 score.

Then the two players called on their strategy, alternately sacrificing points on scratches calculated to end safely. Munoz scratched purposely twice and Maloney did the same. Then Munoz, under the rules, was compelled to abandon his safety game. This was costly for the balls were placed favorably for Maloney, who went to the front at the nineteenth frame by 124 to 119, missing on a difficult side pocket shot after a run of seven. Maloney was left safe on Munoz's next effort, but in trying to repeat the dose Munoz gave Maloney a corner pocket shot which ended the game.

Charles Shongood, Jr., defeated Albert C. Crowe in the afternoon game, by 125 to 79 in fifteen innings. Shongood was in good stroke and always held the upper hand in the score. He made high runs of 15, 14, and 13. Crowe returned top runs of 17 and 16.

J. Howard Shoemaker, the title-holder, will participate in his third game this evening when he opposes Henry S. Osborne, Connecticut State champion. Osborne is scheduled to play Crowe in the afternoon.

The scores:

AFTERNOON GAME.

Charles Shongood, Jr.—13 6 5 13 10 0 8 12 12 14 6 6 12 1 8—125. Scratch, 1; high runs, 15, 14, and 13.

Albert C. Crowe—1 8 9 1 4 14 6 9 3 0 8 8 2 13 4—79. Scratches, 3; high runs, 17 and 16.

EVENING GAME.

J. J. Maloney—14 1 7 6 9 11 14 4 8 2 3 2 11 3 9 13 6 4 7 1—122. Scratches, 10; high runs, 13, 11, and 10.

Cecil Munoz—0 13 7 8 5 3 0 10 6 12 11 12 3 11 5 1 8 10 7—119. Scratches, 13; high runs, 14, 10, and 9.

BRITTON KNOCKS OUT LEWIS

The end came after two minutes and ten seconds from a long swing to the jaw. The veterans fought at catch weights. Lewis did not land five clean blows. The bell saved Lewis in the sixth round, when he was knocked down three times.

Britton, through his knockout victory, regains the welterweight championship title, which he lost to Lewis in a bout at Dayton, Ohio, June 25, 1917. This contest went to twenty rounds, and the English boxer received the award of Referee Lou Bauman. Previously Britton had advanced, through a process of elimination which included bouts against the leaders of his class in all parts of the country, to a position where he was universally accepted as the welterweight champion.

Britton and Lewis have been opponents in the ring on at least twenty occasions. Many of their matches have been of the no-decision variety, where one or the other received the popular newspaper verdict. The popular decisions were about equally divided between the boxers. Their most recent local performance was at a boxing benefit held in Madison Square Garden last year for the war charities. Lewis received the popular verdict in this contest, and scored a clean knockdown over Britton.

The knockout will come as a complete surprise to those who are familiar with the styles of the two boxers. Britton has never been regarded as a heavy hitter against boxers who approach him in ability. His chief offensive weapon is a snappy left hand, which he consistently employs to jab an opponent. Lewis has demonstrated ability to hit harder and more effectively than Britton. The English boxer has been noted for his aggressive and effective style.

Clarke Defeats Lewis with Cue.

G. P. B. Clarke defeated John Lewis last night in the 18.2 balkline tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Doyle's billiard academy, by the score of 200 to 117, in forty-five innings. Clarke made a high run of 25, while Lewis's high was 10. In the amateur pool tournament George Barton triumphed over Joseph Clancy in a closely contested game by the score of 85 to 72. Barton's high run was 21, while Clancy's best effort was 9. Raymond Crane won from William Downes at snooker by 100 to 52. High runs were 25 and 17 for winner and loser respectively.

Klinger Wins at Balkline.

Jacob Klinger, representing Daly's Academy, defeated Edward Schevenell last night in the metropolitan 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament at Thum's by the score of 200 to 160. Klinger made a high run of 26 and averaged 4 20-46. Schevenell's best effort was 32 and he averaged 3 32-46.

THREE BIG STARS STILL HOLDOUTS

Cobb, Speaker, and Ruth Will Not Accompany Clubs on Spring Training Trips.

With the major league baseball clubs already on their way to Southern training camps, three of the greatest attractions in the American League, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, and Tris Speaker, are holdouts and have refused to take part in any Spring training. Cobb's stubborn attitude is the surprise of the season. Although the Georgian said, when he returned from France, that he might retire from the game, his statement made yesterday in Atlanta that he had not yet considered signing a contract comes as a shock to the Ban Johnson circuit.

Cobb says: "When I got back from France I said that I probably would not play ball again, and my sentiments haven't changed any since. It isn't a question of money with me exactly. Naturally, I feel that my services are worth a certain sum and I wouldn't play for less. But I am not a holdout in the sense of demanding more money. I am a holdout mostly because I have felt the last few months that I wanted to retire from the game. If I decide to return to baseball, I do not plan to do any Spring training work this season. The trainings I had in the army did me a world of good, and I can really say that I have been in strict training since the opening of last season."

The Red Sox are all ready to start for Tampa today, but Babe Ruth, the slugging pitcher, will not be with the players when they sail. Ruth at first demanded $16,000 a year from the Red Sox. He revised this demand, and his latest is said to be a three-year contract at $10,000 a year. President Harry H. Frazee has turned down this latest proposition.

Manager Miller Huggins mysteriously disappeared yesterday, and it is believed that he has gone to Lebanon, where Del Pratt is assistant superintendent in a steel mill. Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is a close friend of Pratt, said here the other day that he was positive that Pratt would not give up his good position to play ball again. If Huggins has gone to see Pratt and gets a negative answer, it is believed that the Yankee manager will go to Ridgely to talk with Charley Hersog. President George Grant of the Braves did not go South with his players yesterday morning, but has decided to stay here until tomorrow. The Hersog matter, it is said, is keeping him here. Grant has ordered Hersog to report at the club's training camp at Columbus, Ga., but it is not likely that the player will report unless he has some assurance about what Grant expects to do with him after the season starts. Hersog does not intend to go to the training camp, take part in the exhibition games against Detroit, and then come home to Boston to be released.

The Yankee holdouts are now Pratt, Ernie Shore, and Dutch Leonard. Shore notified the club yesterday that he would go to the training camp and talk over his contract with Manager Huggins. Frank O'Doul, the young pitcher the Yanks drafted from the Pacific Coast League, has signed his contract. The first installment of the Yanks expect to start for Jacksonville on Saturday.

Leon Cadore, the Brooklyn pitcher, and Catcher Otto Miller led the Dodger invasion on Florida yesterday when they started for the Jacksonville training camp. Ed Pfeffer is already working out at Hot Springs and the other Brooklyn players will start South on Thursday.

The advance guard of the Giants will get away on Thursday night. In the party will be Manager McGraw, Secretary John B. Foster, Assistant Manager Christy Mathewson, Benny Kauff, Larry Doyle, Heinie Zimmerman, George Smith, Ryan Terhune and Brogan, recruit pitchers, and Jack Gillespie.

Roger Bresnahan of the Toledo Club is still in town trying to bargain with the Giants and Yankees for players. Jim Middleton, the Giants' pitcher, will probably be handed over to Roger, and the Yanks also have some excess talent which he may snare.

Al Tearney, President of the Western League, has called a meeting of the Committee of Minor Leagues who are to prepare the covenant of the bush league declaration of independence. The committee will get together in Chicago on March 29. They will draw up a document which will be presented to the major leagues for approval.

They plan to form a national commission of their own and break all brotherly connections with the majors. The committee includes Al Tearney, President of the Western League; Dave Fultz, President of the International League; Thomas J. Hickey, President of the American Association; Ed Hanlon of Des Moines, and J. W. Morris, President of the Texas League.

JIM RICE DECLINES OFFER.

Will Not Coach Columbia Crew This Year.

Jim Rice, who was coach of the Columbia University crews from 1908 until last June, when he resigned, has definitely refused to accept an offer which has been made to him to take hold of the rowing situation at Columbia for the rest of the college year, and become head coach of the 'Varsity and freshman crews. Rice has been offered the position at Columbia, but in view of the fact that he expects to go to Canada next month, and then to Cuba early in May, he has refused to consider the proposition.

In view of Rice's stand it is understood that the position of coach of the Morningside Heights crews will be offered to Eugene J. Giannini, formerly coach at the New York Athletic Club, and for a season or two at Yale, where he handled the Yale freshmen. Giannini will give the Blue and White crews such time as he has. This will leave the actual coaching work in the hands of Fred Plaisted, assistant coach, who has been acting head coach for the last two months.

While the selection of a coach has been under consideration the crews have not been sent outdoors and will probably continue to row on the machines until Giannini's appointment is officially announced.

VICTORY FOR NASSAU FIVE.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 17.—Princeton's Nassau team, composed of ineligible varsity men, defeated the Crescent five here tonight 28—20. The game was fast and exciting throughout, neither team gaining a commanding lead at any time.

The team work of the Nassau five outclassed that of their New Moon rivals. Dickinson's play was a feature, while Calder played the best game for the Crescents.

The lineup:

Nassau, (28.)	Position.	Crescent A.C. (20.)
Raymond	R. F.	Herten
Hynson	L. F.	Calder
Dickinson	C.	Freling
Wittmer	R. G.	Stewart
Legendre	L. G.	Griffin

Goals—Hynson, (3.) Dickinson, (2.) Griffmond, Freiling, Calder, Herten. Foule—Calder, 8 out of 10; Legendre, 5 out of 13; Hynson, 2 out of 4. Referee—Carl Reed of Springfield. Umpire—Mr. Green of Temple. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

POOL FOR DARTMOUTH.

Former Governor Spaulding to Make Gift.

HANOVER, N. H., March 17.—That Dartmouth College is to have a swimming pool in the near future was announced today through the college office by Rolland H. Spaulding of Rochester, former Governor of New Hampshire. Governor Spaulding was contemplating this gift at the time the United States entered the war, and emergency conditions put an end to all but emergency construction. While no date for the contemplated building has been set, operations probably will begin when prices show signs of stabilization.

The proposed pool will occupy a specially constructed wing added to the alumni gymnasium. A spectators' gallery will be provided.

OLLIE CHILL TO UMPIRE.

Ban Johnson Signs Him for American League Staff.

CHICAGO, March 17.—President Ban Johnson of the American League today completed his staff of umpires for the coming season. Ollie Chill, for the last two years an umpire in the American Association, was signed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of "Silk" O'Loughlin. Chill was in the American League in 1918.

The other members of the staff are: T. H. Connolly, W. G. Evans, William Dineen, George Hildebrand, C. B. Owens, R. S. Nallin, and George Moriarty. All were in the league last season. The coming season will be Connolly's twenty-sixth year as a professional umpire and his nineteenth year with the American League.

Shoemaker Wins at Angles.

J. Howard Shoemaker defeated Charles Shongood last night in the New York State amateur championship three-cushion tournament at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn, by the score of 30 to 22 in fifty-nine innings. Each player made a high run of three.

Indians Start for Camp.

CLEVELAND, March 17.—The second squad of the Cleveland Baseball Club left here tonight for the training quarters at New Orleans.

IMPORTED TERRIER IS BEST OF SHOW

Gatenby's Armley Nish Takes Prize at Annual Yorkshire Club Exhibit.

With her recently imported Gatenby's Armley Nish Mrs. William C. Thompson took the prize for best of show yesterday at the second annual specialty show of the Yorkshire Terrier Club, held at the Park Avenue Hotel. Gatenby's Armley Nish's triumph was sensational. Among his victims was Champion Gatenby's St. Wilfred's King, which heretofore enjoyed an almost unbeaten career. A total of forty dogs were passed on by the judge, Mrs. R. T. Harrison.

Gatenby's Armley Nish is a wonderful dog in appearance and is the proud possessor of a remarkable coat. This coat drapes about him for about fifteen inches on one side. The dog has been in this country only about two weeks, having come here from England. Before reaching this country Gatenby's Armley Nish journeyed from Liverpool to Brest, and then to Halifax. His owner said yesterday that the dog was a good sailor and never missed a meal.

John Woods of Leeds, England, owned Gatenby's Armley Nish before the dog came into possession of Mrs. Thompson, who is President of the Yorkshire Terrier Club. Mrs. Thompson had been negotiating for the dog's purchase for the last two years. In English shows Gatenby's Armley Nish compiled the enviable record of securing a score of the best of show prizes and more than a hundred toy specials. The dog has just turned his fourth year.

Fairy, an American-bred female, owned by Mrs. M. Menges, was best of opposite sex to Gatenby's Armley Nish. Mrs. Menges, in annexing the prize for winning female with Fairy, interrupted what otherwise would have been a perfect day for Mrs. Thompson. The club President, who exhibited under the name of Gatenby's Kennels, captured the lion's share of the prizes, particularly in the dog classes. In the female division, however, Mrs. Thompson's Gatenby's Peggy Worthington, which led in the novice class, had to be content with reserve to Mrs. Menges's Fairy.

The awards:

Dogs; Puppies, six and under nine months.—First, Mrs. Vinton P. Bresee's Gatenby's Boughboy; second, Mr. and Mrs. James Mogg's Towser.

Puppies, nine and not exceeding twelve months.—First, Mrs. A. Radcliffe's Little Bilks; second, Mrs. F. C. Farnsworth's Wee Wee Yorkie; third, Mrs. Oliver N. Rafferty's The King; fourth, Mrs. P. Hargrave's Pershing.

We would remind returning soldiers who are scrambling to get back to civil life that our four convenient stores form a sort of Civilian Q. M. Depot.

They contain everything a soldier wears—when he quits soldiering.

But with the completeness of our outfitting, the resemblance to the Q. M. stops.

Our *"Westpointer" shoes, made on the last approved for West Point Cadets, give the comfort you've been used to in Army shoes, but look all right for business.

Price in tan just the same as it was when the 27th Division sailed for France—$7.50. The blacks however have advanced to $9.

FOXHUNTERS BEAT WHITE OWLS TRIO

The Foxhunters rode roughshod over the White Owls last night in the Winn Cup indoor polo tournament at Durland's Riding Academy. When the goals were counted the Foxhunters were hugging the long end of a 12½-to-6½ score. The White Owls' total included a handicap of two goals, while the fraction resulted when Otis Coleman, back, was penalized one-half a goal for foul in the second period. This period was completed without the White Owls annexing a goal. At the end of the first half the teams were tied with 7 goals each.

The combination of Archie Kinney and George Sherman proved too much for Herbert Winn and his mates on the White Owls. Sherman got four goals in the first period, while Kinney made two in this session and five in the second period. In the heat of the battle a White Owls pony took it upon himself to aid in his team's defeat, and scored a goal for the Foxhunters. A half-goal penalty for foul in the second period on Kinney accounted for the Foxhunters' fractional score. Major Nelson of West Point played well as back for the successful trio.

This was the first victory for the Foxhunters in the tournament. The team now is tied with Squadron A and the Revere for second place.

The lineup:

FOXHUNTERS. (12½.)	WHITE OWLS. (6½.)
No. 1—G. Sherman.	No. 1—M. Wilder.
No. 2—A. Kinney.	No. 2—S. Winn.
Back—Major Nelson.	Back—O. Coleman.

Goals—First period: Sherman, (4.) Kinney, (3.) Major Nelson, Wilder, Winn, (1) second period: Kinney, (3.) pony for Foxhunters. Handicap—White Owls, ½ goals. Penalties—Coleman, ½ goal for foul; Kinney, ½ goal for foul. Time of periods—Ten minutes. Referee—Earl Hopping. Timekeeper—Thomas Ford. Scorer—Sol Frank.

PREPARE FOR PREAKNESS.

Many Turf Stars Will Be Entered for Race.

Though the entries for the Preakness, which will be run during the Spring meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club at Pimlico, will not close until April 3, it is already evident that some of the best three-year-olds in the country will face the barrier in that event, which will have a value of $25,000 this year. Many of the turf stars of last year are being prepared for the race. The list of eligibles includes practically all of the best performers in the two-year-old division last year.

Among the probable entries this year are Dunboyne, American Ace, Regret, Passing Shower, Sweep On, Terentia, Fifth Queen, Eternal, Cirrus, Aunt Dinah, Mormon, Purchase, Pigeon Wing, The Wanderer, War Pennant, Lord Brighton, and Pen Rose.

NEVINS SUES OIL COMPANY.

Thomas A. Nevins, banker, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against the Consolidated Progressive Oil Corporation, a Delaware concern with an office at 50 Broad Street, and Robert L. Smith, President of the corporation of Shreveport, La., for $1,035,000 damages for breach of contract, and on the ground that the defendants are not residents of this State he obtained an attachment against their property.

Nevins alleges that in January, 1917, Smith stated that the defendant corporation owned 16,000 acres of oil lands under lease near Homer, La., and being in desperate need of funds would sell 8,000 acres for $65,000. The plaintiff said he could get the money and brought the matter to the attention of W. A. J. M. Van Waterschoot van der Gracht, President of the Roxana Petroleum Co., owner of oil land adjoining that of the defendant, who said he would pay $100,000, and gave the defendant the difference between one-sixth and one-eighth of the gross production of oil from the land. The plaintiff says he was to get all over the $65,000 received by the defendant for the property and that as a result of the refusal of the defendants to carry out the agreement he has been damaged in the sum sued for.

Education Notes.

The pupils in the high schools will be required to know something about the City Government. A temporary minimum outline for the rest of this term in community civics has been prepared. Frank A. Rexford has been assigned to supervise the work.

The names of the following have been placed on the License No. 1 list, as of March 13: Theodore Huebener, 86.45; Marie Murphy, 95.033; Mrs. Mary M. MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

KELLY-SPRINGFIELD TIRE CO.
15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, New Jersey.
NOTICE OF SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS.

Please take notice that, by order of the Board of Directors, a special meeting of the stockholders of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company will be held at the principal office of the Company, No. 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, New Jersey, on March 31, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of acting upon the following:

1. To increase the authorized common stock of this Company from $5,029,900, par value, its present authorized amount, to $10,000,000, par value.

2. To increase the authorized preferred stock of this Company from $3,990,300, par value, its present authorized amount, to $3,990,300, par value, which decrease represents 900 shares of preferred stock of this Company of the par value of $100 per share, which have been purchased by this Company for its "Special Surplus Account," and duly cancelled in accordance with the provisions of the Certificate of Incorporation.

3. To amend, change and alter the first complete paragraph of Article Fourth of the Certificate of Incorporation of this Company, so that as amended, changed and altered, said first complete paragraph of Article Fourth of the Certificate of Incorporation of this Company, shall read as follows:

"FOURTH: The total authorized Capital Stock of this Corporation is Thirteen Million Nine Hundred Thousand Three Hundred Dollars ($13,900,300), of which stock Three Million Nine Hundred Thousand Three Hundred Dollars ($3,900,300) divided into thirty-nine thousand and three (39,003) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100), shall be Six Per Cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock, and Ten Million Dollars ($10,000,000) divided into four hundred thousand shares of the par value of Twenty-Five Dollars ($25) each, shall be Common Stock. Said Six Per Cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock shall entitle the holders to receive in each year out of the surplus net earnings of the Company a fixed yearly dividend of Six Per Cent. (6%) before any dividends shall be paid upon or set apart for the Common Stock; such dividends on the Six Per Cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock shall be payable annually, and, at the discretion of the Board of Directors, the same may be paid quarterly or semi-annually, and shall date from April 1, 1914, except as to $1,149,500 thereof, issued and outstanding prior to April 1, 1914, on which the dividends shall date from June 1, 1899."

4. To further amend the Certificate of Incorporation of this Company, so far as amendment is necessary, as to increase the authorized common stock in the manner and to the amount specified in said subdivision 1 hereof, and to decrease the preferred stock to the extent and to the amount specified in subdivision 2 hereof, and to provide for such other amendments, changes and alterations in the Certificate of Incorporation or any of the provisions thereof, as may be necessary or advisable in order to carry out any resolutions which may be adopted and approved at this special meeting.

5. To authorize the President and / or Secretary or any other officer of this Company, to execute for and on behalf of this Company, and to affix the corporate seal hereto, any certificate or other instrument in writing necessary or required, in order to increase the authorized common stock and to decrease the authorized preferred stock, and to amend the Certificate of Incorporation of this company in accordance with any resolutions which may be adopted at this special meeting, and to file said Certificate or other instrument in writing in the office of the Secretary of State of New Jersey, and to do any and all other acts necessary or required or deemed advantageous in order to carry out the resolutions which may be voted at this special meeting of stockholders.

6. To transact such other and further business as may lawfully come before said meeting. R. J. SEAMAN, Secretary.

A Better Outlook for Investors

Peace conditions have already improved the earnings of many corporations that were seriously affected by the war. That these earnings will continue to increase with the return to normal conditions is confidently expected.

Since security prices in some cases have not as yet reflected these improved earnings and prospects, we are still able to offer strong securities at wartime prices.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Heavy Trading in Stocks Brings Both Strength and Heaviness —French Exchange Down.

The stock market continued yesterday the same general character which marked dealings last week. The major part of the turnover in excess of a million shares was again supplied by transactions in particular groups of industrial stocks which gained considerable ground. While oil, tobacco, and automobile stocks and certain of the chemical and manufacturing issues were reaching toward new high levels for the movement, the steel and railroad shares acted sluggishly and, in general, left off with small declines. The really pronounced feature of the session was the improved demand for copper stocks, whose advances, extending from a good size fraction to more than a point, appeared almost to have been facilitated by the annual statement of the American Smelting and Refining Company. This report showed clearly enough that sales and profits in 1918 were far less satisfactory than the year before, but it indicated also that some of the adverse conditions affecting the industry had been experienced at what may prove to be their lowest depths for some time to come. All information goes to show that the copper companies are doing very little business and are seeing their stocks of metal added to every day. Still the impression is to be gathered from comment heard in the industry that costs will tend to decline as time passes and it stands to reason that the world will some day have to buy a great deal of copper as industry expands at home and abroad and electric transportation facilities are extended.

The day's news contained few items of a marketwise import. It seems as though the stocks which moved forward the furthest, excluding the copper issues, were carried along chiefly by the impetus they had gained before. Some of the shares which had seemed in extensive speculative demand at the close of last week were offered in a steady output of realizing sales, but the reactions noted among them were overshadowed for the most part by the plunging advances of others. The railroad and steel issues presented a subject for study of a quality quite different from that offered by the stocks which were strong. Presumably traders desire, before taking on new lines, to discover something of the results aimed at in Washington on Wednesday, when steel producers and the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce discuss prices. The railroad list remained under the shadow of uncertainty entailed in measures yet to be rounded out for financing the carriers during the period of emergency. The theory might be advanced that the stocks which have been holding back for the last seven days are those which are known to have definite influences surrounding them for the near future, while the buoyant portion of the list contains issues which are governed in the main by long-time considerations whose product is expected to be favorable. Buyers of the latter are seeking to anticipate betterments in manufacturing and trade which are not yet clearly discernible. The Federal Reserve Board, in its monthly bulletin, notes that many trade restrictions between nations will need to be removed before American business can return to its pre-war freedom, and, while similar thoughts are receiving prominence in banking and producing quarters, the market for special stocks has shown confidence that the situation will right itself after a while.

French exchange supplied almost a sensation in the foreign exchange market by declining to the lowest level since the Autumn of 1917. Paris checks were variously quoted from 5.71 to 5.67 as a minimum in the afternoon, following a sharp fall from Saturday's last quotation of 5.55. The movement was the result of the re-establishment of the dollar rate in Paris on a basis corresponding to 5.70 for francs at New York, a purpose being to discourage heavy imports of goods into France. The new rate carried with it a substantial increase of the premium on dollars which French importers would have to meet in buying goods in the United States. Call money rates were slightly easier.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Western Electric's Net Income Gains.

The Western Electric Company is one of the relatively few concerns whose 1918 reports have been issued which were able to turn a decline of gross income into an increase of net return. The corporation's total revenue of $145,891,033 was approximately $5,758,000 under the aggregate the year before, and the net of $5,050,849 was $890,000 larger than in 1917. War taxes, presumably, were smaller than in the preceding year, because of the recession in the taxable income, and the management set aside as a "special appropriation" an amount $1,400,000 smaller than the 1917 report showed. It is the practice of the company to pay out most of its surplus earnings in dividends, and the increase of the balance left after interest was paid enabled the Directors to vote $3,200,000 in dividends, compared with $2,550,000 the year before. The stock is owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Liberty Bonds Continue Downward.

The approach of the Victory Liberty Loan campaign has not yet had a helpful influence on the quotations of Liberty bonds. This is hardly surprising, and yet it had been expected in some quarters that the terms for the new offering of notes would be such as to bring something of a rally in the outstanding issues. The action of the market to date has indicated that, while the terms have been discussed in a general way by Government officials and bankers, definite decisions on interest rate and tax exemption privileges have not been made. The financial community is waiting with tense ears to hear something of the initial efforts to shape the offering.

BETHLEHEM STEEL EARNS $15,930,390

$24,329,245 GOES TO PLANT

Maturing British Notes Release $37,000,000 in Cash—Set Aside $31,510,366 for Depreciation.

The annual pamphlet report of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which was issued yesterday, gives figures closely approximating those which were contained in the tentative report issued at the time of the last dividend meeting. In the one important item from the point of view of the stockholders the difference between the tentative figures and those of the report was less than $60,000. In the preliminary record of earnings the total of net income for the year was given at $16,000,000, whereas in the final accounting the exact total is $15,930,390. This latter amount is equivalent, after the deduction of preferred dividends, to approximately $21 a share on the A and B common shares. The gross sales of the year were $448,410,808, as compared with $298,929,530 in the preceding year. There is nothing in the report to show what amount was set aside for Federal taxes. The one big increase is for depreciation, amortization, and depletion, the 1918 figures being $31,510,366, as against $17,911,640 in the preceding year. The balance sheet shows working capital of $80,145,493.

Interest charges	9,748,012	1,001,030
Balance	47,440,756	2,208,378
Depreciation, &c.	31,510,366	13,598,725
Net income	15,930,390	*11,390,346

*Decrease.

The report says:

"The issue during 1918 of the $50,000,000 secured serial 7 per cent. gold notes of your corporation provided funds for the payment at maturity of the two-year 5 per cent. secured gold notes of Bethlehem Steel Company which matured Feb. 15, 1919. The new notes were secured in part by $37,300,000 of 5 per cent. British Treasury notes and $300,000 cash, which appear on the balance sheet in this report under the heading, 'Investments: Securities and cash pledged as collateral.'

"These British Treasury notes matured and were paid on Feb. 1, 1919, and under the provisions of the trust indenture securing the secured serial 7 per cent. gold notes this $37,600,000 is released to your corporation by the trustee thereunder upon the substitution therefor of $70,000,000 Series A bonds issued under the consolidated mortgage of your corporation and Bethlehem Steel Company authorized by the stockholders of the corporation at the special meeting held Aug. 8, 1918.

"This mortgage, under which there are presently to be issued only the $70,000,000 Series A bonds, provides for an authorized issue of $500,000,000 and affords a means of consolidating or refunding the various bond issues of subsidiary companies now outstanding and of providing for any future financing of extensions and improvements.

"The release to the corporation of this $37,600,000 provides for the entire present construction program as stated below and for additional working capital. This places the finances of your corporation in good condition, with improvements and all other requirements of the present year, including maturing obligations, provided for.

"The net additions to property account during the year amounted to $24,329,245, and the present construction program contemplates for its completion the expenditure in 1919 of about $20,000,000. This program covers mainly the commercial steel plant at Sparrow's Point, Maryland, which when completed will result in making productive an investment of upward of $50,000,000. Your corporation will then have an annual capacity of more than 3,000,000 tons of steel ingots, with finishing plants of sufficient capacity to convert this entire tonnage into commercial products, thus completing the provision for reduction in Government orders and the practical cessation of the manufacture of munitions."

The report gives no inkling as to what new lines of work the corporation will take up in turning the steel into commercial products. It has been rumored that tractor engines would be manufactured.

EGGS.—17,017 cases. The firmness developed at the close of last week continues fully maintained under moderate receipts and strong Western advices. Gradings under the New York Mercantile Exchange rule have been changed. There is no further definition of an extra first, and the quality requirements of firsts have been somewhat raised. We divide the quotation of firsts into sectional differences in order to more clearly define values. Only very prime Northern goods are reaching the outside quotation, the greater part of the trade being at 41@42c. Nearby white eggs are quite plenty and moving slowly. Duck eggs scarce and wanted. SHARP ADVANCE IN COTTON.

Some aggressive buying by the so-called Wall Street houses, and not a little purchasing for account of Liverpool interests, sent the cotton market up with a sharp rush in the early hours of yesterday's session. These Wall Street houses have become quite a factor in the cotton market and, if the experience of other years means anything now, they are likely to continue a factor as long as there is any considerable speculative interest in stocks. When the stock market is strong and active, these house usually take a great interest in cotton and more often than not they favor the long side. That is the case at present. Their buying has had a good deal to do with the recent strength of the staple. Yesterday it was easily more of an influence than the foreign buying.

The buying movement, which did not begin with the opening of the market but set in some little while after the opening call, carried the market up 50 to 60 points. March contracts went up even more, selling at 27 cents, for a net gain of 73 points, but the active future options did not get up quite that much. Old May sold at 24.50, while new May sold at 25.26 and new October at 22.20. These were the best prices of the day.

In the early afternoon there was a reaction which took the level down below that of Saturday's closing, but this did not last long and on more good buying in the late trading the market rallied and closed at gains ranging from 5 to 20 points for the active months.

The switching from old to new contracts still goes on, but the volume of this business is steadily diminishing. As the matter looks now, it is likely that there will be very few outstanding old contracts by May 1, the date on which the heavy trading tax becomes operative on old contracts.

FRENCH EXCHANGE HAS A SHARP BREAK

Held to Indicate a New Commercial Policy Seeking to Discourage Imports.

RATE HERE FALLS TO 5.71½

Payments by American Army in France Expected to Offset Maturing Loan.

The sharp break in French exchange yesterday, when the rate fell to 5.71½ francs to the dollar, as against a quotation of 5.50 on Saturday and a parity of 5.18½, was caused by the action of the French Treasury authorities who reduced the official rate at Paris to 5.70, from 5.45, on Saturday. This change in the official rate did not become known here until late yesterday afternoon. There was a corresponding reduction in the official rate on London.

The action of the French Treasury, it was learned, was not due to any inability on the part of the French Treasury or the Bank of France to obtain further sterling credits at London, or dollar credits in New York, as was asserted in dispatches from London. On the contrary, it was said yesterday by a banker familiar with the situation that it was the result of a new commercial policy adopted by France to discourage imports into the country and to facilitate exports out of France. For some time a certain element in France has been clamoring for a removal of all restrictions on trade, both domestic and foreign, and has been demanding that the Government end its licensing system with regard to importations of merchandise. Those who favored continuation of the system contended that French foreign credit could not stand an absolutely free movement, and it is believed that the lowering of the French rate is notice that all restrictions are not to be removed.

It was pointed out yesterday that the very lowering of the exchange rate operates against importing goods into France. At 5.45 francs to the dollar the discount on francs is slightly more than 5 per cent., while at 5.70 the discount is about 9¼ per cent. Thus the French importer has to pay a premium of nearly twice as much at the present rate as was necessary under the previous official rate. This, in effect, is a tariff on goods sent to France. Adversely the French merchant who sells goods to America for dollars or to England for sterling is better off than if he sold in his own country.

The French Government has a $100,000,000 loan maturing here on April 1. This loan, when offered here two years ago, was made payable here in dollars or at Paris at the rate of 5.75 francs to the dollar. Recently J. P. Morgan & Co., acting for the French Government, announced that they would redeem these bonds at the rate of 10¾. This precluded the sending of a great many bonds to Paris, but it is believed many were forwarded to the French capital before the offer was made. Of late selling of the credits which American banks thus acquired in Paris has had an adverse influence on the franc market, but it was believed the French Treasury and the Bank of France had sufficient funds from payments by the American Army in France to offset this.

Yesterday's low rate of 5.71½ was the lowest recorded since November, 1917.

PARIS STUDIES EXCHANGE.

Rise in Dollar and Pound Rates Causes Alarm in Debate.

PARIS, March 17.—The rise in some foreign exchange rates here, it develops, was caused by French, American, and English banks, which had placed large amounts at the disposition of their Governments, failing to renew those credits when they expired on Friday. The Bank of France, for instance, had credited the United States Government with $1,036,000,000 francs, ($207,200,000), against which dollars were imported at the fixed rate of 5.45. The credit terminated on Friday, and thus the purchases of dollars must buy in the open market.

Exchange brokers here are alarmed, believing that French exchange will be the one to suffer most from any increase in the dollar and the pound rates, forcing a corresponding decrease of the French franc on foreign exchanges.

There are heavy demands at present for the dollar, the pound and foreign securities. According to a prominent broker the French capitalist and small investor are trying to get under cover from the proposed tax on capital by placing their funds in foreign banks.

Discussing the rise in exchange for the pound sterling, which has been nearly 6 per cent. in two days, the financial editor of the Journal des Debats says:

"If the British Government thinks that it no longer is possible to accord France direct advances nor extend equivalent resources in some other form, France will be obliged to buy elsewhere in countries, which are prepared to open credits for her, notably the United States, which can supply everything now received from England, even coal."

The writer contends that the cost will be greater to France, as a final settlement would come when the normal rate of exchange had been reestablished.

Amortization
2
Mortgage Reform Needed

THE need of reform in lending money on bond and mortgage on city real estate is generally acknowledged. Savings banks, large insurance companies, and individual investors demand that mortgage be amortized, or reduced, by annual partial payments of principal, thus making the loans safer and more liquid.

Amortization is a fundamental principle of the Straus Plan, and is largely responsible for its record of 37 years without loss to any investor. Write for literature describing our Plan and the sound first mortgage 6% serial bonds we offer, in $100, $500, and $1000 denominations. Ask for

PREDICTS LABOR SHORTAGE.

Abram I. Elkus Thinks Man-Power Deficit May Be 5,000,000.

A great labor shortage with perhaps a man-power deficit of 5,000,000 was predicted to follow the close of the reconstruction period by Abram I. Elkus, Chairman of the State Reconstruction Commission, who spoke last night at the annual meeting of the Social Service Department of the Free Synagogue, 26 West Sixty-eighth Street. Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, Director of the social service work, and Dr. Stephen S. Wise also discussed phases of post-war conditions.

"The problem of re-employment for returned soldiers," said Mr. Elkus, "is, of course, the first immediate question. We must see that each soldier receives some work for which he is fitted. The soldiers, I believe, will find not only his old job, but a better one, because eager hands will be stretched out everywhere to assist him. The big task, therefore, is not the soldiers, but the men and women who lost their places shortly after the armistice was signed. I understand that they outnumber the soldiers by from six to twelve.

"In dealing with these things, however, the country should not be downcast, should not be pessimistic. We should remember that the country is exceedingly prosperous. One thing, however, should be discouraged, and that is the practice of discharged soldiers in settling down in New York City to find work instead of returning to their homes.

MORGAN, JR., BANK DIRECTOR

Son of J. P. Morgan Elected to the Liberty National Board.

Junius Spencer Morgan, eldest son of J. P. Morgan, was yesterday elected a Director of the Liberty National Bank. This is the first Board of Directors to which young Mr. Morgan has been elected. He is employed in his father's firm in the credit department.

Young Mr. Morgan is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1914. In September of that year he entered the office of Brown Brothers & Co. in Boston, and remained there until the following September, when he entered his father's office in this city. In April, 1917, he enlisted in the navy, and was sent to Annapolis to an officers' training camp. Upon graduation he was commissioned in the navy, and from Sept. 22, 1917, to Aug. 28, 1918, he saw active service abroad. He resigned from the navy on Dec. 13 last.

The Liberty National Bank is known as a "Morgan" institution. Two of J. P. Morgan's partners, Henry P. Davison and Thomas Cochran, have been Presidents of the bank.

SUBMARINE BOAT REPORT.

Corporation Shows Income Available for Common Stock of $172,779.

The annual report of the Submarine Boat Corporation for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, shows net income available for the common stock amounting to $172,779, equal to 22 cents a share, as compared with net for the stock of $1,248,099, or at the rate of $1.62 per share, earned in the previous year. The net for last year was arrived at after charging off, among other items, $27,320 as the excess of cost over market value of Liberty bonds.

The report shows the company to have assets and liabilities amounting to $63,290,837, against $7,688,809 in 1917. The largest item among the assets is "work in process," which totals $52,779,120. A sum of $1,672,680 as invested in Liberty bonds is reported. Among the liabilities are reported $33,134,925 on account of merchandise supplied by the Emergency Fleet Corporation and one of $21,658,107 as cash advanced by the same organization.

Butterick Profits Show Gain.

The Butterick Company in its annual report for last year shows net profits of $441,895, an increase of $180,882 over the preceding year. The balance sheet shows accounts receivable of $2,465,395, as compared with bills and accounts payable of approximately $1,150,000.

CENTRAL-UNION MOVES.

Recently Merged Trust Company Occupies New Quarters.

The Central Union Trust Company moved into its new offices at 80 Broadway yesterday. This is the permanent home of the institution which grew out of the merger of the Central Trust Company and the Union Trust Company some months ago. The Central Union, since the merger, has been occupying two buildings, the old home of the Central, at 54 Wall Street, and that of the Union, at Broadway and Wall Street. James N. Wallace, President of the merged company, and several other high officials have been making their headquarters at the old offices in lower Wall Street. Henceforth they will occupy offices in the new building.

Railroad Heads in Conference.

Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railways, held a conference yesterday afternoon in the office of A. H. Smith, Regional Director for Eastern District Roads. All of the Federal Managers in the Eastern District attended, and following the meeting Mr. Hines said that only matters of routine operation had been discussed. He said questions of finances had not come up for debate. Neither, he added, was the question of advancing the wages of certain classes of railroad employes considered.

A Great Service at Little Cost

No other form of insurance affords so great a service for so small a premium as does American Credit Insurance.

The American's Unlimited Policy provides absolute protection against excessive credit losses. It does more; it serves to prevent losses. It also offers the privilege of adjustment and advancement of money during the currency of the policy if covered excessive losses are sustained.

The Curtis Publishing Co., owners of the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies' Home Journal and Country Gentleman, to whom we recently paid a loss of $18,908.49, write: "The whole transaction has been handled in such a courteous, prompt and thoroughly satisfactory way that we feel you should know how much we appreciate it."

M. H. Rogers, Manufacturer, 912-920 Broadway, New York City, writes in acknowledgment of payment of $8,838.68: "I have carried your bond for a long term of years. This is the first time I have had occasion to call on you for any excess loss, and in this case the excess was caused by the failure of one of my well-rated and highly-valued customers. The adjustment was made promptly and to my entire satisfaction."

If you are a manufacturer or jobber, you too will benefit immeasurably by this broad service. Don't fail to look into the matter—write or phone for the full particulars today.

Liverpool

LIVERPOOL, England's second city and seaport, had a population in 1911 of 746,421. Seven railways and four underground tunnels serve this city, which extends in a semi-circle around the bay, with seven miles of docks.

Liverpool's foreign trade is more important than its industries, and through this port passes the largest share of Great Britain's trade with America, Australia, India, Africa, and Mediterranean ports. It has a larger fleet of merchant vessels than any other seaport in the world, and over $24,000,000 of goods were shipped from Liverpool to the United States in 1917.

This was a decline of over $6,000,000 from the amount in 1916. Eighty-five per cent. of England's cotton enters the country through Liverpool. Total commerce in 1916 was $2,317,359,000, of which $1,362,735,000 were imports and $954,624,000 exports.

STUDEBAKER REPORT.

The report of the Studebaker Corporation, issued yesterday showed net profits, after allowances for interest and other charges and war taxes, of $3,884,194 equal after the payment of preferred dividends, to $10.38 a share on the $30,000,000 common stock. In the preceding year the company's net profits were $3,500,741, or $9.11 on the same stock. The report showed 1918 net sales of $52,087,997, compared with $56,147,516 in 1917, while the surplus for the year of $1,916,644 compared with $633,190 in 1917.

The balance sheet carried an item of $8,205,829 due from the United States and British Governments, which was not shown in preceding years, and inventories were decreased from $21,332,124 in 1917 to $17,535,797 in 1918. On Dec. 31, 1918, the company had notes payable to an amount of $9,525,000, compared with $7,400,000 in the preceding year.

In his report to stockholders A. R. Erskine, President of the company, said:

"Because of existing trade and competitive conditions the Directors recently decided that the new plant should be completed as soon as possible, and, accordingly, on Dec. 9 they authorized the issue and sale of $15,000,000 of 7 per cent. ten-year serial gold notes, to provide funds for the liquidation of our floating debt and to finance the plant extensions booked for the current year. The notes payable shown on the balance sheet, $9,525,000, have been paid off, and the corporation is free of bank loans. About one-third of the new plant will be completed by the end of this year, and by February, 1920, it will be producing 3,000 cars per month."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday closed steady and active. Final quotations were below the high levels of the session, due to a volume of realization sales a few moments before the close. This selling followed a gradually advancing movement which was sustained during the greater part of the afternoon session and caused recoveries of previous losses throughout the list. Buying found chief expression from the outset in the oil shares.

Brown Buys Heights Apartment.

Frederick Brown, operator, added to his large holdings in the Washington Heights district by the purchase for cash of the northwest corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 179th Street. The property which consists of three five-story apartment houses on a plot 150 by 100, were sold by Anne E. Benjamin, a daughter of the late Henry E. Rodgers of the Standard Oil Company, who held them at $250,000. O'Reilly & Dahn negotiated the sale. Mr. Brown also figured in two other transactions. From the Winnie Realty and Construction Company he purchased through Leitner, Brener & Starr, the northwest corner of Bach Street and Intervale Avenue and 915 Intervale Avenue, Bronx, two five-story apartments on a plot 53 by 115 by irregular, and from the Schorn Realty Company, 303 East 188th Street, a five-story new 4aw tenement, on a plot 53 by 84.

Former Holding of Aaron Burr Sold.

Private Dwellings.

Mrs. Agnes Neustadt sold the four-story dwelling, 28 by 100.5, at 15 East Sixty-ninth Street, to a client of William P. Kay & Co. who will remodel the premises.

The estate of Andrew Jackson sold the three-story brownstone house on lot 20 by 100, held at $7,200, at 329 East 121st Street, to J. L. Van Zant, through George W. Brettell.

Portman Buys Bronx Block.

The Union Chemical Glassware Company, I. Portman, President, bought the four five-story apartments comprising the block front on the west side of Morris Park Avenue, between 181st Street and Cameron Place, including the two corners, each house standing on a plot 50 feet front by irregular in depth. The property, which was held at $250,000 with an annual rental roll of $39,000, was purchased from Dorothy Hein through Ernest Damiane and Joseph A. Blackmer.

Mr. Portman also purchased through the same brokers from John H. Buscall the southeast and northeast corners of Park Avenue and 181st Street, two six-story apartments with stores, each on plot 50 by 100, and each held at $65,000 with annual rent rolls of $10,000.

Investors Active.

Ernest & Wattenberg sold the two-story taxpayer, with five stores, on lot 25 by 100, held at $35,000, at the northwest corner of Westchester Avenue and Jennings Street, to David Bennett in a cash deal, through Harry H. Cohen. RETURNING TROOPS OBJECT TO HEARST

LAMPOONED IN VERSES

304th Brigade of Heavy Tanks Comes Home Under Command of Colonel Patton.

The French steamship Patria, which was delayed several hours by the fog, docked yesterday at noon at the foot of Thirty-first Street, South Brooklyn, and landed 2,110 officers and men from Marseilles. The troops consisted principally of the 304th Brigade of Heavy Tanks and six casual companies.

They were met at Quarantine by the police boat Patrol, which had a number of the Mayor's Welcome Committee on board, including the Secretary, Grover A. Whalen, and a band with members of the New York Women's Police Reserve and workers from the Salvation Army, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., and K. of C. One of the soldiers leaning over the rail yelled out, "Is William Randolph Hearst on board?" and another khaki-clad warrior beside him threw down a packet tied with string and said, "Give that to the Mayor."

On being opened it was found to contain a protest signed by the officers and men on the troopship against Mr. Hearst's selection by the Mayor as a member of his Welcome Committee. When the reporters went on board at the pier some of the army officers told them where to get copies of the protest and the men who handed them out also gave copies of three verses they said had been composed by a doughboy in France.

Calls Hearst Inhumanitarian.

The protest read as follows:

"We the undersigned officers, noncommissioned officers and enlisted men register our unqualified disapproval of the designation of Mr. William Randolph Hearst as a member of a committee formed for the purpose of welcoming members of the American Expeditionary Forces returning to the United States. This protest is registered because of the conviction that he has proved himself to be un-American, pro-German, and inhumanitarian, and therefore totally unfit for membership on a committee of the above character."

No names of officers or men were given out to the reporters.

The troops on the Patria were commanded by Colonel George S. Patton, Jr., a regular army officer of San Gabriel, Cal., who went to France as an aid to General Pershing in May, 1917, and was the first American officer appointed to a tank corps, on Nov. 17 of that year. He was a Captain then, and started a tank school at Langres, where French Renault tanks were used.

"The first time the battalion went into action," Colonel Patton said, "was on Sept. 12 in the St. Mihiel sector, when 192 tanks were engaged in the attack on the enemy, and only six of them were put out of commission by the artillery fire of the Germans.

Attacks Twenty-two Times.

There were 142 tanks manned by Americans and 25 by the French Tank Corps, making six American and two French companies. During the drive on the Hindenburg line the 304th Heavy Tank Brigade attacked twenty-two times, had seventeen of their machines destroyed by shell fire, and their casualties were 42 per cent. officers and 34 per cent. of enlisted men.

In speaking of the work done by the heavy tanks on Sept. 26 and the three following days, Colonel Patton said he was brought down early in the engagement by a rifle bullet in the left leg, which was received while he was leading seven soldiers to attack a machine gun nest. Colonel Patton said that when he was shot he fell down on the field and would have been killed if it had not been for the bravery of Private Joseph Angelo, of Camden, N. J., who risked his life to drag him to a shell hole, for which he later received the D. S. C. The Colonel also received the D. S. C. for bravery under fire in rescuing his tanks stuck in the mud. Altogether, the 304th Brigade has received two French military medals and twenty-one Distinguished Service Crosses out of a total of 800 men.

The first Japanese steamship to arrive in New York with American troops was the Awa Maru, from Bordeaux, with 4 officers and 165 enlisted men of the 8th Heavy Mobile Ordnance Repair Shop; 75 men from the 6th Heavy Ordnance Repair Shop, and 3 casual companies and 30 casual officers. The troops were under the command of Lieut. Col. Bertram M. Johnson of the Regular Army from Helena, Mont.

He was advised at sea yesterday of the sudden death of his wife, and a special tug from the navy yard went to the Awa Maru at Quarantine and took Colonel Johnson off, so that he could catch a train from New York and reach home in time to attend the funeral.

AUSTRALIANS TO MARCH.

Men Who Helped Train the 27th Will Parade with Division.

A contingent of thirty Australians who aided the New York National Guardsmen in their preliminary training with the British armies, will march in the parade of the 27th Division on March 25. Soldiers of the division have invited their former comrades to march with them, the "Aussies," as they are called by the Americans, have accepted, and the proposal now awaits only the formal approval of Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan.

Plans to enable about 7,000 wounded in the army hospitals to see the parade of the 27th were discussed last night at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Committee in the Hall of Records. The men will be transported, fed, and made comfortable by the Red Cross, the Motor Corps, and details from the army and navy. Places in the grand stand will be reserved for some of the wounded, and chairs and benches for others will be placed in Madison Square, near the Altar of Liberty, and in the space in front of the Public Library. Many buildings along Fifth Avenue also are to be opened to the wounded soldiers. The Mayor's Committee rejected a proposal that a stand to be used exclusively for wounded soldiers, be erected in Madison Square.

Distribution of the tickets to the grand stand will not begin until late this week, and the families of those who perished in service with the division are to be first to receive allotments. Members of the division, with the wounded, will come next, and the tickets left will be allotted to up-State delegations, members of the Mayor's committee, and State and Federal officials. The police have been instructed to arrest all persons suspected of dealing in grand stand tickets.

Mayor Hylan wrote a letter yesterday to the Board of Aldermen urging that March 25 be declared an official holiday in honor of the 27th Division. The Mayor received a cablegram from General Sir Henry Rawlinson, commanding the Fourth British Army, congratulating the city on the homecoming of the 27th Division, which, he said, "fought so splendidly and in truest comradeship with their British comrades."

The Mayor's Committee announced that a special program of the parade would be distributed in the grandstand without charge, and an appeal has been sent to members of the committee for contributions to the fund of $25,000 required for printing the booklet.

ALBANY, March 17.—The New York City Committee of Welcome was requested by the Assembly, in a resolution adopted tonight, to make provision for veterans of the civil war so that they could witness the parade of the 27th Division next Tuesday without discomfort.

INTERALLIED FLAG HERE.

The transport Presidente Wilson, which arrived last Thursday from Marseilles with 1,500 American troops, is the first vessel to fly the new Interallied flag in New York harbor, which is white, blue, and white in horizontal stripes. The transport was formerly the Austro-Hungarian liner Kaiser Franz Josef and was seized by the Italians with 17 other steamships belonging to that company when they captured Trieste. The chief officer said yesterday that as the Presidente Wilson was registered as an Austrian vessel they could not fly an enemy flag and therefore the Inter-Allied flag was hoisted at the stern and the Italian ensign at the mainmast head. From what he had heard in Trieste the white, blue, and white would be the flag of the League of Nations.

306th Auxiliaries to Meet Tonight.

The auxiliaries of the 3d Battalion of the 306th Infantry, comprising Companies I, K, L, and M, will hold their monthly meeting tonight in the auditorium of the Washington Irving High School, at Irving Place and Fifteenth Street. Major Archibald J. Thacher will be the speaker, and there will be a musical program. The 306th Infantry Association announced that all soldiers and relatives of soldiers in the regiment were invited.

MAY HAYES AT INCH TRIAL.

The trial of Mrs. Betty Inch, a film actress, before Justice Davis and a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on the charge of attempted extortion of $215 from Eugene P. Herrman of 650 West End Avenue, was concluded yesterday and will be deliberated upon by the jury today.

At the first trial of Mrs. Inch, when the jury disagreed, she asserted that she had acted as an agent for May Hayes, a friend, in applying to Mr. Herrman for the money, and that it had been impossible to get Miss Hayes to come from Palm Beach and testify for the defense. This missing witness appeared yesterday and told the court that she was the May Hayes referred to, but was now married to Irving Benjamin and had been living in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Benjamin testified that she, accompanied by her husband, had voluntarily appeared to defend Mrs. Inch. Mrs. Benjamin, however, was not permitted to go into certain details that had been testified to by Mrs. Inch at the former trial concerning the reasons for her acting as agent for Miss Hayes. Mrs. Inch did not testify in her own behalf at the present trial.

AMERICAN CONCERT IN ROME

Work of Our Composers Heard—Ovation to Albert Spalding.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 16.—The Augusteum Hall was packed with a distinguished crowd to hear the much-expected and much-talked-of American concert today. The program comprised all American music, selected by the Trustees of the American Academy at Rome.

Music is one of the arts included in the academy here, but so far no musical student has taken a scholarship for Rome. It is hoped in the near future to make American music better known in Italy, where American musical students study the Italian masters.

The overture by Henry Gilbert of New York, four characteristic orchestral pieces by Arthur Foote of Boston, and an organ concerto by Horatio Parker of New Haven were played. A further attraction was the presence of Albert Spalding of Chicago, who roused long and enthusiastic applause by his wonderful interpretation of Mendelssohn's concerto.

Mr. Spalding was already well known and liked here during his flying visits to the Eternal City when in the Aviation Corps. He had played several times for private entertainments, but this was his first professional appearance since he left the army.

The musical authorities urgently asked him to be present today, to make the performance even more American. Mr. Spalding succeeded in getting his discharge here instead of returning home.

The whole concert was an immense success, each piece being received with enthusiastic applause, especially Horatio Parker's organ concerto and Spalding's violin playing. Every one expressed the hope that this would not be the only concert of its kind for the present season.

Ireland and "League of Nations."

DENVER, Col., March 17.—The Senate resolution asking the Peace Conference to grant Ireland the right of self-determination was adopted by the House of Representatives of the Colorado Legislature today by a viva voce vote, with an amendment requesting President Wilson to "exercise his extraordinary and unlimited powers and authority that the sentiments herein expressed may be incorporated in the constitution of the proposed 'League of Notions,' and further be it resolved that a copy be forwarded to the President of the Irish Republic at the national capital of Ireland, if the same can be located."

"The Coming Pianist of the Younger Generation" makes record-rolls only for

THE DUO-ART PIANO

AURELIO GIORNI will undoubtedly be classed with the few very great pianists. Advantages of heredity and training of the highest artistic order are his. His mother is one of the best-known concert singers in Rome, his father a distinguished painter and a grandson of Thorwaldsen.

Giorni's wonderful natural gifts of memory and temperament have been developed under such masters as Sgambati, Busoni and Humperdinck. Although intense and extremely brilliant, his playing is marked by consistent good taste, finish and command.

Giorni has recorded many of his most beautiful interpretations for the Duo-Art Piano. Like the recordings made for this super-instrument by other great pianists, his musical personality stands out in these tone portraits, clear and distinct as a cameo.

At Giorni's recital, to be held at Aeolian Hall on Friday Evening, March 21st, he will give a program of unusual interest and scope, and the Duo-Art recordings of his splendid playing may be heard at Aeolian Hall at any time.

The Duo-Art Pianola is a pianoforte of highest excellence for hand-playing. It is also a Pianola of advanced design and as a reproducing piano it stands absolutely supreme.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes

I CUT one Suit with ten fingers, not ten suits with one machine. I draft that Suit to be as individually and intimately your own, as your thoughts or your toothbrush. I charge $30 to $55, same as you'd pay for garments, turned out by the statistical, hope-it-fitsical system.

I show you a wealth of patterns of pure virgin wool, custom-rare, custom-rich, custom-racy. My body-gracing fit, thoroughbred style, gifted journeyman benchwork and personal attention, from Hand-Clasp to Hand-Tailoring.

Five Generations

The Coward Shoe

"Reg. U. S. Pat. Off."

Five generations, all having worn the Coward "Good Sense" Shoe, is not an unusual thing for us to hear.

The prime feature of this shoe is comfort; the broad easy toe allowing plenty of freedom, while the snugness of the heel and upper gives the feeling of security. And they are made with that thoroughness and care for which the name Coward stands.

Our many patrons, and those who have worn broad toed shoes for many years, can still obtain them at Cowards in all sizes.

No More Days Of Less

Meatless, heatless, wheatless are days of the past; but the thrift born of them is with us to stay.

To demand the utmost for a dollar is one great lesson the world has learned. Along with other days of less, it has cancelled days of less service.

Service has always been the Goodrich measure of the value of tires; that is, what a tire proves itself worth you in service on your car, and on the road.

You see promise of service in the burly, full rounded bodies of Goodrich Service Value Tires; and their thicker SAFETY TREADS, extra wide to fortify the sidewall against rut grinding.
